'The author is to be congratulated upon the thorough and workmanlike manner in which he has treated his subject. There is no doubt that pupils who have worked through this course and that which is to follow it will be able to attack "Caesar" with understanding and facility. —Schoolmaster.

'The plan is a great advance on the old-fashioned method of beginning with "Caesar," a grammar, and a dictionary, and Mr. Williams has worked it out with admirable skill. We cuty the punds who get their introduction to Latin by such a plan. —

'A capital little book for pupils who are entering upon the study of Latin.'-- Scotsman.

'To the notice of teachers of Latin by modern methods we commend this volume.'—Educational News.

'The lessons are admirably arranged. There is an excellent Latin-English Vocabulary. We commend this volume to the notice of teachers,'—The Teacher.

'Mr. William's has planned his book with great skill, and worked out the plan as skilfully. We cordially recommend it to those in search of an introduction to Latin.'—Aberdeen Journal.

'The book will be a Jayourste one. It is thorough.'-School Guardian.

'It is neatly and attractively got up, the matter is well selected and judiciously introduced, and the book can be recommended to any teacher who desires a reliable and interesting introduction to the language.—Secondary Education.

LONDON: RIVINGTONS

PREFACE

This book is a continuation of my First Latin Book, and is planned throughout on the same lines. Thus it contains sentences for translation from Latin into English, and from English into Latin, Free Composition, Easy Continuous Prose, Recapitulatory Exercises, and passages for reading (Lectiones). The latter are taken entirely from Caesar's Gallic War, adapted to suit the requirements of pupils, and chosen, as far as possible, to illustrate rules of Syntax given in the previous part of the Lesson. At Lesson 46 a Continuous Narrative is introduced, comprising the matter of Caesar, B. G. v. 39-48.

As in my First Latin Book great stress is laid on Oral Work. The Examiners in Classics under the Scotch Secondary Education. Board 1908 report as follows—'the extent to which systematic oral practice is calculated to impress ordinary forms and constructions on the mind of the learner is not sufficiently appreciated.' And again—'nor should the introduction of written composition involve ipso facto the discontinuance of oral.' 2

This view is supported also by the Classical Association in their report of the Curricula Committee upon a Four Years Latin Course for Secondary Schools, presented at the general meeting of the Association, 11th January 1910. On p. 8 of that report it is suggested that 'the conversion of English sentences into Latin (during the first year) should be done orally in class before they are reproduced in writing.' There seems no reason why this plan should not be continued after the First year.

The same report recommends that the Subjunctive Mood and Passive Voice should be mastered in the Second not the First year.

In accordance with suggestions in the Scotch Report² Continuous Passages for reading, not meant to be literally translated, but read rapidly in Latin, lave been added as an Appendix.

It is recommended that throughout the book all Latin to be translated, whether in the form of sentences or Lectiones, be read first in Latin. 'One great object of reading Latin is to bring the pupil to the point at which translation may in ever increasing measure be dispensed with.'

³ Ibid. pp. 35 and 37.

The book has purposely been made full. If some Lessons are found to be rather long, it is intended that teachers should make their own selection as to what to omit, e.g. those who prefer not to use the continuous prose passages may confine themselves to the detached sentences.

Only constructions that occur with frequency in Caesar's Gallic War have been given, and the author may claim that pupils who have worked through this and the First Book ought to be able to attack Caesar with understanding and facility.

The book begins with the Passive Voice and includes Passive and Deponent Verbs (all Moods)—Infinitive and Subjunctive Moods of Active Verbs—Imperative Mood of Passive and Deponent Verbs—Participles—Supines—The Gerund and Gerundive—Frequentative, Inceptive, Impersonal, and Defective Verbs—Compound Nouns—Diminutive and Distributive Numeral Adjectives—Indefinite Pronouns—Prepositions—Uses of the Cases—The Ablative Absolute—Time and Place, including the Locative Case—Uses of the Subjunctive in Independent and all kinds of Dependent Clauses—Sequence of Tenses—Indirect Statement, Command, and Question.

In the Latin-English Vocabulary words are in most cases given in their setting. French derivatives in common use have in many cases been added for purposes of comparison. No proper names have been included in it, except such as differ much from the English forms, e.g. Belgae, Cantium, Hibernia.

The Grammar has been collected and summarised at the end of the book.

In conclusion, I have to thank the Rev. F. Conway, A.A., of Merchant Taylors' School, E.C., to whom I am indebted for many valuable suggestions and for his great help in the correcting of proofs.

C. A. WILLIAMS.

PRONUNCIATION.

THE following hints on Pronunciation are taken by permission of the Committee of the Classical Association from their pamphlet, The Pronunciation of Latin. (London: John Murray. 1908. Price 3d.)

Vowels:

```
ā (fātum), as a in father.
ā (dăbit), as a in aha.
ē (poēta), as e in prey.
ĕ (tĕnent), as e in fret.
ī (Dūdo), as ee in feed.
ĭ (sĭmĭlis), as i in fīt.
ō (hōra), as o in flown.
ŏ (quŏta), as o in not.
ţ ū (tūto), as oo in shoot.
ţ ŭ (ŭbi), as u in full.
```

Diphthongs:

The two vowel sounds composing the diphthong should be rapidly run together.

ae (portae) = a + e, nearly as ai in Isaiah.

au (aurum) = a + u, as ou in hour.

oe (poena) = o + e, nearly as oi in boil.

ui (huic, cui) = u + i, as Fr. oui.

eu (Europa) = e + u, nearly as ew in new.

ei ($Pomp\bar{e}\bar{i}$, vocative of Pompeius)=e+i, as ey in $gr\mathbf{ey}$.

Consonants:

c, g, and t are always hard, even before i.

qu (qui, quod). as qu in queen.

gu (unguere), as gu in anguish.

i and u consonantal.

i(j), e.g. iacio, as y in you.

u (v), e.g. volo, practically as w in we. 1

Double consonants, e.g. vac-ca, are pronounced separately, as English book-keeper.

MARKING OF QUANTITIES.

A long vowel is denoted by the sign (-), a short vowel by the sign (\smile).

In the following pages:-

- (a) vowels long 'by nature,' e.g. ācrēs, ēdūcō, Rōmānī, are marked.
- (b) vowels short 'by nature,' e.g. bŏnus, incŏlă, tĕnĕt: vowels short 'by nature' but long 'by position,' e.g. rēspicio, dūx, īmpellere: and vowels long 'by nature and position,' e.g. dēstringo, ūllus, are not marked.
- (c) diphthongs, e.g. ae, au, eu, etc., and the rare diphthong -ui, as in cui and huic, are not marked.
- (d) Some doubtful vowels, are marked, e.g. the i in the 2nd pers. sing., and 1st and 2nd pers. pl. of the fut. perf. indic. act. and the perf. subj. act., e.g. fueris, fuerimus, fueritis.
- (e) Where the word -que, 'and,' is hyphened to a word, the last vowel of such word, if long 'by nature,' has been marked, e.g. ingentesque, barbarīs-que, but only in the first few Lessons. Where que is joined without a hyphen to such endings, they are left unmarked.

- •(f) The compounds of iacio, are peculiar. The i before the c representing both the consonantal i at the beginning of this verb, and also the following a, is vocalic, because it makes a separate syllable with the c; but it is also sufficiently consonantal to lengthen a short vowel followed by a consonant in front of it. In all such cases the vewel thus lengthened has been marked; e.g. conicio, disicio, inicio. ăbicio is an exception. In the supine the i is purely consonantal, and the lengthened vowel in front is, therefore, left unmarked, in accordance with rule (b).
 - (g) The e of the 5th declension has for uniformity been marked long in the gen. and dat. sing., though it was usually short in rei, fidei, spei. There is much uncertainty about the pronunciation of the ei, and possibly it was often treated as a diphthong.

LESSON 1.

PASSIVE VOICE—Introductory.

turris aedificātur, a tower is built.

turrēs aedificantur, towers are built.

tēlum conicitur, a weapon is thrown.

tēla coniciuntur, weapons are thrown.

fossa completur, the trench is filled.

fossae complentur, trenches are filled.

oppidum munitur, the town is fortified.

oppida mūniuntur, towns are fortified.

- 1. turris ā Rōmānīs aedificātur.
- 2. turrēs ligneis trabibus aedificantur.
- 3. fossa sarmentīs complētur.
- 4. fossa lāta ā mīlitibus dūcitur.
- 5. tēla in nostros ā barbarīs coniciuntur.
- 6. oppida mūrīs altīs mūniuntur.
- 7. urbs ab incolīs fortiter dēfenditur.
- 8. locus nătūrā atque opere egregie mūnīti r.

We saw in Lesson 19 of my First Lat. Bk. that by when it precedes a personal agent is translated by $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$ or $\bar{\mathbf{ab}}$ followed by the ablative (abl. of Agent): cf. sent. 1, 4, 5, 7, above.

^{• 1} This refers to First Latin Book, by C. A. Williams. Riviagtons. 2s.

In all other circumstances the ablative alone is used (abl. of Instrument).

e.g. mīles ā barbarō occīditur.

but mīles saxō occīditur.

Vīvā Vōce:

1. ā quibus aedificātur turris? 2. quibus rēbus complētur fossa? 3. in quos tēla coniciuntur? 4. quomodo urbs mūnītur? 5. quālis fossa dūcitur? 6. quid ēgregiē mūnītur? 7. quālibus trabibus aedificantur turrēs?

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. The top-of the hill is-held by a garrison.
- 2. The muscles of the Germans are-strengthened by hunting (pl.) from-childhood $(\bar{a} \ parvul\bar{\imath}s)$.
- 3. The fleet is-hindered by contrary winds.
- 4. The ratives are-put-to-flight by the weapons of the Romans.
- 5. Our-men are-kept in camp for-several days (acc.) by the storms.
- 6. Soon all the cavalry (equitatus, ūs, m.) of the enemy is-put-to-flight.

- 1.
- 7. In-spring the fields are-ploughed by the farmers.
- 8. The town is-blockaded by outwork, mantlets, (and) towers.

VOCABULARY.

I put-to-flight, $fug\bar{o}$. 1; in $fugam\ d\bar{o}$. 1.

outwork, agger, eris, m. The 'agger' was a mound erected before the walls of a besieged city. On it were placed the siege-engines, and it was gradually extended towards the walls.

LECTIO.

Frāter frātrī succurrit.

In eō proeliō cum Germānīs commissō ex equitibus nostrīs interficiuntur quattuor et septuāgintā, in hīs vir fortissimus, Pīsō Aquītānus, cūius avus in cīvitāte suā regnum obtinuerat, amīcus ab senātū nostrō appellātus.

Forte Pīsōnis frāter ab hostībus interclūditur. Huic Pīsō auxilium fert, ex-que perīculō ēripit. Ipse tamen equō vulnerātō dēicitur, atque sīc impedītus ab hostibus circumdatur, multa-que vulnera accipit.

Tum dēmum frāter equum incitat, hostibus sē offert, atque fortissimē pugnans interficitur.

amīcus appellātus, called friend (said of a foreigner who was in alliance with Rome).

interclūdo, I cut-off (milit.).

tum demum, then at last, or not till then.

 ${f se}$ offert, offers himself; i.e. rushes at.

pugnans, fighting.

LESSON 2.

PASSIVE VOICE—Present Tense (First and Second Conj.).

1st Conj.

2nd Conj.

colloc(a)-or, I am put, posted, contine-or, I am kept, detained, enclosed.

(milit.).

continë-ris

collocā-ris collocā-tur collocā-mur collocā-minī colloca-ntur

continē-tur continē-mur

contine-mini

Similarly conjugate:

confirmor, I am strengthened.
vulneror, I am wounded.

terreor, I am frightened. deleor, I am destroyed.

- 1. exercitus in hībernīs collocā-tur.
- 2. vīcus altissimīs montibus continē-tur.
- 3. feroci Germanorum impetu non perturba-mur.
- 4. barbatorum copiae in insidiis colloca-ntur.
- 5. nonne võs, mīlitēs, disciplīnā atque ūsū bellī confirmā-minī?
- mīlitēs sub pellibus ā duce diūtius non continentur.
- 7. immanī-ne ferae magnitūdine terrē-ris?

Put the verbs in the following sentences into the Plural, and make other necessary changes:

- · 1. ego tēlō vulner-or.
 - 2. tū, mīles, in statione collocā-ris.
 - 3. ille ab audācī Gallō vulnerā-tur.
 - 4. ea cohors in Alpibus collocā-tur.
 - 5. tū ducis cohortātione incitā-ris.
 - 6. incola in captā urbe continē-tur.

Make sentences orally with the pres. tense of the verb collocor, and the words $legi\bar{o}$, cohors, auxilia, impedīmenta (introducing adjectives suitable to each), and the Personal pronouns.

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. Helvētiī undique loc- nātūrā continen-.
- 2. ūn— pars Galliae Garumnā flūm—— continētur.
- 3. nos in castr— tempestat—— contin——.
- 4. hostium ordin—facile ā nostr—perturb—.
- 5. fossa —— complet—.

When a sentence is turned into the Passive from the Active voice, the Object becomes the Subject, and the Subject is put into the ablative (with or vithout a preposition).

e.g. agricolae agrõs arant (act.). becomes agrī ab agricolīs arantur (pass.)

Turn the five sentences in 'Quod $d\bar{e}$ -est' into the Active form.

LECTIO.

Rhēnus flūmen.

Rhēnus oritur ex Lēpontiīs, quī Alpēs incolunt, et longō spatiō per multārum gentium fīnēs fertur. Ubi ōceanō appropinquāvit, in plūrēs diffluit rartēs, et multās ingentēs-que insulās efficit. Hārum pars magna ā ferīs barbarīs-que nātiōnibus incolitur, ex quibus sunt quī piscibus atque ōvīs avium vīvere existimantur. Deinde flūmen multīs capitibus in ōceanum influit.

oritur, rises.

LECTIO.

Oppidī obsidiō.

Gallōrum oppidum ā Rōmānīs iam diū obsidēbātur. Nostrī mūrōs undique circumdederant, neque iam incolīs ulla spēs salūtis relinquitur. Agger quoque in diēs propius mūrōs agitur. Nihilō minus tamen Gallī fortiter resistunt. Mox dux Rōmānus diem oppugnātiōnī dīcet. Mīlitum animī ad pugnandum excitābantur.

Et iam ante id tempus cōpia magna eōrum quae ad oppugnātiōnem ūsuī sunt comparābātur, et commeātūs ex agrīs comportābantur. Interim hostēs nōn terrentur. Frustrā tamen resistent, et mox tōtum oppidum ā nostrīs expugnābitur. Post victōriam dux, propter longam dēfensiōnem īrātus, gravissimō suppliciō eōs adficiet. Nam omnia aedificia vastābuntur, omnia bona ā victōribus exportābuntur.

pugnandum, ī., fighting (gerund, v. Less. 17).

ŭsuī, useful.

bona, ōrum. n. pl., goods or belongings.

Latīnē reddite:

A. Connected. The race of the Suēvī is by-far the largest and most warlike of all the German races. They $(h\bar{\imath})$ are-said to have a hundred cantons, from which every-year warriors $(arm\bar{a}t\bar{\imath},\bar{o}rum)$ go-out forthe-sake-of fighting. The rest, who remain (perf.) at-home, support themselves and the warriors. Thus neither agriculture nor the theory and practice of war is-interrupted.

The Sue i do not live much on-corn (abl.) but chiefly on-milk and cattle, and are much occupied in hunting (pl.).

In the coldest places they wear (say 'have') no clothing except skins, owing-to the scantiness of which a large part of (the) body is exposed.

- 1. Four cohorts were-being-posted on the left wing.
- 2. We-shall-be-besieged in a badly (male) fortified eity.
- 3. At-night the soldiers will-be-roused from (\bar{e}) sleep by the sound of the trumpet.
- 4. Will-you (sing.) -be-frightened by the arrival of the enemy? (No.)
- 5. Corn will-be-carried into the city from the fields.
- 6. Our-men were-being-wounded in-all-directions by the enemy's weapons.
- 7. After several days our town will-be-stormed, and we ourselves (shall) surrender (in dēditionem venīre. 4.).
- 8. Everything (n. pl. of omnis, e) will-by-laid-waste by-fire-and-sword (ignī ferrō-que).
- 9. By the advice of Cato ($-\bar{o}nis$) Carthage is-destroyed by the Romans.
- 10. The Helvētiī are-enclosed on-all-sides by natural barriers (say 'by the nature of the place').

Franslate the following orally and insert (where needful) an appropriate subject:

Conjugate similar tenses of:

arcess-or. 3., I am sent for. conscrib-or. 3., I am enrolled. conspici-or. 3., I am seen. audi-or. 4., I am heard.

- 1. nulla tēla ā nostrīs frustrā mittuntur.

- 2. dux praesidium castrīs relinquet.
- 3. Caesar vīcōs aedificiaque incendit.
- 4. barbarī saxīs nostros petēbant.
- 5. dux duas legiones in Gallia citeriore conscribit.
- 6. Rōmānī corpora scūtīs prōtegēbant.

LECTIO.

Caesar per dolum litterās mittit.

Dum Cicerō, ūnus ē lēgātīs Caesaris, ā Nerviīs obsidētur, Caesar litterās ad eum mittere vult. Itaque euidam ex equitibus Gallīs magnīs praemiīs persuādet ut ad Cicerōnem epistulam dēferat.

Hanc epistulam Graecīs litterīs scrībit, proptereā quod consilia sua ab hostibus cognoscī nōnvult. Tum nuntiō 'sī adīre nōn poteris' inquit 'epistulam ad trāgulae āmentum dēligātam intrā mūnitiōnēs abice!'

Vīvā Vōce:

1. quis erat Ciceró? 2. ā quibus obsidēbātur?
3. quid Caesar facere vult? 4. quō dolō epistulam mittit? 5. cūr hanc Graecīs litterīs scrībit? 6. quae iussa nuntiō dat? 7. quid trāgulae accidit? 8. quid fēcit miles quī trāgulam conspexit? 9. ubi dux epistulam recitat? 10. quōmodo mīlitēs adficiuntur?

LESSON 5.

DEPONENT VERBS.

Deponent verbs are Passive in form, but Active in meaning.

Thus:--

cohortor. 1., I encourage. proelior. 1., I fight. polliceor. 2., I promise. vereor. 2., I fear. ütor. 3., I use (abl.).

proficiscor. 3., I set-out, start.
experior. 4., I try.
potior. 1 4., 1 get possession of (abl. or gen.).

Deponent verbs are conjugated like the Passive voices of their respective conjugations (vide Less. 2, 3, 4) except in the Infinitive mood (vide pp. 83, 84).

- priusquam proelium committit, dux suös cohortātur.
- 2. legiö undecima ingentī virtūte proeliābātur.
- 3. Aeduī Caesarī frūmentum pollicēbuntur.
- 4. num vos, comites, itineris perícula veremini?
- 5. mediā circiter nocte ē castrīs proficiscimur.
- 6. nostrī hostium impedīmentīs castrīs-que potiuntur.
- 7. mīlitēs, eandem bellī fortūnam ūnā experiēmur!
- 8. Germānī importātīs iūmentīs non ūtuntur.

¹ The pres. indic. has 3rd sing. potitur, and 1st pl. potimur.

Latīnē reddite:

A. Connected.—L. Fabius, a centurion, and those who had climbed the wall along-with-him, having been killed, (interfectus, a, um) were being thrown from the wall. M. Petronius, a centurion of the same legion, tries to cut-down the gates, but is overwhelmed by numbers (multitūdō, inis, f.). To the soldiers who were following him he cried (inquit) 'Since I cannot save myself a along-with-you (ūnā vöbīs-cum) I will provide-for the safety of you whom I have led into danger. Do you look-to yourselves.' At-the-same-time he bursts into the middle of the enemy, kills two of them, and moves the remainder a-little from the gate. To his comrades, who were trying to help him, he says 'It is useless for you to try (say 'in vain you are trying') to help me. Go-away, and while you may, (say 'while there-is a chance') retreat to the legion.' Thus fighting after-a-little-while (post paulum) he fell, and saved his comrades.

Vocabulary.

- 4. We shall start to-morrow about the third watch.
- 5. Almost all the higher ground (loca, n. pl.) was held (imperf.) by a multitude of armed-men (armātī, ōrum, m. pl.).
- 6. Soldiers, we will make a sortie, and try (our) last resource (auxilium, ilī, n.).
- 7. Caesar gets-possession-of a large number of men and cattle (pecus, oris, n.).
- 8. Instead-of coins (sing.) the ancient Britons used (imperf.) either bronze, or iron bars (tālea, ae, f.) weighed to (ad) a fixed standard (say 'weight').
- 9. The Suessiones had (say 'used') the same laws and the same rights (iūs, iūris, n. sing.) as (say 'which') the Rēmī.
- 10. The general sent-forward scouts because he feared (imperf.) an ambush.

The verb fio, I become, am made, is used as the Passive of facio.

Present Tense. fiō, fis, fit, fiunt.

Future ,, fiam, fies, fiet, fiemus, fietis, fient.

Imperfect .. fīē-bam. -bās. -bat. -bāmus. -bātis. -bant.

Present Infinitive. fīe-rī.

Imperative Mood. fi! (2nd sing.)

e.g. Marius septiës consul fiet.

Marius will be made consul seven times.
id tum facile fiëbat.
this was easily done then.
ab his consilium fit.
a plan is made by them.
quis dives fieri non vult?
who does not wish to become rich?

also very common in the phrase 'certior fīō' (passive of certiorem facere (v. First Lat. Bk. Less. 57).

e.g. litterīs Labiēnī Caesar certior fit.

Caesar is informed by Labiēnus' letter.

LESSON 6.

DEPONENT VERBS—Continued.

LESSON 7.

THE PRESENT PARTICIPLE.

The Present Participle of verbs is formed by adding -ns to the Verb stem, and corresponds to the English participle in -ing. Thus:—

Active verbs

pugnā-ns. 1., fighting. iacē-ns. 2., lying. audi-e-ns. 4., hearing.

pete-ns. 3., seeking. cupi-e-ns. 3., desiring.

arbitrā-ns. 1., thinking. tuē-ns. 2., watching. experi-e-ns. 4., trying. pati-e-ns. 3., allowing, suffering. proficisce-ns. 3., setting-out.

Note:—(1) In verbs of the 4th conj. and in those of the 3rd conj. ending in -iō (capiō, cupiō, iaciō,¹ etc.), -e is added to the Verb Stem before adding the termination -ns.

- (2) Deponent verbs have present participles, but
- (3) There is no present participle passive.
- (4) The verb sum has no present participle.

Present Participles are 'Adjectives of one Termination' (v. First Lat. Bk., Less. 47).

cf. the following examples:—

SINGULAR

Nom. fortissimē pugnans occīditur.

Acc. equitatum persequentem vidi.

Gen. fugientis exercitūs clāmōrēs.

Dat. comitī laborantī succurrit.

Abl. despērante exercitū (the army being in despair; v. Less. 13).

PLURAL.

Nom. hoc flentes petiërunt.

Acc. dux hostes transire conantes prohibuit.

Gen. multitūdinem fugientium conspeximus.

Dat. dux cupientibus signum dat.

Abl. insequentibus nostrīs (as our men were following; v. Less. 13).

Meaning of the Present Participle.

The present participle denotes an action of the same time as that of the Principal verb.

e.g. Cotta cohortes adhortans vulnerātur.

Cotta is wounded in the act of exhapting the cohorts.

barbarī nostrōs ē nāvī ēgredientēs conspexērunt. The natives caught-sight-of our-men in the act of disembarking.

Note:—Many present participles are used as adjectives:—

e.g. absens, absent. potens, powerful.

praesens, present. imprūdens (=imprōvidens), not expecting.

Thus:—sē absente, in his absence.

hostibus imprüdentibus, the enemy not expecting (it). cf. Less. 13.

LECTIO.

Rōmānī cum Britannīs proelium committunt.

Pugnātum est ab utrisque ācriter. Nostrī tamen, quod neque ordinēs servāre neque firmiter insistere neque signa subsequī poterant, magnopere perturbābantur. Hostēs vērō omnia vada cognōvērunt, et ubi ex lītore singulārēs ex nāvī ēgredientēs conspexerunt impedītōs adoriēbantur. Quō vīsō Cæsar scaphās longārum nāvium mīlitibus complērī iussit, atque subsidia eīs submittēbat, quōs labōrantēs conspexerat. Nostrī, simul in ārido constitērunt, in hostēs impetum fēcērunt atque eōs in fugam dedērunt.

ubi conspexerant . . . adoriēbantur, whenever they saw . . ! they attacked.

quō vīsō, seeing which (lit. 'which (thing) having been seen,' v. Less. 13).

compleri, pres. infin. pass. of compleo, 'to be filled.'

≈īs, antecedent of quōs, 'to those whom.'

simul, as soon as.

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. All weeping 1 fling themselves at Caesar's feet (voy 'to Caesar at (ad) his feet.')
- 2. Caesar departing for (in. acc.) Britain had left the Morini pacified (pācātus, a, um).
- 3. The enemy were trying to surround us as we were fighting.
- 4. They were standing-on (in-stö. 1.) their prostrate (say 'lying') comrades (dat.).
- 5. The reserves (auxiliaris, is, m.) lent (praeb-e \bar{o} . 2. $-u\bar{\imath}$) an appearance of fighting-(men).
- 6. The enemy were hurling weapons at our men as they advanced (venio. 4.)
- 7. When they stoutly resisted (say 'to them stoutly resisting') Caesar brought up (agō. 3., ēgī) mantlets and towers.
- 8. This method of fight(ing) brought (in-ferō, -ferre, -tulī) the same danger to pursuers (insequens, ntis) and pursued (cēdens, ntis).
 - 1 Words in italics are to be put in the present participle.

LESSON 8.

THE SUPINES AND FUTURE PARTICIPLE.

THE SUPINES.

The Supine is in form a noun of the 4th Declension, found only in the accusative and ablative (or dative) case singular.

Thus:

postulā-tum, to demand. die-tū, for or in saying. cohortā-tum, to exhort. fae-tū, for or in doing. ius-sum, to order. vī-sū, for or in seeing.

Supine in -um.

The Supine in -um is used after verbs of Motion or verbs implying Motion, to express Purpose.

e.g. Aeduī lēgātōs mittunt rogātum auxilium.

the Aeduī send ambassadors to ask-for assistance.

principēs Caesarem grātulātum vēnērunt. the chiefs came to congratulate Caesar.

Supine in -ū.

The Supine in $-\bar{\mathbf{u}}$ is used with adjectives and is confined to a few phrases:—

e.g. perfacile, optimum factū, very-easy, best to do, (in the doing).

mīrābile dictū, wonderful to relate (in the relating).

With few exceptions, all Active and Deponent verbs have supines, and from the supines are formed:—

- (a) the Future Participle (act. and dep.), v. below.
- (b) the Future Infinitive (act., pass., and dep.), v. Less. 21.
- (c) the Perfect Participle (pass. and dep.), v. Less. 9, 11.

N.B.—Latin has no Future Participle Passive (v. Less. 18) or Perfect Participle Active (v. Less. 9).

The following tables show various formations of the supine:—

A. Active verbs.

Verb.	Pres. Infin.	Perf. Tense.	Supine.
port-ō, I carry. 1.	portā-re	portā- v -ī	portā- tum
iuv-ō, I help, 1.	iuvā-re	iūv-ī	iū- tum mane-ō, I remain. 2.	manē-re	man-s-ī	man- sum move-ō, I move. 2.	movē- re	mōv-ī	mō-tum tend-ō, I stretch. 3.	tende- re	tetend-ī	ten-tum or rapi-ō, I seize. 3.	rape-re	rap- u-ī	ten-sum r].p-tum mūnī-tum inven-tum sen-sum
mūni-ō, I fortify. 4.	munī-re	münī- v -ī
inveni-ō, ' find. 4.	invenī-re	invēn-ī
sent'o, I feel. 4.	sentī-re	sens-ī

B. Depotent verbs.

Verb.	Pres. Infin.	Perf. Tense.	Supine.
vast- or , I devastate. 1.	vastā- rī	vastātus sum (I have devastated)	vastā- tum vere-or, I fear. 2.	verē- rī	veritus sum (I have feared)	veri- tum
loq å-or , • I speak. 3.	loqu- ī	locütus sum (I have spoken)	locū- tum

The supines in -um of all verbs are given in the Vocabularies after the perfect tense.

THE FUTURE PARTICIPLE

can be formed from the supine by changing the -um into - \bar{u} rus, a, um, etc.

The Meaning of the future participle can be seen from the following examples:—

frūmentum quod hostēs portātūrī erant.

the corn which the enemy were about to (intended to) carry.

loca ubi dux bellum gestūrus erat.

the places where the general was about to wage war. legio quae ventūra est.

the legion which is on its way (about to come).

Anglice reddite:

- sī Rōmānī Helvētiös superāverint, Aeduīs lībertātem ēreptūrī (ēripiō. 3.) sunt.
- Sabīnus interpretem ad Ambiorigem mittit interrogātum.
- 3. Divitiacus 'ad senātum' inquit 'vēnī auxilium postulātum.'
- 4. Rōmānī, Germānōrum metū permōtī, signa lātūrī (ferō. 3.) non sunt.
- 5. hostēs magnā manū castra oppugnātum vēnerant.
- , 6. dē quartā viģiliā castra dux motūrus est.
 - 7. tum dēmum Ariovistus partem suārum cöpiārum castra oppugnātum mīsit.
 - 8. barbarī in insidiīs latēbunt nostrōs impedītōs oppugnātūrī.
 - ea rēs non modo vīsū foeda (shocking) sed etiam audītū erat.
- dux quinque cohortes frumentatum in proximas segetes misit.

LECTIO.

Nostrī Germānārum metā adficiuntin

Dum paykos dies Caesar ad Vesontiōnem reī frūmentāriae causā morātur, summus subitō timor omnem executum occupābat, proptereā quod Germānī ingentī magnitūdine, incrēdibilī virtūte esse ā Gallīs mercātōribus-que dīcēbantur. Omnium vērō mentes animī-que magnopere perturbābantur.

Hīc timor prīmum ā tribūnīs mīlitum et praefectīs reliquīs-que, quī non magnum in rē mīlitārī ūsum habēbant, ortus est.

Hī neque vultum fingere neque interdum lacrimās tenēre poterant. Abditī in tabernāculīs aut suum fātum querēbantur, aut cum familiāribus suīs commūne periculum miserābantur. Vulgō tōtīs castrīs testāmenta obsignābantur. Hōrum vōcibus āc timōre paulātim etīam etī, quī magnum in castrīs ūsum habēbant, perturbābantur.

Vesontio, onis, m. the modern Besançon.

ortus est, 3rd sing. perf. tense of orior. Its subject is timor.

vultum fingere, to compose their countenances.

Explain the ablatives ingentī magnitūdine, incrēdibilī virtūte. Can you give other instances?

Vīvā Vōce:

1. cūius causā Caesar ad Vesontionem morātur 2. quo tum Romānī occupantur? 3. ā quibus hīc timor ortus est? 4. quomodo Romānī timorem significābant? 5. ubi sēsē abdēbant? 6. quid quer bantur? 7. quid miserābantur? 8. quae obsignābantur?

Latīnē dīcite:

- 1. We are about-to-come.
- 2. A storm is about-to-arise.
- 3. I have come to-find (supine) my friend.
- 4. Were you (sing.) not about-to-speak?
- 5. She intends-to-warn (fut. part.) us.
- 6. Hope in (say 'of') the army (that is) about-toset-out.
- 7. We shall come to-attack (supine) the enemy.
- 8. Fear is about-to-seize the soldiers.
- 9. Come and-help (say 'to help') me!
- 10. The soldiers are about-to-fortify the camp.
- 11. The dangers which we are about-to-undergo $(sub-e\bar{o}, -\bar{i}re, -i\bar{i}, -itum)$.
- 12. The eagerness (alacritās, ātis, f.) of soldiers about-to-fight.
- 13. The army is about-to-storm the town.
- 14. The defeat that the army is about-to-receive.
- 15. The words, that I am about-to-speak (loquor. 3.), are few.

In sent. 14 and 15 'that' is the relative pronoun.

LESSON 9.

THE PERFECT PARTICIPLE.

We saw in the last Lesson that Perfect Participles are formed from the Supine Stem of verbs.

The formation consists in changing the -um of the supine into -us, a, um, etc.

Thus:

in-ductus (having been) influenced, moved.

 $\begin{array}{l} \textbf{com-m\"{o}tus} \\ \textbf{per-m\"{o}tus} \end{array} \} \ (\textbf{having been}) \ \textbf{aroused, excited.}$

N.B.—Only Passive and Deponent verbs have Perfect Participles.

Perfect Participles Deponent have, as a rule, an Active meaning (v. Lessons 5 and 6), but some few are used Passively, e.g. oblītus, forgetting or forgot; meritus, deserving or deserved.

Thus:

aggressus (aggredior), having attacked.
locūtus (loquor), having spoken.
cohortātus (cohortor), having encouraged.
nactus (nanciscor), having met with, obtained.

The difference in use and meaning between the perf. part. pass. and the perf. part. dep. is shown by the following examples:

Passive:

Helvētiī, mīlitum concursū repulsī, sē recēpērunt.

The Helvētiv, having been repulsed (pass.) by the soldiers' onset, retreated.

Deponent:

- T. Labienus, hostium castrīs potītus, subsidium mīsit.
- T. Labiēnus, having got-possession-of (act.) the enemy's camp, sent reinforcements.

Why cannot 'Having defeated the enemy, Caesar broke down the bridge,' be translated Caesar, hostes victus, pontem rescidit? We shall learn later on how to translate such a phrase.

- 1. Helvētiī, hīs rēbus adductī et auctōritāte Orgetorigis permōtī, bellum parāre constituerunt.
- 2. regnī cupiditāte inductus coniūrātionem fēcit.
- 3. frūmentī commeātūs-que inopiā permōtus in prōvinciam contendit.
- 4. hostēs, nostrōs disiectōs adortī, proelium renovārunt (=renovāvērunt).
- 5. hīs litterīs commōtus Caesar duās legionēs conscrivsit.

¹ For the remainder of this Lesson perfect participles passive are printed in black type, perfect participles deponent in italics.

- 6. Helvētiī suppliciter locūtī flentēs pācem petunt.
- 7. eos impedītos et inopīnantēs aggressus magnam.
- 8. dux suīs, novitāte pugnae perturbātīs (what case?), tempore opportūnissimō auxilium tulit.
- 9. Caesar, idōneam tempestātem nactus, tertiā ferē vigiliā solvit.
- 10. Germānī, supplicia cruciātusque Gallōrum veritī, apud Caesarem remanēre māluērunt (preferred).

Latīnē reddite:

The soldiers of the ninth and tenth legions had taken-up-a-position on the left wing. They quickly drove towards (in. acc.) the river from the higher ground the Atrebatēs (who were) weakened (exanim-ö. 1. -āvī, -ātum) by-running and weariness and exhausted (con-ficiō. 3. -fēcī, -fectum) by wounds. Having followed them up (as they were) trying (pres. part.) to cross, they killed a great number of them thus distressed (imped-iō. 4. -īvī, -ītum).

They-themselves did not hesitate to cross the river, and having advanced to (some) uneven ground put-to-flight the enemy (who were) again resisting (pres. part.).

11 Latīnē reddite ·

- •1. Sabīnus, having-been-ordered to throw-away his arms, does what-is-ordered (imperātum, n.).
 - 2. Meanwhile they discuss-terms (dē condicionibus inter sē agere, 3.).
 - A long speech is designedly begun (instituö. 3.) by Ambiorix (-igis).
 - 4. Sabīnus, having been gradually surrounded, is killed.
 - 5. Then L. Cotta fighting bravely is killed with most (maxima pars, rtis) of the soldiers.
 - 6. The remainder retreat to the camp.
 - 7. Of them (swy'whom') the standard-bearer, having-been-surrounded by a multitude of enemies, throws the standard (aquila, ae, f.) within the stockade, (and) himself is killed fighting bravely (superl.) in-front-of the camp.
 - 8. A few having-escaped (perf. part. of lābor. 3. lapsus) from the battle reach (their) winter-quarters, and inform T. Labiēnus, the brigadier, of what-has-happened (rēs gestue, f. pl.).

THE PERFECT PARTICIPLE—(Continued).

Perfect Tenses of Verbs (Passive and Deponent).

The Perfect Participle is used with tenses of the verb sum to form the perfect, future perfect, and pluperfect tenses of Passive and Deponent verbs.

'Thus the perf. tense of vulneror (I am wounded) 'is as follows:—

vulnerātus, a, (um) sum, I have been, or I was es, thou hast been, or thou wast est, he, she, (it) has been, or

vulnerātī, ae, (a) sumus, we have been, or were estis, you have been, or were sunt, they have been, or were

Form perfect tenses with the following words, and repeat orally with the meaning of each person:—

vīsus, a, um, seen.

iussus, a, um, ordered.
locūtus, a, um, spoken (dep.).

interfectus, a, um, killed.
audītus, a, um, heard.
ēgressus, a, um, gone out (dep.).

factus, a, um, made (perf. part. of fiō v. Less. 5).

FUTURE PERFECT TENSE.

missus, a, (um) {

PLUPERFECT TENSE.

fugātus, a, (um) {eram, I had been erās, thou hadst been erat, he, she, (it) had been erātis, you had been erātis, you had been erant, they had been

- 1. hostēs ab nostrīs vīsī sunt (videō).
- 2. litterae ā duce missae erant (mittō).
- 3. lēgātus oppidum mūnīre iussus erat (iubeō).
- 4. noctū ex nobīs plerīque vulnerātī erimus.
- 5. urbs obsessa est $(obside\bar{o})$.
- 6. castra iam mūnīta erant.
- 7. ancorae de navibus iactae sunt (iacio).
- 8. num võs, mīlitēs, hostium clāmēribus territī erātis (terreē)?
- 9. barbarorum copiae iam fugătae erunt.
- 10. agmen iümentīs impedītum est (impedio).
- 11. castra sub colle posita erant $(p\bar{o}n\bar{o})$.
- 12. tēla ē locō superiōre in nostrōs coniecta sunt (cōniciō).

LECTIO.

Rōmānī in summō perīculō versantur,

Iamque amplius hōrīs sex continenter pugnābātur, āc nōn sōlum vīrēs sed etiam tēla nostrīs dēficiēbant, atque hostēs ācrius instābant, rēs-que erat iam ad extrēmum perducta cāsum, cum P. Sextius Baculus, quem Nervicō procliō complūribus confectum vulneribus diximus, et item C. Volusēnus, vir et consilī magnī et virtūtis ad ducem accurrunt atque ūnam spem salūtis in ēruptiōne consistere dēmonstrant. Itaque centuriōnēs celeriter convocātī mīlitēs hīs verbīs certiōrēs facere iussī sunt—'paulisper intermittite proclium, ac tantummodo tēla missa excipite, vosque ex labōre reficite, post datō signō ex castrīs ērumpite, atque omnem spem salūtis in virtūte pōnite!'

pugnābātur, the battle had lasted, lit. 'it was being fought' (v. Less. 25).

res erat ad extremum . . . casum, matters had reached a crisis, lil. 'the matter had been brought to the last emergency.'

Nervicum proelium, the battle with the Nervii. diximus, we have mentioned (dicō. 3. dixī, dictum). consistere dēmonstrant, show to consist (v. p. 88). mīlitēs, acc. case. tantummodo, merely.

Perfect Participle and $Verb = Two \ Verbs$.

The perf. part. is often used with a verb where in English we use two verbs.

This is because Latin prefers Subordinate (or Dependent) sentences to Co-ordinate (or Principal) sentences, and has generally only one Principal verb in a sentence.

Thus 'he took and burnt the city' is expressed in Latin—urbem captam incendit

i.e. 'he burnt the captured city, on the city havingbeen-captured.'

Similarly:-

nostrī hostes perterritos in fugam coniciunt.

our men terrify the enemy and put them to flight. (lit, 'put to flight the terrified enemy.') postquam Belgārum copiās coactās ad se venīre¹ vīdit.¹

when he saw the forces of the Belgue collected and coming to him.

(lit. 'the forces of the Belgae having-been-collected coming.') hostēs copias ex castrīs ēductās instruxerant.

the *nemy had led-out their forces from camp and drawn them up.

(lit. 'had drawn up their forces having-been-led-out.')

Anglice transferte:

- 1. qui primi flumen transierant ab equitibus circumdatī interficiuntur.
- 2. dux ipse equō dēiectus fortissimē, quoad potuit, restitit
- 3. hostēs Commium ē nāvī ēgressum comprehendērunt
- 4. Gallī interdum uxōrēs ignī tormentīs-que excruciātās interficiēbant.
- 5. hostes in fugam coniectī silvās petierunt.
- · 6. Britannorum manūs, multitūdine nāvium perterritae, ā lītore discesserant.
 - 7. ea legiō ūna ex tribus erat, quās proximē conscriptās Caesar ex Ītaliā trāduxerat.
 - 8. nuntii ad Caesarem mittebantur, quörum pars dēprehensa in conspectū nostrōrum mīlitum cum cruciatū necābātur.

LESSON 12.

FREQUENTATIVE AND INCEPTIVE VERBS.

Frequentative verbs are those which express repeated or intenser action. Thus from

- veniō. 4., I come, is formed ventit-ō. 1. -āvī, I come often, keep coming.
- terreō. 2., I frighten, is formed territ-ō. 1. -āvī, I keep frightening.
- occulō. 3., I cover, is formed occult-ō. 1. -āvī, I hide, secrete.
- concurrō. 3., I run-together, is formed concurs-ō. 1. -āvī, I rush about, hither and thither.
- All Frequentative verbs are of the First Conj.

Inceptive (or Inchoative) verbs are those which express the beginning of an action. Thus:

- mātūrō. 1., I ripen; mātūrescō. 3., I begin to ripen.
- invetero. I make old; inveterasco. 3., I grow old, become established.

Inceptive verbs end in -sco; are of the Third Conj.; and Intransitive.

- 1. Dumnorix saepe clāmitans interficitur.
- 2. omnës ferë Galliae cīvitātës de bello consultābant.
- 3. Titūrius trepidāre et concursāre incipit.

- 4. mercātorēs ad Suēvos multum ventitāre solēbant.
- 5. Cassivellaunus locīs impedītīs sēsē occultābat.
- 6. iam in agrīs frūmentum mātūrescere incipiēbat.
- 7. tempore inveterascunt consuĕtūdinės.
- 8. vīno relanguescunt animī.
- 9. Belgae exercitum Rōmānum in Galliā inveterascere nōluērunt.
- 10. noctū hostēs in silvīs dēlituerant (dēlitescō, 3).

Vīvā Vāce:

1. quid faciens Dumnorix occīditur? 2. quā parte annī mātūrescunt frūmenta? 3. ubi Cassivellaunus sēsē occultat? 4. quī ad Suēvōs ventitābant? 5. quōmodo inveterascunt mōrēs? 6. nonne vīnō relanguescit animus? 7. ubi hostēs dēlitescunt? 8. nonne fābulae līberōrum mentēs saepe territant?

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. vīno remolles---- hominēs.
- 2. aestāt— frūmenta mātūresc—— sol— (pres.).
- 3. mīlitēs aegrī in castrīs relict— mox convalesc—— (fut.).
- 4. pars hominum in castr— ventitā—, pars in agrīs remanēbat.
- 5. Ambiorigis cōpi— in insidiīs sēsē occultāv—— (pluperf.).
- 6. Caesar, postquam ad sē princip— cīvitātis ēvocāvit, alios territ— (pres.), alios cohortāt— (pres.).

LECTIO.

Britannia.

*Caesar quinto suo de bello Gallico libro de Britannia sīc scrībit—'insula nātūrā triquetra, cūius ūnum latus est contrā Galliam. Hūius lateris alter angulus, quī est ad (in) Cantium, quō ferē omnēs ex Galliā nāvēs appelluntur, ad orientem sölem, inferior ad merīdiem spectat. Hoc pertinet circiter milia passuum quingenta. Alterum (latus) vergit ad Hispāniam atque occidentem sõlem; quā ex parte est Hibernia dimidiō minor, ut existimatur, quam Britannia, sed parī spatio transmissus atque ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hōc mediō cursū est insula quae appellātur Mona. Hūius est longitūdō lateris, ut fert Britannōrum opīnio, septingentorum mīlium. Tertium (latus) est contră septentriones, cui parti nulla est obiecta terra; sed ēius lateris angulus maxime ad Germāniam spectat. Hoc milia passuum octingenta in longitudinem esse existimătur. Ita omnis insula est in circuită vicies centum mīlium passuum.

ut existimātur, as it is thought.

transmissus, ūs, m., a crossing; translate 'the crossing (from Ireland to Britain) is the same distance as that from Gaul to Britain.'

in hōc mediō cursū, in the middle of this voyage.

Mona, the Isle of Man.

fert, asserts.

Explain the abl. $d\tilde{\imath}midi\tilde{o}$. How far is Caesar's geography in the above account accurate?

The verb consuesco.

consuesco, I accustom myself, is principally used in the Perfect tenses with a Present meaning.

Thus consuēvī, 'I have accustomed myself, i.e. 'I am accustomed' (cf. $cogn\bar{o}v\bar{v}$, perf. of $cognosc\bar{o}$).

In the tenses of the Perfect Stem a syncopated (short) form is used:

consuestī for consuēvistī.

consuestis " consuēvistis.

consuērunt " consuēverūt.

consuērō " consuēverō.

consuēram " consuēveram.

perf. infin. consuesse " consuēvisse.

consuescō (like soleō) takes the Infin. mood.

- 1. victores victis stipendium imponere consuerunt.
- 2. lūna plēna aestūs maximos efficere consuēvit.
- Britannī essedāriīs atque equitātū in proeliīs ūtī consuērunt.
- 4. dux nāvēs paulō facit humiliōres quam quibus (those which) ūtī consuēvimus.
- 5. Cōrus ventus in Morinōrum fīnibus magnam partem omnis temporis flāre consuēvit.
- Gallī līberös suōs, nisi cum adolēvērunt (adolescō.
 3.), ad sē palam adīre non patiuntur.

LESSON 13.

THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE

The construction known as the 'Ablative Absolute' is one of the commonest in Latin.

A phrase is said to be 'absolute' when it is not affected by the construction of the remainder of its sentence, or when the sentence is complete without it.

Most languages have an 'absolute' case.

In English the nominative is the 'absolute' case. e.g. He being present, I felt safe.

The weather being fine, we started early.

In French, too, the nominative is the 'absolute' case.
e.g. Le général étant arrivé, la revue commença.
the general having arrived, the review began.

In Greek the genitive is the 'absolute' case.

In Latin the ablative is the 'absolute' case, and the abl. absolute construction has many shades of meaning, expressive of time, cause, manner, accompaniment, etc., which will best be understood from the examples overleaf.

Temporal (Time)

diē constitūtā.

when a day had been appointed (on the appointed day).

omnibus rēbus comparātīs.

when everthing had been made ready (everything having been made ready).

quiētā Galliā.

when Gaul was quiet (Gaul being quiet).

M. Messallā et M. Pīsone consulibus.

when Marcus Messalla and Marcus Pīsō were consuls (in the consulship of M. Messalla, etc.).

N.B.—There is no verb in the last two examples. Why not? v. p. 23, note (4).

Causal (Cause, Reason):

tot detrimentis acceptis.

because so many losses had been experienced.

sinistrā impedītā.

as their left hands were encumbered.

languidiōribus nostrīs.

as our-men were more weary.

Manner:

destrictis ensibus, with drawn swords.
equō admissō, at full-speed (with horse let-go).
iactīs ancorīs, lying at anchor (with anchors dropped).

Accompaniment:

sē praesente, in his presence.

eō deprecatore, with him as intercessor.

petentibus Rēmīs, at the request of the $R\bar{e}m\bar{i}$ (the $R\bar{e}m\bar{i}$ requesting).

Conditional (if):

datā facultāte, if an opportunity were given. interceptā epistulā, if the letter were intercepted. Sēquanīs invītīs, if the Sēquanī were unwilling.

It will be seen from the above examples that the ablative absolute construction consists of a noun or pronoun with another word in agreement.

This word is usually either (1) a participle (perf. part. pass. very common); or (2) an adjective; or (3) another noun.

Note also in how many different ways it is possible to translate the abl. absol. according to context:

e.g. quō factō, after this (lit. 'which having-been-done').

flörentissimīs rēbus, in a time of prosperity (lit. 'matters (being) very flourishing').

rēbus despērātīs, in despair (lit. 'matters havingbeen-despaired-of').

despērātā salūte, despairing of safety.

eā rē impetrātā, permission being given (lit. 'this thing having-been-obtained by request').

Verbō 1 reddite:

- 1. corn having-been-collected (comparō. 1.).
- 2. a shelter ($test\bar{u}d\bar{o}$, inis, f.) having-been-made:
- 3. our ranks having-been-thrown-into-confusion.
- 4. when all Gaul had been pacified (say 'all Gaul having been pacified,' pācō. 1.).
- 5. at the beginning of summer (say 'summer having-been-entered-upon,' in-eō, -īre, -iō, -ium).
- 6. when he had found-out this (say 'these matters having-been-found-out,' cog-noscō. 3. -nōvī, -nitum).
- 7. as this matter had been settled (say 'this matter having been settled,' con stituō. 3. stituī, stitūtum).
- 8. having accomplished a long march (say 'a long march having-been-accomplished,' con-ficiō. 3. -fēcī, -fectum).
- 9. when the mountain had been taken (say 'the mountain having-been-taken') and our-men were coming-up (pres. part. of succēdö. 3.).
- 10. when mantlets had been brought-up (ago. 3. ēgī, actum) to the walls, an outwork thrown-up (iaciō. 3.) and towers built (con-stituō 3.) (say 'mantlets having-been etc., an outwork having-been etc., towers having-been, etc.').

Anglice reddite:

1. Caesar prīmum (equum) suum, deinde omnium equōs ex conspectū remōvit.

1 Verbally, orally.

- 2. sīc omnium perīculum aequāvit, et spem fugae sustulit (tollō. 3.).
- 3. tum cohortātus suos proelium commīsit.
- 4. mīlitēs ē locō superiōre pīla mīsērunt, et facile hostium phalangem perfrēgērunt.
- 5. postquam eam (i.e. phalangem) disiēcērunt (dīs-iciō. 3.), gladiōs destrinxērunt, et in hostēs impetum fēcērunt.

Observe how Caesar combines the above sentences by means of ablatives absolute 'Caesar prīmum $su\bar{o}$, deinde omnium $equ\bar{\imath}s$ ex conspectū $rem\bar{o}t\bar{\imath}s$, omniumque $per\bar{\imath}cul\bar{o}$ sīc $aequ\bar{a}t\bar{o}$, et $sp\bar{e}$ fugae $subl\bar{a}t\bar{a}$, cohortātus suōs proelium commīsit. Mīlitēs ē locō superiore $p\bar{\imath}l\bar{\imath}s$ $miss\bar{\imath}s$ facile . . . perfrēgērunt. $E\bar{a}$ $disiect\bar{a}$ $gladi\bar{\imath}s$ $destrict\bar{\imath}s$ in hostēs . . . fēcērunt.'

How many Principal verbs are there in the above? Which are they?

Translate in more than one way:

- 1. oppidīs vīcīs-que exustīs (e.v-ūrō. 3.).
- 2. paucīs mūrum dēfendentibus.
- 3. oculis intentis.
- 4. trāditīs ($tr\bar{a}d\bar{o}$. 3.) armīs.

THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE—(Continued.)

LECTIO.

Caesar cum Britannīs bellum gerit.

Equitēs hostium essedāriī-que ācriter proeliō cum equitātū nostrō in itinere conflixērunt. Nostrī tamen omnibus partibus superiōrēs fuērunt, atque eōs in silvās collēs-que compulērunt.

Hostium complūribus interfectīs i nostrī cupidius insecūtī nonnullōs ex suīs āmīsērunt. At illī, intermissō spatiō, imprūdentibus nostrīs atque occupātīs in mūnitiōne castrōrum, subitō sē ex castrīs ēiēcērunt. Impetū factō, nostrīs-que novō genere pugnae perterritīs, per mediōs audācissimē perrūpērunt.

Eō diē Q. Laberius Dūrus, tribūnus mīlitum, interficitur. Illī plūribus submissīs cohortibus repelluntur.

In the following exercise where words are printed in italic type, the ablative absolute construction is to be used.

Latīnē reddite ·

The Britons, having learnt the Romans' plan and having sent forward cavalry and charioteers, followed-up with the rest of their forces.

This method (genus, eris, n.) of fighting they are accustomed to-use $(\bar{p}t\bar{t})$ in battle (pl.).

Our-men were hampered by-this (fact), namely-that (quod) the ships owing-to their size could not be-formed $(constitu\bar{\imath})$ except in deep-water $(altum, \bar{\imath}, n.)$.

Also they were fighting in-places unknown (to them), with-their hands hindered, and weighed-down by the heavy burden of their armour.

The enemy on-the-other-hand either from the dry-land ($\bar{a}ridum$, $\bar{\imath}$, n.) or having-advanced a-little into the water, with-all their limbs unencumbered, in-places quite-familiar (superl. of $n\bar{o}tus$, a, um) boldly hurled their weapons.

Accordingly our-men did not display (say 'use') the same keenness and zeal as (say 'which') they were accustomed to display in foot skirmishes.

In the following exercise words in black type are to be put in the ablative absolute.

LESSON 15.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

Substantival Form.

Adjectival Form.

For the declension of the above, see Grammar at end of Book. Generally speaking they are declined like quis or qui. Of them quis is the least, quidam the most definite.

aliquis is as a rule only used in affirmative expressions.

quis is generally found after $s\bar{s}$, nisi (unless), num? nē (lest, that . . . not, v. Less. 38 and 41).

quisquam is used in negative and interrogative sentences.

nēmō, no one, is used in the sing. only and is declined thus:—Nom. nēmō, Acc. nēminem, Gen. nullīus, Dat. nullī or nēminī, Abl. nullō, ā, ō.

- 1. Caesar aliquem ē lēgātīs suīs mittit.
- 2. aliquid novī consilī (something of a new plan, i.e.
- some new plan) ā barbarīs initum est $(in-e\bar{o})$.
- 3. sī quid gravius acciderit, nos recipere cogēmur.
- 4. num quis Cicerone facundior erat?
- 5. Suēvī nihil vestītūs (nothing of clothing, i.e. no clothing) praeter pellëshabent.
- 6. loca, portūs, aditūs Britanniae—haec omnia Gallīs erant incognita. Neque enim temerē praeter mercātōrēs illō adit quisquam, neque eīs ipsīs (i.e. mercātōribus) quicquam praeter ōram maritimam nōtum est.
- 7. idöneum quemdam hominem dēlēgērunt.
- 8. quösdam dē hostium exercitū habēmus captīvõs.
- 9. refractīs portīs (abl. absol.) nēmō oppidum diūtius dēfendēbat.
- 10. nēmō mēcum sine perniciē suā contendet (will strive).

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. The scouts caught-sight-of some squadrons of the enemy's cavalry.
- A certain Q. Iūnius from Spain was sent to-discuss (suprine of agō. 3. dē) terms.
- 3. Why do you expect any-help (say 'anything of help') from us?
- 4. If any one having-received-a-severe-wound (abl. absol.) fell (pluperf.) from his horse, his comrades surrounded (imperf.) him.

- *5. Although (etsī) no one follows (fut.) me, yet I will-go (fut. part. with esse) with one legion only.
- Caesar will persuade a certain soldier to-take (ut dēferat) a letter to Cicerō.

The 'double alius' construction.

alius followed directly by another alius is used as follows:—

alius aliam causam inferēbat.

one man alleged one reason, another another (i.e. various reasons were alleged, or different men alleged different reasons).

aliae alia in parte legiones resistunt.

some legions stand their ground in one part (of the field), some in another.

alius aliī subsidium ferunt.

one man succours one, another another (i.e. all are helping each other).

Verbō transferte:

- 1. in senibus aliquid bonī consilī plērumque in-est.
- 2. quīdam ē tribūnīs occīsus erat.
- 3. aliquid calamitatis acceptum est.
- 4. num quis vestrum locūtus est?
- 5. nēmo resistēbat.
- 6. aliuş aliā ex nāvī ēgrediēbantur.
- 7. nihil prīvātī agrī apud Suēvos erat.
- 8. aliī alīam in partem perterritī fūgērunt.
- 9. iamque non multum aestātis super-erat.

LESSON 16.

INDEFINITE AND RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

The Indefinite pronoun quisque, quaeque, quodque (quicque), each, every, everybody, is declined as follows:—

Case.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	quisque	quaeque	(quodque (adj.)
Acc.	quemque	quamque	$\begin{cases} \text{quodque } (adj.) \\ \text{quicque } (subst.) \end{cases}$
Gen.	cū	iusque (all gene
Dat.		ique (all gender	,
Abl.	q uõque	quāque	quōque

The plural is like that of quis with the suffix -que added.

quisque is most commonly used in close connection with (1) the possessive adj. suus, a, um, and (2) the reflexive pronoun.

N.B. suus and sibi generally stand next to quisque.

e.g. sua quisque $m\bar{\imath}$ les $circumspici\bar{e}$ bat.

each soldier was looking over his belongings. testēs suae quisque virtūtis habuit.

every man had a witness of his own bravery.

Helvētiī cibāria sibi quemque domō efferre iubent.

the Helvētiī order each man to take from home a food supply for himself.

• latrocinia, quae extră fines cuiusque civitătis fiunt, nullam apud Germanos habent infamiam.

robberies, which are committed outside the boundaries of each state, are accounted no disgrace amongst the Germans.

quisque with the superlative is used in universal statements:—

e.g. doctissimus 1 quisque, each (most) learned man, i.e. all the (most) learned men.

antiquissimum quodque tempus, all the (most) ancient times.

sapientissimī cūiusque opera, the works of all the wise(st) men.

Note the phrases:

pro se quisque, each for himself.

decimus quisque, every tenth man.

e.g. vix decimus quisque mīles sine vulnere relinquitur.

Relative.

The Relative quīcumque, quaecumque, quodcumque, whoever, every one who, is declined like quī with the addition of the suffix -cumque.

e.g. omnibus, quīcumque bellum inferunt, resistimus. we resist whoever wage war on us.

ite quascumque in partes vultis!

Quod $d\bar{e}$ - est suppeditate:

- l. nostrī omni—, quaecumque hostēs in castrīs relīqu—— (pluperf.), potiuntur.
- 2. domum su— quisque revertī (pres. infin. of revertor. 3.) coepit.
- 3. Caesar hostēs, quibuscumque rēb— poterat, coerc— statuit.
- 4. summum honor— locum s—— quisque petit.
- 5. quaecumque ad oppugnātio— opus sunt, noctū compar—— (pres. pass.).
- 6. dux obsidės nobilissimi cūius—poscit.

LECTIO.

Gallī aggerem Rōmānum incendunt.

Rōmānī, quī Avāricum, Gallōrum oppidum, obsidēbant, singulārī incolārum sollertiā atque virtūte iamdiū tardābantur. Tandem nostrī continentī labōre diēbus xxv aggerem lātum pedēs cccxxx altum pedēs lxxx exstruxērunt. Iamque is hostium mūrum paene contingēbat, et Caesar consuētūdine suā ad opus excubābat, cum paulō ante tertiam vigiliam hostēs cunīculō aggerem succendunt.

Eōdem tempore tōtō mūrō clāmōrc sublātō ab utrōque latere turium ēruptiō fīēbat. Aliī facēs atque āridam māteriem dē mūrō in aggerem ēminus iaciēbant, picem reliquās-que rēs, quibus ignis excitātur, fundēbant. Nostrī prīmō perturbātī trepidāre et concursāre, post paulum, quia duae semper legionēs pro castrīs excubăbant plūrēs-que erant in opere, aliī ēruptionibus resistere aliī aggerem interscindere coepērunt.

excubō. 1., I keep watch.
cunīculus, ī, m., a mine (milit.).
clāmōre sublāto, what constr.?

trepidāre et concursáre, sc. coepērunt.

plūrēs, many, several.

down, cut gaps in.

Vīvā Vōce:

1. quod oppidum ā nostrīs obsidēbātur? 2. quibus rēbus nostrī tardābantur? 3. ubi Caesar excubābat? 4. quotā hōrā et quōmodo hostēs aggerem succendunt? 5. nonne facibus et pice excitātur ignis? 6. quot legionēs prō castrīs excubābant? 7. quārē nostrī prīmō perturbātī sunt?

LESSON 17.

THE-GERUND.

The Gerund is a verbal noun (neuter) ending in -ndum, and corresponds to English verbal nouns ending in -ing.

It governs the same case as the verb from which it comes.

Thus:

ōrandum (ōrō. 1.), asking. • loquendum (loquor. 3.), speaking.
mittendum (mittō. 3.), sending.
capiendum (capiō. 3.), taking.

The Gerund is formed from the Present Stem of verbs by adding -ndum. Verbs of the 4th and 'Mixed' conjugations affix e to the Present Stem before adding this ending.

Thus:

Verb.	Verb Stem.	Gerund.
pugnö. 1. moned. 2. sequor. 3. faciö. 3. ('Mired') orior. 4.	pugnā- monē- seque- faci- orī-	pugna- ndum mone- ndum seque -ndum faci- e-ndum ori- e-ndum

Declension of the Gerund.

The nominative of the Gerund, except in the meaning of necessity (see below) is supplied by the Present Infinitive:

e.q. currere incundum est, running is pleasant.

The oblique (other than nominative) cases of the Gerund are verbal nouns, as shown in the following table:—

Acc. ad loquendum aptus, clever at speaking.

Gen. loquendi facultas, an opportunity of speaking.

Dat. loquendo student, they apply themselves to speaking.

Abl. loquendo impetrant, they gain their request by speaking.

Uses of the Gerund.

The nominative of the Gerund has the meaning of necessity, and in Classical Latin is confined to Intransitive verbs. The Agent is put in the dative case.

- e.g. nostrīs mīlitibus (dat.) et dē nāvibus dēsiliendum, et in fluctibus consistendum, et eum hostibus pugnandum erat.
 - our soldiers had to jump down from the ships, and stand in the breakers, and fight the enemy (lit. 'there was jumping down and standing and fighting for our soldiers').

 $^{^{1}}$ Or Transitive verbs used absolutely, e.g. time ö, exspectō, v. Less. 25.

THE OBLIQUE CASES OF THE GERUND.

- (1) The Gerund depending on Nouns:
- mittendī causa, the reason of sending.
 örandī fīnis, an end of beseeching.
 pracdandī spēs, hope of getting booty.
 pugnandī tempus, fighting time.
- (2) The Gerund depending on Adjectives:
 bellandī cupidus, fond of war.
 nāvigandī insuētus, unused to sailing.
- (3) The Gerund governed by a Preposition:

ad:

ad pugnandum alacer, eager to fight.
animus ad dimicandum parātus, spirits ready for battle.

mīlitēs in metendō occupātī, soldiers busy reaping.

in quaerendo reperiobat, in (the course of his) search, he found out.

(4) Gerund after causā:

mīlitēs cohortandī causā profectus est, he set out for the sake of exhorting the soldiers.

praedandī, pābulandī causā, for the sake of getting booty, forage.

- Gerundial phrases are printed in black type.
- 1. ad celeritātem onerandī nāvēs paulā humiliōrēs factae sunt.
- 2. nulla nostrīs facultās aut nāvēs administrand aut auxiliandī dabātur.

- 3. nox fīnem oppugnandī fēcit.
- 4. hāc ōrātiōne multō māius studium pugnandī exercituī iniectum est.
- 5. dux loquendī fīnem facit.
- 6. ille locus nēquāquam ad ēgrediendum idōneus erat.
- 7. Suēvīs longius annō remanēre ūnō in locō incolendī causā non licuit (licet. 2).
- 8. eī, quī frūmentandī causā trans Mosam ierant, nondum red-ierant.

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. Galba was ordered to leave a legion to-winter (causā with gen. of gerund) in those parts.
- 2. A large part of the cavalry had been sent across the Mosa some days (abl.) before to-get (causā) booty (gerund of praedor. 1.) and forage (gerund of frūmentor. 1.).
- 3. Our cavalry drove the enemy headlong, and gave them no chance (say 'nor gave them chance') either of standing-their-ground (consistō. 3.) or of jumping from their chariots.
- 4. Next-day according-to his custom Caesar drew-up his army (aciēs, ēī, f.), and gave the enemy a chance of fighting.
- 5. The time was unsuitable for (ad) harassing the enemy, and engaging-battle.
- 6. Caesar discovered the causes of the conspiracy (gerund of coniūrō. 1.).

- 7. When-the-camp-had-been-fortified (abl. absol.) the
- general began to bring-up (agō. 3.) mantlets, and
- to collect what (say 'those-things which') was useful (\(\bar{u}su\bar{v}\)) for (ad) a siege (gerund of oppugn\(\bar{v}\). 1.).
- 8. The enemy by their hesitation and appearance (opīniō, ōnis, f.) of fear made our soldiers more-ready (alacer, cris, cre) for the fray.
- 9. Ropes, anchors, and the rest-of their tackle (armā-menta, ōrum, n. pl.) having been lost (abl. absol.) the ships were useless for (ad) sailing.
- 10. As no interval (spatium, $t\bar{\imath}$, n.) was given (abl. absol.) for (say 'of') taking arms the Germans were thrown into great confusion.

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. pugnand- causă restitit nē—.
- 2. dux explōrāt—— speculand— causā praemīs—.
- 3. spatium pīla in hostēs conici—— non dabātur.
- 4. eques quīd— Rōmānus colloquendī —— mittitur.
- 5. dat— sign— (abl. absol.) et sublāt— ancor— (abl. absol.) tertiā ferē vig—— nāvēs solvit.
- 6. cālōnēs praed—— causā ēgress— sunt.
- 7. nōbīs potestātem lēgāt— mittend— date!
- 8. Caesar pābula—— causā trēs legiōn— cum Cāiō Trebōniō lēgāt— mīs—— (pluperf.).

For the Gerund used after such verbs as existimō, arbitror, statuō, etc., vide Less. 25.

LESSON 18.

THE GERUNDIVE.

The Gerundive is a verbal adjective and is formed, like the Gerund, from the Present Stem of verbs by adding -ndus, a, um, etc.

Only Transitive verbs have a Gerundive (v. Note p. 75).

In all its uses the Gerundive is Passive, as opposed to the Gerund, which is Active.

Nominative of the Gerundive expressing Necessity.

The meaning of the Gerundive in the nominative case is Necessity or Obligation (cf. nom. of the gerund).

e.g. ille vir laudandus est.

that man is praiseworthy, or deserving of praise, or to be praised.

illa silva vītanda est.

haec carmina legenda sunt.

these poems are worth reading (to be read).

The Agent is put in the dative case (cf. gerund).

e.g. nöbīs hōc flūmen transeundum est.

we have to cross this river (lit. 'this river is for us to-be-crossed').

Caesarī omnia erant agenda.

Caesar had to do everything (lit. 'everything was for Caesar to-be-done').

When to use the Gerundive in preference to the Gerund.

Instead of the oblique cases of the Gerund, with an object in the acc. case, the Gerundive is usually substituted with the same meaning as the Gerund would have had. The object is put in the case in which the Gerund would have been, and the Gerundive, being an adjective, agrees with the object in gender, number, and case.

Gerundive.

Gerund.

ad eās rēs conficiendās.

for completing those things (lit.

'for those things to be completed').

in consiliīs capiendīs.

in forming plans.

dē reciperandā libertātē.

about recovering liberty.

pācis petendae causā.

testūdō mīlitibus tegendīs.

a shelter for protecting soldiers.

ad eās rēs conficiendum. (not found in Classical Latin).

in consilia capiendō.
(very rare in Classical Latin).
dē reciperandō libertātem.
(very rare in Classical Latin).
pācem petendī causā.

testūdō mīlitēs tegendō. (not found in Classical Latin).

LECTIO.

Quae ducī agenda sunt.

Caesarī omnia ūnō tempore erant agenda¹: vexīllum, quod erat insigne, prōpōnendum (erat); signum tubā dandum (erat); mīlitēs ab opere revocandī (erant); eī, quī paulō longius aggeris petendī causā prōcesserant, arcessendī erant; aciēs instruenda (erat); mīlitēs cohortandī (erant).

Tum necessāriis rēbus imperātīs ad cohortandōs mīlitēs dēcucurrit. Eōs nōn longā ōrātiōne cohortātus proelī committendī signum dedit. Nōn modo ad insignia accommódanda sed etiam ad galeās induendās seūtīs-que tegimenta dētrūdenda tempus dē-erat.

vexillum proponere, to raise the flag (displayed on the general's tent as a signal for battle).

insignia, the ornaments or badges of distinction (worn probably on the helmet).

tegimenta detrudere, to remove the covers.

Latīnē vertenda:

- 1. Sabīnus by-night secretly sets-out for-the-sake-of bringing help to Caesar.
- 2. The general chose a spot in-front-of the camp suitable by nature for drawing-up his army (ad with gerundive).
- 3. All (kinds of) torture (pl.) were to be endured (perferō. 3.) by-the Sēquanī (what case?).
- 4. Caesar set-out for hither Gaul to hold $(ag\bar{o}. 3.)$ the assizes.
 - ¹ Gerundival phrases are printed in black type.

- 5. In forming plans (in with abl. of gerundive) the Gauls are changeable (mobilis, e).
- 6. While Caesar stays (moror. 1.) in these places to prepare (causā with gerundive) ships, ambassadors come to him from-all-sides.
- 7. No one wished to waste (dīmittō. 3.) fightingtime (say 'time of fighing)' by looking-for
 - (in with abl. of gerundive of quaerō. 3.) his own standard (pl.).
- 8. The general left (behind) all the corn which he had brought-down (dē-vehō. 3. -vexī) thither to support (causā with gerundive) the winter.

Verbō transferte:

- 1. ad dücendum bellum.
- 2. in commemorandă calamităte.
- 3. commeātūs petendī causā.
- 4. in pāce petendā.
- 5. mihi idem faciendum est quod tibi.
- 6. bellī inferendī causā.
- 7. parātī ad perīcula subeunda sumus.
- 8. in hīs administrandīs rēbus.
- 9. dīmissīs per agrōs nuntiīs.
- 10. dux sibi quemque consulere iussit.
- 11. occāsiō ulciscendī Rōmānōs.
- 12. quibuscumque rēbus possum, officiō meö fungor.

LESSON 19.

THE GERUNDIVE (continued).

The Gerundive depending on Nouns:

(1) in the genitive.

tempus committendī proelī, time for (of) engaging baitle (lit. 'time of battle to-be-engaged').

consilium bellī renovandī, a plan of renewing the war.

praedae faciendae facultās, a chunce of getting booty. spēs regnī obtinendī, hope of maintaining the throne. occāsiō suī līberandī,¹ an opportunity of freeing themselves.

(2) in the dative:

tempus collocandīs rēbus, time for arranging matters. dies hībernīs oppugnandīs, the day for attacking the winter quarters.

$Anglic\bar{e}\ transferenda:$

- nostrī subitā ēruptione factā hostibus suī colligendī facultātem auferunt.
- 2. Caesar bellī gerendī facultātem propter annī tempus non habuit.
- 3. dux signum proelī intermittendī dedit.
- 4. nostrīs dēfessīs nē locī quidem relinquendī facultās erat.

- 5. ab hīs fit initium retinendorum lēgātorum.
- 6, occāsiō negōtī bene gerendī āmittenda non erat.
- 7. propter lätitüdinem rapiditätem-que flüminis difficultäs faciendī pontis summa erat.
- 8. in hōc proeliō mīlitum virtūs admodum laudanda fuit.

Gerundive with cūrō, I see-to, attend to, cause to be done.

Caesar pontem in Ararī faciendum cūrat.

Caesar causes a bridge to be built over the Arar.

Sabīnus hostium manūs distinendās cūrat.

Sabinus sees to the hostile bands being kept apart.

 $exercitum \ long \bar{\imath}s$ nāvibus transportandum cūrāverat.

He had caused the army to be transported in the men-of-war.

Note.—The Gerundive is properly found only of such Transitive verbs as govern an accusative case (v. p. 70).

Thus such instances as spēs oppidī potiundī, spēs castrōrum potiundōrum are exceptional, and due to the fact that potior occasionally governs the acc., as well as the abl. and gen.

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. propter tempestāt— mīlitēs itineris faciend— facultāt— non habuērunt.
- 2. nonne in bello locus virtutis su— cuique proband— est?
- 3. haec rēs ad negōtium confici—— opportūnissima erat.

Latīnē reddenda:

- 1. I must think-over (cōgitō. 1.) this matter (say 'this matter is to-be-thought-over by me').
- 2. Caesar sent the cavalry to pursue (consector. 1.) the fugitives (ad with gerundive).
- 3. Nothing ought-to-be-entrusted to those who are unstable in forming plans (in with abl. of gerundive).
- 4. The arrogance of Ariovistus seemed unbearable (say 'not to be borne').
- 5. We must not lose an opportunity of freeing ourselves for-ever (in perpetuum) (say 'an opportunity is not to-be-lost,' etc.).
- 6. Aquītānia is to-be-reckoned ($aestim\bar{o}$. 1.) as (ex) a third part of Gaul.
- 7. They promised a large supply of ships to transport the army (ad with gerundive).
- 8. In-a long (longinquus, a, um) siege famine is tobe-feared.

For the Gerundive used in Indirect Discourse after such verbs as putō, intellegō, arbitror, statuō, vide Less. 25.

LECTIO.

Germānī ā Caesare fugantur.

Mīlitēs nostrī pristinī dieī perfidiā incitātī in Germānōrum castra irrūpērunt. $Qu\bar{o}\ loc\bar{o}\ qu\bar{\imath}$ celeriter arma capere potuērunt, proeliō inter carrōs impedīmenta-que commissō, paulisper nostrīs restitērunt. - 13. Parse audācissimē, cogemur, quemquam, potītī eritis, cuique, frūmentātum, ūsūrus.
- 14. Give the other degrees of comparison of diū, celeriter, maximus, gravis, multum, plūs, plēnus, alacrior, summus, humilis.

LESSON 21.

THE INFINITIVE MOOD.

We saw in Less. 23 of my First Lat. Bk. that many Latin verbs, like their English equivalents, are followed by the Infinitive mood (Complementary Infinitive).

Such are possum, I am able, can.

coepī, I began.

dēbeō, I ought.

constituo, I determine.

soleo, I am accustomed. audeo, I dare.

Thus we say both in Latin and English dēbēmus rectē facere, we ought to do right.

potes-ne illud videre, are you able to (can you) see that?

Other similar verbs are volō, I wish.

nolo, I do not wish.

(v. Less. 12).

mālō, I prefer.

iubeor, I am ordered.

consuesco, I am accustomed

conor, I try (v. Less. 6). dicor, I am said.

Exempla verbō transferenda:

- 1. id quod constituī facere conabor.
- 2. dux hostes post tergum relinquere nolebat.
- 3. Suēvī centum pāgōs habēre dīcuntur.
- 4. prīmā lūce hostēs flūmen transīre conāti sunt.
- 5. nölīte ($imperative\ of\ n\"ol\~o$) eos dēserere, quī vestrae salūtis causā suum perīculum neglexērunt!

- 76. lēgātī obsidēs Caesarī dare constituunt.
 - 7. in eō locō diūtius remanēre non ausī sumus.
 - 8. hominės in libertate, quamvis dūra, permanėre quam servitūtem perferre mālunt.

Some of these verbs take an accusative with the Infinitive:

e.g. dux fabros pontem reficere iussit.

the general ordered the engineers to repair the bridge.

sī võs interficī nonvultis, arma põnite!

if you do not wish to be killed, lay down your arms!

Caesar lēgātōs discēdere vetuerat.

Caesar had forbidden the officers to depart.

All the above verbs are used as the corresponding verbs in English, but there are many others (mostly of saying, knowing, perceiving, and the like) followed in Latin by the accusative and infinitive, which in English take a different construction.

e.g. eōs ad-esse vīdit.

He saw that they were present (lit. 'them to be present').

sciō mē hōc facere posse.

I know that I can do this (lit. 'myself to be able to do').

vide Less. 22 sqq.

The following tables of the Infinitive mood should now be studied.

• • Verb comparō, I get together.

3	Active.	Passive.
Pres. Infin.	comparare, to get together.	comparări, to be got together.
Perf. Infin.	comparā(vi)sse, to have got together.	comparātus esse, to have been got to-

Formation of the Tenses of the Infinitive mood.1

From the Present Stem are formed (a) the pres. infin. act.

- (b) the presinfin pass.
- (c) the pres. infin. of Deponent verbs.

From the Perfect Stem is formed the perf. infin. act. From the Supine Stem are formed (a) the fut. infin. act.

- (b) the fut. infin. pass.
- (c) the perf. infin. pass.

From the Perf. Part. are formed the perf. and fut. infin. of Deponent verbs.

- N.B.—(1) the pres. infin. of all Passive and Deponent verbs ends in -ī.
 - (2) Deponent Verbs have the Active Form of the fut, infin.
 - (3) the 'esse' of the perf. pass, and fut, act. infin. is often omitted.
 - (4) the fut, infin. pass, is made up as follows:—
 the first part is the supine in -um, the second the pres. infin. pass, of eō, 1 go.

e.g. mīlitēs ēductum īrī pronuntiāvit.

he announced that the soldiers would be led out (lit. 'he announced that it is being gone to-lead-out' the soldiers').

spērāvit copiās iam comparātum īrī.
he hoped that forces would soon be got ready.

¹ This page is intended more for reference than to be learnt by heart.

² Supine in -um expressing purpose after a verb of motion, v. Less. 8.

But this construction is not common, futūrum ut or forc ut followed by the Subjunctive being often used instead, and necessarily so in the case of verbs having no supine.

Verbō transferenda:

Supply inbet or insit before each sentence in the following:—

- 1. obsidēs ad sē addūcī.
- 2. lēgātōs retinērī.
- 3. agmen sē subsequī.
- 4. classem convenire.
- 5. nāvēs longās aedificārī.
- 6. nautās gubernātērēs-que comparārī.
- 7. prīmam aciem in armīs esse.
- 8. fabros ex continenti arcessi.

$Lat\bar{\imath}n\bar{e}\ reddite$:

- 1. He did not wish (imperf.) these matters to be discussed (iactō. 1.) in-public (plūribus praesentibus).
- 2. The Sēquanī allow (pation. 3.) the Helvētiī to go through their territory.
- 3. The general forbade his-men to follow-up the fugitives (pres. part. of fugio. 3.).

- 4. He ordered the cavalry to advance (progredior. 3.) to the harbour and to go-on-board (nāvem conscendō. 3.) and to follow him.
- 5. He ordered two legions to be posted on the top-of the ridge (ivgum, \(\bar{v}\), n.), and the whole-of the mountain to be occupied (say 'filled with men') and the baggage to be carried (confer\(\bar{v}\). 3.) to one spot.
- 6. Do you not, soldiers, dare to attack (adorior. 4.) so (tam) small (exiguus, a, um) a band?
- 7. Next-day he hastens (mātūrō. 1) to leave (say 'set-out from') the city.
- 8. Seeing this (say 'which having been seen,' abl. absol.) he ordered the natives to be dislodged (summoveō. 2.) with slings and arrows.

coeptus sum followed by the Passive Infinitive.

The verb 'began' followed by the pass. infin. is translated not by $coep\bar{\imath}$, but by the passive, coeptus sum.

e.g. lapidēs iacī coeptī sunt (not coepērunt). stones began to be hurled. pons instituī coeptus est (not coepit). a bridge began to be built.

Similarly māteria comportarī coepta erat. rēs agī coeptae sunt.

Verbō reddite:

He orders:—

- 1. the bridge to be-pulled-down (rescindo. 3.).
- 2. the cavalry to be recalled (revocō. 1.).
- 3. the camp to be fortified with a taller stockade.
- 4. the gates to be blocked ($obstru\bar{o}$. 3.).
- 5. the warships to be removed a-little from the transports (nāvēs onerāriae, f. pl.),
- 6. and to be rowed-on (say 'urged-on by oars').
- 7. the line-of-battle to be drawn-up.
- 8. the brigadier to set-out at the fourth watch.

LESSON 22.

INDIRECT STATEMENT (ORATIO OBLĪQUA).

The following is a list of common verbs which are followed by the Infinitive mood, the subject of the Infinitive being put in the accusative case:—

video. 2., I see.

intellego. 3., I perceive.

sentiō. 4., I perceive, feel.

animum adverto. 3. I peranimadverto. 3.

cognoscō. 3., I get to know.

sciō. 4., I know.

reperio. 4., I find out, discover. invenio. 4., I find out.

dēmonstrō. 1., I point out.

polliceor, 2., I promise.

puto. 1., I think.

existimõ. 1., I'think.

arbitror. 1., I think.

dīcō. 3., I say.

negō. 1., I say no, deny.

respondeo. 2., I reply.

nuntiō. 1. prō-nuntiō. 1. I announce, re-nuntiō. 1.

crēdō. 3., I believe.

statuō. 3., I determine.

certior-em (-ēs) facio. 3., I inform. certior fīo, I am informed.

The above list should be committed to memory.

ōrātiō recta et oblīqua.

Speech ($\hat{o}r\bar{a}ti\bar{o}$), whether Direct (recta) or Indirect ($obl\bar{\imath}qua$), must take one of three forms, viz. either Statement, Command, or Question.

e.g. Direct Speech.

You are doing this (Statement).

Do this! (Command).

Are you doing this? (Question).

¹ Usually followed by the future infinitive.

Indirect Speech.

- . I see that you are doing this (Statement).
- Itell you to do this (Command).

I ask whether you are doing this (Question).

Indirect Statement is expressed in Latin by one of the above (or similar) verbs followed by the 'accusative and Infinitive.' ¹

Thus: video te hoc facere.

I see that you are doing this (lit. 'you to be doing').

video is called the Principal Verb.

facere " Dependent " •

Translate the sentences in the following table, and refer those in the 'Anglice reddenda' to their appropriate columns:—

- 2. Caesar reperiēbat plērosque Belgās ortōs esse ab Germānīs, Rhēnum antīquitus trāductōs esse, Gallōs-que expulisse.
- 3. dux hostes in castris nostris versari vidit.
- 4. eōdem diē ab explōrātōribus certior factus est hostēs sub monte consēdisse.
- 5. coniūrātionis principēs demonstrant sese nihil nisi communī consilio actūros (esse).
- 6. Caesar suös ab hostibus premī atque aegrē sustinēre animadvertit.
- 7. Cotta sē ad armātum hostem itūrum esse negat.
- pronuntiat dux postero die prima luce castra motum īrī.
- 9. lēgātī pollicitī sunt sē obsidēs datūros, atque imperāta factūros (esse).
- 10. Caesar ex captīvīs inveniēbat Sabim flūmen ab castrīs suīs non amplius mīlia passuum x abesse.

Write in Latin any five of the above sentences in the form of Direct speech.

e.g. in no. 1. the scout says 'mons ab hostibus tenētur.' in no. 7. Cotta says 'ad armātum hostem non ībo.'

- 5. dēmonstrat sē bellō cīvitāt— persec—— esse (fut infin. of persequor).
- 6. dux hostēs nostrōs insequ— (pres. infin.) animum-advertit.

N.B.—Sentence 6 can be translated in two ways. What are they ?

Notice that animum-adverto governs an acc. case, as if it were a single word. What does it mean literally?

LECTIÕ.

Caesar bellum contrā Suēvōs parat.

Interim paucīs post diebus fit ab Ubiīs certior Suevos omnes in ūnum locum copiās cogere atque nātionibus sibi vectīgālibus auxilia peditātūs equitātūs-que imperare. Hīs cognitīs rebus rem frūmentāriam providet, castrīs idoneum locum deligit, Ubios pecora dedūcere sua-que omnia ex agrīs in oppida conferre iubet, spērans hominēs barbarēs atque imperītēs inopiā cibāritrum adductēs ad inīquam pugnandī condiciēnem posse dēdūcī.

Interim explörātörēs in Suēvös missī, paucīs diēbus intermissīs, renuntiant Suēvõs omnēs cum omnibus suīs sociōrum-que copiīs penitus ad extrēmēs fīnēs sē recēpisse: silvam esse ibi infīnītā magnitūdine, hanc longē introrsus pertinēre: ad ēius initium silvae Suēvōs adventum Rōmānōrum exspectāre constituisse.

nătio, onis, f., a tribe.

vectīgālis, e, adj., tributary.

sua, ŏrum, n. pl., their belongings.

inopiā . . . dēdūcī, impelled by lack of provisions could be brought to fight on uneven terms.

missī, perf. part. pass. agreeing with exploratores.

penitus, adv., deeply, far within.

introrsus, adv., inwards.

Point out the ablatives absolute in this passage.

What case is nātiōnibus, and why?

What kind of ablative is infinitā magnitūdine?

What sort of Infinitive is exspectare?

Translate inīquam pugnandī condicionem literally.

Vīvā Vöce:

1. ā quibus Caesar certior fit? 2. quibus Šuēvī equitēs peditēs-que imperābant? 3. quibus rēbus adductōs barbarōs ad pugnandum posse dēdūcī existimābat? 4. quid explōrātōrēs renuntiant? 5. ubi Suēvī Rōmānōs exspectāre constituerant?

LESSON 23.

INDIRECT STATEMENT—continued. PREDICATIVE DATIVE.

In order to use the correct Tenses of the Infinitive, put each sentence mentally into the Direct form before translating.

Latīnē vertenda:

- 1. The Aedui informed Caesar (that) they could not easily avert the enemy's violence from (their) towns.
- 2. The messengers reported (that) Ariovistus' forces were twenty-four miles distant.
- 3. We perceived (that) the enemy's forces had been drawn-up.
- 4. On-enquiry (in with abl. of gerund) he found (that) the Suevī had betaken themselves to the forests.
- 5. The Rēmī denied (that) they had conspired (consentiō. 4. -sensō) with the rest-of the Belgae, and that they were preparing war against the Roman people.
- 6. The ambassadors pointed-out to-Caesar (that) nothing was left (nihil with gen. of reliquus, a, um) to them except the soil (solum, î, n.) of (their) fields (sing.).

- '7. The enemy thought (that) owing-to the fewness of our-men they would fight in-safety (\(\bar{n}\bar{u}t\bar{o}\); nevertheless they considered (it) safer/(neut. sing.) to get (potior. 4.) the victory without any wounds (sing.).
 - 8. The scouts reported (that) the camp was occupied (teneō. 2.) by a large-number of the enemy, (that) the legions were hard-pressed (premō. 3.) and almost surrounded, (that) the camp-followers, cavalry, and slingers were dispersed and fleeing (say 'having been dispersed were fleeing') in-all-directions.
 - 9. Caesar thinking (pref. part. of arbitror. 1.) (that) that war could be quickly finished-off (conficio. 3.), led (his) army thither.
 - 10. The ambassadors said (that) they would take-back (re-ferö, -ferre, -tulī, -lātum) this-message (say 'these-things), and would return to Caesar when the matter had been deliberated (abl. absol.).

To see if you understand ōrātiō oblīqua, turn the following passage into Indirect Statement in English.

Notice carefully what changes are necessary in (a) the Pronouns, (b) the Tenses of Verbs.

'Ariovistus gave the following reply to the members of the embassy:—"If I had wanted anything of Caesar, I should have gone to him; therefore if he wants anything of me, he ought to come to me. Moreover I dare not so without an army to those parts of Gaul which Caesar holds, nor can I collect an army without great exertions. Besides I question what business either Caesar or the Roman nation has in this part of Gaul, which I have conquered in fair fight."

Turn the following into Direct Statement in English:

'Ariovistus briefly replied—that he had crossed the Rhine, not of his own accord, but because he had been invited by the Gauls; that it was not without great hopes of benefit that he had left both home and kindred; that settlements in Gaul had been granted to him by the Gauls themselves of their own free will; that by the laws of war he took the tribute which conquerors were accustomed to impose on the conquered; that he had not waged war on the Gauls, but they on him; that all the states of Gaul had come to attack him; and that he had routed and conquered them all in one engagement.'

Note.—In Latin ōrātiō oblīqua the introductory verb of saying or telling, etc., is frequently omitted, and has to be supplied from the context.

e.g. Iccius Remus nuntium ad Caesarem mittit: sēsē diūtius sustinēre non posse.

Iccius Remus sends a messenger to Caesar, (and says) that he cannot hold out any longer.

THE PREDICATIVE DATIVE.

The dative case of nouns is frequently used with parts of the verb esse (and some other verbs) in a predicative sense. In other words the noun in question serves as a predicate.

e.g. Ariovistī mors magnō erat Germānīs dolōrī.

the death of Ariovistus was (for) a great grief to the Germans.

cohortēs praesidiō castrīs relictae sunt.

cohorts were left for a protection to (to protect) the camp.

- N.B.—(1) The person or thing affected (Germānīs, castrīs) is also put in the dative case.
 - (2) This construction is limited in use. Only a few nouns occur at all frequently as predicative datives. The dative is never plural.
 - (3) Only adjectives denoting quantity can be used with predic datives.
 - 1. dux tertiam aciem subsidiō nostrīs mīsit.
 - omnium rērum, quae ad bellum ūsuī sunt, summa in oppido erat facultās.
 - 3. duae legiones praesidio impedimentis relictae sunt.
 - 4. ea res mihi curae erit.
 - 5. dux omnem equitātum suīs auxiliō mīsit.
 - 6. disciplīna magnō ūsuī hominibus est.
 - ea, quae sunt ūsuī ad armandās nāvēs, ex Hispāniā adportārī iubet.
 - 8. Caesar sagittāriōs et funditōrēs subsidiō oppidānīs mīsit

Note the phrase receptui canere, to sound the signal for retreat.

Latīnē transferte:-

- 1. I attended to that (say 'that thing was for-a-care to me').
- 2. The friendship of the Roman people was (for) an ornament (ornāmentum, ī, n.) and protection to conquered races.
- 3. The general began to get-together everything (n. pl. of omnis, e) which was useful (dat. of ūsus) for a siege.
- 4. Caesar sends-up (submittō. 3.) the cohorts to help (suy 'for-a-help to') the cavalry.
- 5. T. Labienus seeing (perf. part. of conspicor. 1.) this sent the tenth legion to help our-men.
- 6. He left the fourteenth legion to protect (say 'fora-protection to') the baggage.
- All-things were-lacking (dē-sum, -esse, -fuī) which were useful (as in 3) for repairing ships (ad with gerundive).
- 8. The Roman shortness-of-stature was often an object-of-derision (say 'for a scorn,' contemptus, ūs, m.) to the Gauls, men (what case?) of great stature.

LESSON 24.

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

Impersonal Verbs are those that have the word 'it' as subject, instead of a personal subject.

e.g. constat. 1., it is agreed, well known.

praestat. 1. (dat.), it is better, preferable.

licet. 2. (dat.), it is allowed.

oportet. 2., it behoves, is necessary, proper.

placet. 2. (dat.), it is pleasing.

paenitet, 2., it repents (foll, by gen. of thing repented of).

vidētur, 2., it seems good (perf. vīsum est).

Similar expressions are fas, nefas est, it is right, wrong.

necesse est, it is necessary.

All these are followed by the accusative and Infinitive, except praestat, licet, and placet, which take the dative and Infinitive.

They are conjugated like other verbs of their respective Conjugations, but only in the 3rd pers. sing.

Tense.	1st. Conj.	2nd Conj.			necesso est.
Present Future Imperf.	constat constabit constabat	oportet oportēbit oportēbat	placet placēbit placēbat (placuit	licet licebit licebat licuit	necesse est necesse erit necesse erat
Perfect	constitit	oportuit	placitum est	1	necesse fuit
Pres. Inf.	constare	o portēre	placēr e	licēre	necesse esse

e.g. oportet mīlitēs imperāta facere.1

t is proper that soldiers (should) obey commands (soldiers ought to, etc.).

dixit sēsē impedīrī non oportēre.

he said that he ought not to be hindered.

tibi domum redīre licet.

you are allowed to (may) return home.

Note the phrase per me licet, it is allowed as far as I am concerned, or for all I care.

Latīnē reddenda:

- 1. All agreed that they ought to winter (say 'it was agreed by-all (dat.) that it ought to be wintered') in Gaul.
- 2. The Britons did not think it-right (use fās esse) to taste (gustō. 1.) hare or hen or goose.
- 3. Whether is-it-better to defend the camp or seek safety in-flight?
- 4. The Gauls often form (in-eo, -īre) plans of which they will immediately repent (say 'of which itwill-repent them').
- 5. The Germans thought it wrong to do-violence-to strangers (sing.).
- 6. All said that they ought (use oportet) not to wait (any) longer.
- 7. Nevertheless the greater number (pars, rtis, f.) preferred (say 'it pleased the greater number') to await-the-course-of-events (rei eventum experior. 4.), and to defend the camp.

8. It-is-better to be killed in battle (aciēs, ēī, f.) Than not to recover (reciperō. 1.) our liberty.

LECTIO.

Gallōrum deī.

Gallī deum maximē Mercurium colunt. Hūius sunt plūrima simulācra, hunc omnium inventōrem artium ferunt, hunc viārum atque itinerum ducem, hunc ad quaestūs pecūniae mercātūrasque habēre vim maximam arbitrantur. Post hunc Apollinem et Martem et Iovem et Minervam. Dē hīs eandem ferē quam reliquae gentēs habent opīniōnem: Apollinem morbōs dēpellere, Minervam operum atque artificiōrum initia trād re, Iovem imperium caelestium tenēre, Martem bella regere.

Hure, cum proelio dimicāre constituērunt, ea quae bello cēperint plērumque dēvovent; cum superāvērunt, animālia capta immolant, reliquasque rēs in ūnum locum conferunt. Multīs in cīvitātibus hārum rērum exstructōs tumulos locīs consecrātīs conspicārī licet, neque saepe quisquam aut capta apud sē occultāre aut posita tollere audet, gravissimumque eī rēī supplicium cum cruciātū constitūtum est.

ferunt, they reckon.
quaestus, üs, m., acquisition.
vim, influence.
initia, beginnings, principles.
caelestēs, ium, m. pl., the heavenly powers.
regō. 3., I direct.
exstructōs, perf. part. pass. of exstruō, q.v.
capta, n. pl., things captured.

What kind of verb is occultö? What tense is ceperint, and why?

LESSON 25.

IMPERSONAL USE OF VERBS.

Gerund and Gerundive in Indirect Statement.

In many cases where English has a Personal subject Latin prefers an Impersonal subject.

e.g. 'the rival armies fought fiercely' would in Latin be rendered:

> pugnātum est ācriter ab utrisque (utrimque) dīmicātur contendēhātur (lit. 'it was fought fiercely by both (on both sides).'

eādem ratione quā prīdie ab nostrīs resistitur.

our plan of resistance was the same as on the previous day (lit. 'it was resisted by ourmen, etc.').

aegrē eō diē sustentātum est.

with difficulty they held out that day (lit. 'it was held out,' etc.).

news is brought, it is announced. imperatum est, it was ordered. cognitum est, it was discovered.

(per)ventum est, they came.

- 9. nullō responsō datō (abl. absol.) hostōs, ubi vīsum est, sēsē recēpērunt.
- 10. post diem quartum in Britanniam ventum est.

Verbs that govern the dative in the Active voice are used impersonally in the Passive.

Thus: mihi nocētur, I am injured.

tibi nocētur, thou art injured.

illī (eī) nocētur, he, she, it is injured.

etc.

Similarly: urbī appropinquātum est.

mihi persuādēbātur.
 nullī persuādēri potuit.
 rēī frūmentāriae prospiciendum est.

- Caesar neque lēgātōs sibi audiendos neque condiciones accipiendas arbitrābātur.
- 8. rei frumentariae prospiciendum (esse) statuit.

Put any four of the above into ōrātiō recta.

Latine reddite:

- 1. He decided (statu-ō. 3. -ī) that the enemy ought-to-be-punished.
- 2. They did not think that his advice ought-to-beneglected.
- 3. He thought that he ought to conceal (dissimulo. 1.) his intentions (say 'his intentions ought-to-beconcealed by 'him').

¹ Remember that 'by' is translated by the dative case after the gerund and gerundive.

- 4) He attended-to $(c\bar{u}r\bar{o}, with \ gerundive)$ the repair-of the old (vetus, eris) ships.
- 5. When-the-German-war-was-concluded (con-ficio, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectum, abl. absol.) Caesar for (dē. abl.) many reasons decided that he ought to cross the Rhine (say 'that the Rhine ought-to-becrossed by him').
- 6. He thought that the brigadier ought not to fight (say 'it ought-not-to-be-fought by the brigadier') except (nisi) on-equal-terms (aequō locō).

In sentence 5 note that the Gerundive of (trans)eō is (trans)eundus, a, um.

LESSON 27.

ADJECTIVES.

Distributive Numeral Adjectives.

singuli, ae, a, one each. bini, ae, a, two each. trīnī (terni). ae, a, three each. dēnī, ae, a, ten each. quaterni, ae, a, four each. quini, ae, a, five each. sēnī, ae. a. six each. septěni, ae, a, seven cach.

octoni, ae, a, eight each. novēnī, ae, a, nine each. undění, ae, a, eleven each. duodēnī, ae. a. twelve each vīcēni, ae. a. twenty each. centēni, ae: a, a hundred each.

Distributive Numeral Adjectives answer the question 'How many each, or at a time?', and are declined like the plurals of adjs. in -us, -a, -um.

They are used instead of cardinal numbers (1) where a statement is made of an action happening more than once, (2) with nouns pl. in form but sing. in meaning:

> e.g. trīna castra, three camps. sēnae litterae, six letters (epistles).2

singulīs puerīs singula poma dedit. He gave one apple to each boy. hāc viā vix singulī carrī dūcī poterant. scarcely one cart at a time could travel by that path.

- For difference, v. note on p. 115.
- ² But sex litterae, six letters (of the alphabet).

cum singulās bīnae āc ternae nāvēs circumsteterant, mīlites transcendere in hostium nāvēs contendēbant.

whenever two or three ships surrounded one, the soldiers would endeavour to board the enemy's ships.

Diminutive Adjectives. ...

These end usually in -ulus, -ula, -ulum.

e.g. tantulus, a, um, so small (tantus).

parvulus, a, um, very little, trifling (parvus).

adulescentulus, a, um, very young (adulescens).

hostēs proeliīs parvulīs cum nostrīs contendēbant.

The enemy were engaging in trifling skirmishes with our-men.

erat magnī perīculī rēs tantulīs copiīs dīmicāre.

It was a very dangerous matter to fight with such small forces.

tantus . . . quantus, as great . . . as. quantō . . . tantō, by how much . . by so much.

Anglice reddenda:

- Caesar singulīs legionibus singulos legatos praefecit.
- 2. hostēr tantō spatiō nostrōs secūti sunt, quantum cursū et vīribus efficere potuērunt.
- dux locum non-parvulo detrimento relinqui posse videbat.

- 4. nostrī tantam hostium multitūdinem interfēcērunt, quantum fuit diēī spatium.
- 5. Caesar quos laborantes conspexerat, his subsidia
- • submittēbat.
- 6. apud Gallōs nonnullī annōs vīcēnōs in disciplinā permanent.
- 7. tantum repentīnī perīculī acciderat quantum non exspectāverāmus.
- 8. Caesar quōrum opera (means) Tasgetium interfectum cognōverat, hōs comprehensōs ad sē mittī iubet.

In sentences 5 and 8 the relative is placed before the antecedent, v. Less. 26.

Quod dē-est suppeditäte:

Latīnē reddite:

After-several-towns-had-been-stormed (abl. absol.), when Caesar saw (say 'Caesar, when he saw') that all his great exertions (sing.) were spent in-vain, and that the enemy's flight could not be checked on-the-capture-of-their-towns (abl. absol.), nor they themselves injured (say 'it be injured to them,' v. Less. 25), he determined to await the fleet (say 'that the fleet should-be-awaited,' gerundive, v. p. 104, sent. 2).

When it came (say 'which, when (it) came') and was first seen by the enemy, about 220 of their ships fully-equipped (superl.) set-out from harbour and took-up-their-position (say, 'having set-out took up' etc.) opposite to-our (ships).

The contest was one of (superior) valour (say 'the contest was placed in valour'), in-which our-men easily prevailed, and on-this-account ($e\bar{o}$) the-more because the engagement took place (say 'the matter was being carried-on') in the sight of Caesar and the entire (omnis) army, for all the hills and higher ground (pl.), whence there was a prospect over (in. acc.) the sea, were occupied (say 'held') by the army.

Venbo transferenda:

- 1. adulescentulo duce.
- 2. parvulīs equestribus proeliīs factīs.
- 3. magnī ponderis saxa coniciunt.
- 4. homines tantulae staturae.
- 5. ancipitī (anceps, ipitis) proeliō pugnābātur.
- 6. Germānī ab parvulīs laborī student.
- 7. trīnīs hibernīs hiemāre constituit.
- 8. nonnullae nāvēs tempestāte dēperierant.
- 9. collis tantum in lätitüdinem patēbat quantum locī aciës instructa occupātūra erat. •
- tantum Cassivellaunō ā Rōmānīs nocēbātur quantum mīlitēs efficere poterant.

Note.—With nouns that have no singular (e.g. castra, insidiae, etc.), uni not singuli, and trini not terni are used.

Thus: una castra, one camp.

trīnae insidiae, three ambushes.

LESSON 28.

PREPOSITIONS GOVERNING THE ACCUSATIVE CASE.

The prepositions given in this and the next Lesson are not a complete list, but purposely limited to some that are used idiomatically by Caesar. Their ordinary meanings, being by this time familiar, are not always given, nor does the list include many other familiar prepositions, e.g. ante, contrā, in, inter, propter, a(b), sub, sine, etc.

ad, to, up to:

ad multam noetem, till late in the night. ad numerum mīlium v, to the number of 5000. ad ūnum omnēs incolumēs, all safe to a man.

preceded by usque:

usque ad vesperum, until evening. usque ad castra hostium accessit.

circiter, about (of time, not place):

circiter meridiem, about midday.

¹ It is suggested that in this and the next lesson pupils should learn by heart at least the shorter examples of the different meanings of the various prepositions.

as an adv. is more frequent.

e.g. cirçiter cce nāvēs, about 300 ships. circiter pars quarta, about a fourth part. equitēs circiter quadringentōs colligit.

citrā (cis), on this side of (opposite of ultrā):

citră flumen Ararim, on this side of the river Arar. cis Rhēnum, on this side of the Rhine.

ergā, towards (of feeling, conduct, etc.):

perpetua ergā populum Rōmānum fidēs, undying loyalty towards the Roman people.

voluntās ergā Caesarem tōtīus prōvinciae, the good feeling of the whole province towards Caesar.

per, on account of, for the sake of:

per mē (licet), as far as I am concerned (you may), v. p. 99. cum prīmum per annī tempus potuit, directly the time of year allowed him.

praeter, except:

nihil vestītūs praeter peltēs, no clothing except skins. praeter caput, except the head.

besides, in addition to:

praeter se deni, ten-each besides themselves.

past, beyond:

praeter castra copias duxit, he led his forces past the camp.

contrary to:

praeter opinionem, contrary to expectation.

secundum, by, along:

secundum flümen paucae equitum stationes visae sunt. along the river a few pickets of cavalry were seen.

next to, after (in rank, value):
secundum ea, multae rēs eum hortābantur.
after this many things wiged him.

sub, up to (with verbs of motion): sub aciem succedere, to come up to the line.

towards (of time):
sub noctem, vesperum, towards night, evening.

Notice the phrase hōc (eō) . . . quod, by this (on this account) . . because (namely that):

e.g. hoc facilius quod; eo minus quod, by this the mbre easily, because; on this account the less, namely that.

hōc māiōre spē quod, etc., with the greater hope on this account, namely that, etc.¹

In translation the hōc (eō) is best rendered by 'the,' or omitted altogether:

 $\emph{e.g.}$ id \emph{hoc} facilius eīs persuāsit \emph{quod} . . .

he persuaded them to this the more easily, bearuse . . .

eōrum fortūna quam reliquōrum hōc erat miserior quod sōlī querī nōn audēbant.

their lot was worse than (that) of the rest, inasmuch as they alone dare not complain.

Why could it not be be translated 'with this greater hope, etc.'?

ea mūnera prō magnīs officiīs tribuī consuērant.

those presents were usually bestowed in return for great services.

accēdit quod . . .

In this phrase accēdō is used impersonally; 'there came in addition (i.e. was added) this (reason), namely that . . .'

e.g. accessit (perf.) quod equites nondum redierant.

there was added the reason (consideration) that the cavalry had not yet returned.

or 'an additional reason was that,' etc.

or simply 'moreover the cavalry,' etc.

accēdēbat hūc quod Dumnorix dixerat sibi ā Caesare regnum dēferrī.

moreover Dumnorix had said that the crown was being offered him by Caesar.

Anglicē reddenda:

- hostium equitēs tēla coniciunt et magnā cum contumēliā verborum nostros ad pugnam ēvocant.

29. PREPOSITIONS GOVERNING THE ABLATIVE

- 9. Caesar Ciceronem pro eius merito collaudat.
- 10. Helvētiī prō multitūdine hominum et prō glōriā bellī angustōs sē fīnēs habēre arbitrābantur.

Latine vertite:

A. Connected.—The influence of the state of the Venetī is by-far the greatest (amplus, a, um) of all the sea-board of those districts, because they both have very-many ships in-which they are accustomed to sail to Britain, and they surpass their neighbours (say 'the rest') in-the knowledge and practice of seamanship. Moreover (use 'accēdit quod') only a few harbours, which they themselves control (say 'hold'), are situated-at-intervals on (in. abl.) that violent and open sea. Accordingly they have (as) tributaries almost all (those) who are accustomed to use that sea.

With these (i.e. the Venetī) originated the plan (say 'by these is made the beginning') of detaining the officers who had been sent (to them) by Caesar, because they thought that by-this-means (say 'insuch a way') they would recover their own hostages.

VOCABULARY.

sea-board ōra maritima. f. situated-at-intervals, interI surpass, ante-cēdō. 3. -cessī. iectus, a, um.

practice, ūsus, ūs, m. violent, turbidus, a, um.

- 5. To this was added (the consideration) that they lamented-for (doleō. 2.) their children torn (abstractus, a, um) from them in the name of hostages.
- 6. Caesar with his usual elemency (say 'in-accordance-with his elemency') determined to spare the enemy.
- 7. Gaul (being) quiet (abl. absol.), Caesar set-out for (in. acc.) Italy to hold (agō. 3.) the assizes (ad with gerundive).
- 8. The Gauls perceived (that) that matter had turned-out (ac-cidō. 3. -cidī) not less advantageously (ex ūsū) for-Gaul (gen.) than for the Roman people (gen.).
- 9. The general thought he would send ambassadors with great danger to himself.
- 10. He wished this the less on-this-account namely-that he did not think he ought to fight (say 'it ought to be fought by him') in the absence of the commander-in-chief (say, 'the commander-in-chief being absent').

LESSON 30.

RECAPITULATORY.

- Give the Dat. Sing., Acc. Pl., and Gender of agmen, rēmus, coniūrātio, pecus, aes, ūsus, frāter, iter, aestus, rēspublica, Apollo (sing. only). Decline the Adjective lēnis, e in Sing. and Pl.
- 2. What is meant by a Complementary Infinitive?
 Give some verbs which are followed by such Infinitives.
- 3. Give the Principal Parts of vetō, audeō, conferō, dēpellō, caedō, poseō, versor, polliceor, prōgredior, nascor, nanciscor, potior.
- 4. Correct this sentence—māteria comportārī coepit.

victōriā potīrī.
eō bellō confēctō.

ubi eō ventum est.

Iovem caelestium imperium tenere putant.

- 11. When are Distributive Numeral Adjectives used instead of Cardinal Numbers? Give instances.
- 12. Parse motum īrī, aegrē, cūrae, conspicātus, transeunda, iūrīiūrando, naetī.

LESSON 31.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD (Introductory).

The Subjunctive mood is so called because it is often 'subjoined' to a Principal verb.

This is the Dependent use of the Subj., e.g.

Principal verb.	Subjunctive.
ōrō I pray (you) imperāvit	faciās do (it) aedificārent
he ordered (them)	to build

N.B.—The insertion of the conj. ut between the Principal verb and the Subj. mood is more usual (v. Less. 38).

The Subj. is also used Independently in various ways.

A. Jussive or Hortatory Subj. (expressing a command).

rectē faciās, do right (general command). hōc faciat, let him do this. nē hōc faciat, let him not do this.

B. Deliberative Subj. (expressing a doubt or dilemma).

quid faciat? what is he to do?
cūr non faceret? why should he not do it?
quo īrem? whither was I to go?
```

This use of the Subj. may be regarded as an interrogative form of the Jussive Subj.

C. Optative subj. (expressing a wish).

sīs fēlix! may you be happy!
(utinam) në fēcissēs! would that you had not done it!
```

Observe that in A and C the negative is generally $n\bar{e}$, in B the negative is $n\bar{o}n$.

Examples of the Subj. mood in English:

Jussive.

'pray we likewise for the civil incorporation of this town!'

Optative.

long live the King! God be with you!

Other examples:

```
were the whole realm of nature mine (conditional).

if it be proved that he did it (conditional).

'which refuseth to hear the voice of the charmer, charm he (=though he charms) never so wisely.'

We shall learn later how to translate such sentences into Latin.

TYPES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

1st Conj. and the verb sum.

Tense.	Active.	Passive.	Deponent.	Verb sum.
Present	laud-em¹ laud-ēs laud-et laud-ētis laud-etis	laud-er laud-ēris(-ēre) laud-ētur laud-ēmur laud-emini laud-entur	con-eris(-ere) con-eris(-ere) con-etur con-emur con-emini	sim sis sit simus sitis

· 1 No mranings of the subj. are given here, as they would be misleading.

TYPES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.—Continued.

rınberi.	$laudar{a}$ -($oldsymbol{v}$ i)ssēmus	laudātī, ae, essēmus	conati, ae, essēmus	fu-issēmus
	laudā-(vi)ssētis	essētis	essētis	fu-issētis
	laudā-(vi)ssent	essent	essent	fu-issent

- Note (1) the Subj. mood lacks the fut. and fut. perf. tenses. A future Subj. is seldom needed; when required it is formed by the fut. part. and the Subj. of the verb sum.
- (2) The Subj. mood of Deponent verbs is similar to that of the Passive voices of their respective conjugations.

The Subj. mood of possum is as follows:

Present Imperfect	pos-sim, pos-sīs, pos-sit, etc. pos-sem, pos-sēs, pos-set, pos-sēmus, pos-sētis, pos-sent.
Perfect Pluperfect	potu-erim, -eris, -erit, etc. potu-issem, issēs, -isset, etc.

Conjugate 1 the Subj. mood of the verbs aedifico, paro, incito, vagor, hortor.

Anglice dicenda:

- 1. Caesar Divitiacum rogat fīnem ōrandī faciat² (pres. subj. of faciō).
- 2. monuit eum omnēs suspīcionēs vītāret.
- 3. tribūnį suos cohortantur equos incitent.
- 4. imperāvit cīvitātibus frūmentum comparārent.
- 5. pronuntiat dux ne mīlites latius vagentur.

A good plan is for this to be done orally, first by the whole class together, then by individuals.

² Words in black type are in the Subj. mood.

- 6. monet dux 'vos, mīlitēs, in pugnando cautī sītis.'
- 7. utinam hīc non ad-essēs!
- 8. viros fortes laudēmus!
- 9. cūr viros fortes non laudārēmus?
- 10. Caesar Labiēnō mandat Rēmōs adeat (pres. subj. of adeō), Germānōs-que prohibeat (pres. subj. of prohibeō) sī per vim flūmen transīre conentur.

Note on the meaning of the Subj. mood.

The Subj. mood is often translated by means of the English auxiliaries may, might, could, would, let, can, because the English Subj. is not in common use.

Such translations, however, are often misleading, because, e.g. 'he may fight' is often not pugnet, but licet eī pugnāre; 'he can do this,' potest hōc facere, etc.

Also Latin uses the Subj. in many places where we use the Indic., e.g. in Dependent clauses in ōrātiō oblūqua (v. Less. 36 and 37); in clauses expressing purpose, result, etc. (v. Less. 41-43); in Indirect Questions (v. Less. 44), etc.

LESSON 32.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD (Second, Third, and Fourth Conj.).

Subj. mood of a 2nd conj. verb, contineō.

Verb Stem, continē.

Tense.

ACTIVE VOICE.

Present	contine ¹ -am, -ās, -at, -āmus, -ātis, -ant.
Imperfect	continē-rem, -rēs, -ret, -rēmus, -rētis, -rent.
Perfect	continu-erim, -eris, -erit, -erimus, -eritis, -erint.
Pluperfect	continu-issem, -issēs, -isset, -issēmus, -issētis,
	-issent.

Tense.	Passive Voice.
Present	contine ¹ -ar, -āris(-āre), -ātur, -āmur, -āminī, -antur.
Imperfect	continē-rer, -rēris(-rēre), -rētur, -rēmur, -rēminī,
	-rentur.
Perfect	contentus sim, sīs, sit, contentī sīmus, sītis,
•	sint.
Pluperfect	contentus essem, essēs, esset, contentī essēmus, essētis, essent.

¹ Notice that the ē is shortened before a vowel.

' Subj. mood of 3rd, 'mixed,' and 4th conjugations.

ACTIVE VOICE.

Tense.	3rd Conj.	'Mixed' Conj.	4th Conj.
	Stem age -	Stem rapi -	Stem mūnī-
Present	ag- am, - ās, etc.	rapi- am, -ās, etc.	mūni-am, -ās,

Pluperfect	etc.	-eris, etc.	-eris, etc.
	ēg- isšem, -issēs,	rapu-issem,	mūnī(v)-issem,
-	etc.	-issēs, etc.	-issēs, etc.

PASSIVE VOICE.

Tense.			4
Present	ag-ar, -āris (-āre), etc	rapi-ar, -āris (-āre), etc.	mūni-ar, -āris (-āre), etc.
Imperfect	age-rer, -rēris (-rēre), etc.	rape-rer, -rēris (-rēre), etc.	mūnī- rer, - rēris (- rēre), etc.
Perfect	actus sim, sis,	raptus sim, sis,	münītus sim,
Pluperfect	etc. actus essem,	etc. raptus essem,	sīs, etc. mūnītus essem,
	essēs, etc.	essēs, etc.	essēs, etc.

 $^{^{1}}$ In the form munierim, muniissem, etc., the $\boldsymbol{\mathbf{I}}$ is shortened before $\boldsymbol{\mathsf{L}}$ a vowel.

N.B.—The Deponent verbs patior, suffer; morior, die; gradior, go (and its compounds in-, \bar{e} -, $pr\bar{o}$ -gredior, etc.) are conjugated like the pass. of $rapi\bar{o}$. But potior. 4., get possession of, and orior. 4., arise, vary between rapior and $m\bar{u}nior$.

Conjugate the Subj. mood of the verbs compleo, pello, capio, punio, morior.

Anglicē dīcenda:

- Venetī lēgātiönem ad P. Crassum mittunt obsidēs remittat.¹
- Ubiī Caesarem ōrābant exercitum Rhēnum transportāret.
- 3. Caesar C. Volusēno mandat explorātis omnibus rēbus ad sē quam-prīmum (as soon as possible) revertātur.
- 4. (Helvētiī dixērunt) Caesar reminiscerētur et veteris incommodī populī Rōmānī et pristinae virtūtis Helvētiōrum.
- 5. Ariovistus postulāvit nē quem (indef.) peditem ad colloquium Caesar addūceret; uter-que cum equitātū venīret.
- 6. Caesar ab Ariovistō postulāvit prīmum, nē quam mæltitūdinem hominum trans Rhēnum in Galliam trādūceret, deinde nē obsidūs redderet, nēve Aeduōs lacesseret, nēve illīs bellum inferret (imperf. subj. of in-ferō).

In the above sentences notice:

(1) that where the Principal verb is in the present tense, the verb in the Subj. is also in the present tense, and that where the Principal verb is in the past-perfect or imperfect tense, the verb in the Subj. is in the imperfect tense; ² (2) that the Subj. mood represents the imperative of $\bar{o}r\bar{a}ti\bar{o}$ recta. Thus in sent. 2 the members of the embassy said to Crassus, 'obsides remitte!'; in sent. 5 Ariovistus proposed to Caesar, 'cum equitatu venī!'

In linguam Latīnam vertite:

- 1. Let us, my friends, accept (say 'follow') the protection of the Roman people!
- Caesar writes to-Labiēnus to-come (pres. subj.) to him(self) with a legion, and warns him to-march (pres. subj. of iter faciō) cautiously and carefully.
- 3. The enemy begged Caesar to-give (imperf. subj.) them three-days (trīduī spatium) to complete the business (ad with gerundive).
- 4. Caesar sent messengers to the Lingonës (telling them) not to help (imperf. subj.) the Helvētiī with corn or other things (sing.).

² But see also the rules for Sequence of Tenses in Less. 34.

- 6. Ariovistus demanded of (\bar{a}) Caesar (that he should) either appoint (imperf. subj.) a day for-a confer- ence, or send one (aliquis) of (\bar{e}) his brigadiers to him(self).

In sent. 4 remember to translate the negative by nē, and 'or' by nē-ve.

THE PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE

is used Independently in Direct speech to express prohibitions in the second person.

e.g. në hoc feceris, do not do this.

nē salūtem despērāverītis, do not despair of safety.

nē vōs, mīlitēs, animō dēmīserītis, soldiers, do not be discouraged!

But in $\bar{o}r\bar{a}ti\bar{o}$ obliqua the pres. or imperf. subj. with $n\bar{e}$ is regularly used.

e.g. (ōrat) nē salūtem despērent, do not (he entreats) despair of safety.

(dixit) në së animo demitterent, do not (he said) be discouraged.

A commoner and less peremptory way of expressing prohibitions in prose is by nolī, sing, nolīte, pl. (imperative of nolo) foll. by the Infin.

e.g. nolī hoc facere, be unwilling to do this (i.e. do not do it).

nolite, liberi, falsa dicere, do not tell untruths, children.

LESSON 33.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD OF SOME IRREGULAR VERBS.

volō, I wish.

Present vel-im, -īs, -it, -īmus, -ītis, -int. '
Imperfect vell-em, -ēs, -et, -ēmus, -ētis, -ent.

Perfect volu-erim, -eris, -erit, etc.

Pluperfect volu-issem, -issēs, -isset, etc.

Similarly, nolo, I do not wish; mālo, I wish rather, prefer.

 $\label{eq:present} Present { \begin{cases} n\bar{o}l\text{-im, -}\bar{\textbf{is, -it, etc.}} \\ m\bar{a}l\text{-im, -}\bar{\textbf{is, -it, etc.}} \end{cases}}$

Imperfect noll-em, -es, -et, etc.

 $Perfect \begin{cases} n\bar{o}lu\text{-erim, -eris, -erit, etc.} \\ m\bar{a}lu\text{-erim, -eris, -erit, etc.} \end{cases}$

 $Pluperfect \begin{cases} n\bar{o}lu\text{-}\mathbf{issem, -iss\bar{e}s, etc.} \\ m\bar{a}lu\text{-}\mathbf{issem, -iss\bar{e}s, etc.} \end{cases}$

eō, I go.

Present | e-am, -ās, -at, -āmus, -ātis, -ant. | Imperfect | $\bar{\imath}$ -rem, -rēs, -ret, -rēmus, -rētis, -rent. | $\bar{\imath}$ (v)-erim, -eris, -erit, etc. | $\bar{\imath}$ (v)-issem. -issēs, -isset, etc.

¹ In the form ierim, iissem, etc., the I is shortened before a vowel.

fīō, I am made, become.

Present fi-am, -as, -at, -amus, -atis, -ant.

Imperfect fie-rem, -res, -ret, -remus, -retis, -rent.

Perfect factus sim, sīs, sit, etc.

Pluperfect factus essem, esses, esset, etc.

ferō, I carry, bring.

Present fer-am, -ās, -at, -āmus, -ātis, -ant.

Imperfect fer-rem, -res, -ret, -remus, -retis, -rent.

Perfect tul-erim, -eris, -erit, etc.
Pluperfect tul-issem, -issēs, -isset, etc.

PASSIVE VOICE OF fero.

- 6. hōc dētrīmentum vobis, mīlitēs, aequo animo ferendum est.

LESSON 34.

PRIMARY AND SECONDARY TENSES— SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

Of the six tenses of the Indicative mood, those that refer to present or future time are known as Primary; those that refer to past time are known as Secondary or Historic.

The Primary Tenses are:

- (1) Present, örö, I ask or am asking.
- (2) Future, ōrābō, I shall ask or shall be asking.
- (3) Future Perfect, ōrāverō, I shall have asked or shall have been asking.
- (4) $Present\ Perfect,^1\ \bar{o}r\bar{a}v\bar{\imath}$, I have asked or have been asking.

The Secondary (Historic) tenses are:

- (1) Imperfect, ōrābam, I was asking or I asked.
- (2) Pluperfect, ŏrāveram, I had asked, or had been asking.
- (3) Past Perfect,2 ōrāvī, I asked.

N.B.—The form of the 'Present' perfect in Latin is the same as that of the 'Past' perfect.

¹ Also called the Perfect 'with have,'

² Also called the 'Aorist' Perfect.

SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

The time of a verb or verbs in a Dependent clause is usually assimilated to that of the Principal verb. Thus a Primary tense in the Principal clause is generally followed by a Primary tense or tenses in the Dependent clause, and a Secondary tense in the Principal clause is generally followed by a Secondary tense or tenses in the Dependent clause.

This is known as the Sequence of Tenses.

Primary tenses of the Subjunctive follow the present, future, future perfect, and present perfect tenses of the Indicative mood, and the Imperative mood.

Secondary tenses of the Subjunctive follow the imperfect, pluperfect, past perfect, and usually the historic present (v. p. 146) tenses of the Indicative mood.

Examples of the Sequence of Tenses.

Primary Time.

Principal Verb.	Dependent Verb.	Meaning.
ōrō ōrābō ōrāverō ōrāvī ōrā	faciās faciās faciās faciās faciat!	I ask you to do it. I shall ask you to do it. I shall have asked you to do it. I have asked you to do it. ask him to do it!

Secondary Time.

Principal Dependent

Meaning.

õrābam facerēs

I was asking (or asked) you to do it.

ōrāveram facerēs

I had asked you to do it.

ōrāvī facerēs

I asked you to do it.

Historic Present.

The pres. Indic., used in narrative for vividness instead of the past perf., is generally followed by a secondary tense of the Subj.

e.g. praecipit omnës peterent Indutiomarum (Less. 33).

he instructs (i.e. instructed) all to make for Indutiomarus.

monent në së despiceret.

they warn (i.e. warned) him not to despise them.

The rules for the Sequence of Tenses apply, with modifications which will be duly noted, to all kinds of Dependent Clauses (Final, Consecutive, etc.), to the subj. in ōrūtiō oblīqua, Indirect Questions, etc.

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. After the death of Orgetorix (-igis, m.) the Helvētiī none-the-less try to do what (id quod) they had resolved-on, (namely) to-leave (say 'that (ut) they may leave') their territory.
- 2. They persuade their neighbours to set-out (say 'that (ut) they may set-out') along-with them.

- 3. The road was so narrow and difficult that (ut) scarcely one cart at-a-time (v. Less. 27) could-be-
 - pulled (imperf. subj. pass. of dācō. 3).
- 4. Dumnorix persuaded the Sēquanī to-allow (as in sent. 1 and 2) the Helvētiī to go through their territory, and to exchange hostages.
- 5. He exhorted the soldiers to-remember (as in sent. 1, 2, and 4) their former valour, and-not $(n\bar{e}ve)$ to-be-disturbed.
- 6. The general will have ordered the troops not-to $(n\bar{e})$ plunder on the march.
- 7. The German women began with outstretched hands to implore their husbands (vir, $\bar{\imath}$, m.) not-to ($n\bar{e}$) deliver them to the Romans.
- 8. Caesar commanded (hist. pres.) Volusēnus to return to him as-soon-as-possible, when he had examined (explörö. 1) everything (say 'all things having been examined').
- 9. Urge-on (your) horses, cavalry, in-order-that (ut) you may overtake the fugitives.
- The leaders of the natives had proclaimed (prō-nuntiō. 1) that-no-one (nē quis) should leave his place.

What would be the longer form of appropinquārunt in 1.7 above?

LESSON 35.

THE LOCATIVE CASE—PLACE AND TIME.

THE LOCATIVE CASE.

The mother language from which Latin was derived had a *special case for denoting position (locus) in place or time.

This case ended in -ī and was called the Locative. Relics of it survive in the words domī, at home; herī, yesterday; vesperī, in the evening; and possibly ibi, there; ubi? where?

In Classical Latin the locative often looks like a genitive, dative, or ablative; and the ablative is often used instead.

Rule. In the 1st and 2nd declensions the locative, looking like the genitive, is used for names of Towns in the sing.; the ablative is used for names of Towns in the pl. In the 3rd decl. the dat. and abl. cases are used for names of Towns both in the sing. and pl.

2nd decl. Corinthī, at Corinth (sing.); Philippīs, • at Philippi (pl.).

3rd decl. Karthāginī, or -e, at Carthage (sing.). Gādibus, at Gādēs (Cadiz) (pl.)

Of 4th decl. nouns no locative is found.

Originally Römäï.

In the 5th decl. the locative ends in -ē, 'e.g. hodiē, to-day; postrīdiē, the next day; prīdiē, the day before.

The following are common locatival phrases:

humi, on the ground.

belli, militiae, at the war (opp. to domi).

rūrī, in the country (rūs, rūris, n.).

terra marique, by land and sea.

foris, out of doors.

PLACE.

Place where is denoted (a) by the ablative with the preposition in.

e.g. is vīcus in valle positus est.

that village lay in a valley.

dum haec in Venetis geruntur.

while this was going on among the Venetī.

hostēs in insidiīs latēbant.

the enemy were lying-hid in ambush.

- (b) by the ablative without a preposition.
 - (1) frequently with nouns which are qualified by adjectives.
 - e.g. Britannī notissimīs locīs pugnābant.

the Britons were fighting in places very familiar to them.

aperto ac plano litore naves constituit.

he drew up the ships on an open and level shore. regularly, when tōtus is used.

e.g. tötīs trepidātur castrīs.

the whole camp was in a state of confusion.1

1 Literally, 'it was agitated (impers.) in the entire camp.'

- exsulēs tōtā Galliā conveniēbant. exiles throughout Gaul were assembling.
- (2) common in Caesar with the verb contineo.
- e.g. dux exercitum castrīs, vallō continuit.

 the general kept his army in camp, within the stockade.
- (3) This ablative is also found of physical attributes. e.g. animō perturbor, I am disturbed in mind.
- (c) by the locative of names of Towns (v. p. 149). Corcyrae, at Corcyra; Brundisi, at Brindisi, etc.

Place whither (to where) is denoted by the accusative with a preposition.

- e.g. Caesar ad Galliam proficiscitur.
 - •Rhēnus in mare influit.

Alexander in Aegyptum pervēnit.

N.B.—ad, as opp. to in, means 'towards,' as opp. to 'right into.' ad Galliam, to the frontier of Gaul; in Galliam, to some place in Gaul.

Exceptions.

Names of towns, small islands, and the words domum, to home, homewards; and rūs, to the country, are not preceded by a preposition.

e.g. Capuam, to Capua (town); Minturnās, to Minturnae (town); Dēlum, to Dēlos (small island).

Or Brundisii. The loc. of nouns in -ium varies.

Place whence (from where) is denoted by the ablative with a preposition, except in the words given in the exceptions to place whither.'

e.g. ex Asiā transīs in Europam.

from Asia you cross into Europe.

but Chiō profectī die quarto Corinthum pervēnimus.

We reached Corinth on the fourth day after leaving Chios (small island).

also domo, from home; rure from the country.

N.B.—Where towns or small islands are preceded by prepositions, e.g. ad, apud, ex, the preposition means 'to, in, or from the neighbourhood of.'

Extent of space is put in the accusative case.

e.g. fossa quindecim pedēs lata, a trench 15 feet broad. circiter mīlia passuum quattuor prōgressus est. he advanced about four miles.

TIME.

Duration of Time is expressed by the accusative case.

e.g. complūrēs annos Romae habitābam.

I lived at Rome for several years. dies continuos quinque Caesar copias cduxit.

Time at which (point of Time) is expressed by the ablative case.

e.g. prīmā lūce, at dawn; solis occāsū, at sunset. secundā vigiliā ē castrīs ēgressī sumus.

Latīnē dīcenda:

- 1. Queen Victoria died (ē vītā ex-cēdō. 3. -cessī) aged 81
 - · years.
- 2. About midnight a letter was brought $(d\bar{e}\text{-}fer\bar{o}, ferre, -tul\bar{\imath}, -l\bar{a}tum)$ to Caesar.
- 3. Periclös ruled (prae-sum) Athens (dat.) for 40 years.
- 4. The enemy do not keep themselves in-their position.
- 5. Shouts (sing.) arose (imperf.) throughout-the entire town.
- 6. The leader of the Britons concealed (occultō. 1.) himself in-places woody and difficult-of-passage (impedītus, a, um.).
- 7. Some (writers) have written (that) in Britain atthe-time-of (sub. abl.) the winter-solstice (brūma, ae, f.) there is night for 30 days in-succession (continuus, a, um).
- 8. Horātius, the famous poet, once ($\bar{o}lim$) journeyed from Rome to Brundisium with a friend. From Rome they went first to Arīcia (ae. f.), from Arīcia to Forum Appī, thence (inde) to Anxur (-uris. m.), from Anxur to Formiae (- $\bar{a}rum$. f.), from Formiae to Capua, thence to Caudium, from Caudium to Beneventum, from Beneventum to Canustum, thence to Rubī (- $\bar{o}rum$. m.), from Rubī to Brundisium.

LESSON 36.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES IN ŏrātiō oblīgua.

As a general rule the Subj. is used instead of the Indic. in Subordinate clauses in $\bar{o}r\bar{a}ti\bar{o}$ obl $\bar{a}qua$.

The rules for the Sequence of Tenses apply; a Primary tense of the subj. being used if the tense of the indic is Primary, and a Secondary if Secondary.

- e.g. reperiēbat montēs, quī impendērent, ab hostibus tenērī.
 - he found out that the mountains, which overshadowed, were held by the enemy. (orātiō recta, impendent).
 - certior factus est eos, qui nuper se dedidissent, iterum inter se coniurare.
 - he was informed that those who had recently surrendered were again conspiring together. (ōrātio recta, dēdidērunt).

The Indicative is used when the fact is emphasised.

- e.g. Labieno serībit ut eīs legionibus, quae sunt apud eum, nāvēs instituat.
 - he writes to Labienus to prepare ships with those legions that are with him.

N.B.—Sometimes the actual tense of the Indic. in the recta is kept in the Subj. of the obliqua, in spite of the rules. In the subjoined instances 1, 3, and 5 are general truths; 2 and 4 are graphic.

Anglicē reddenda:

- 1. cognovit Germanos, qui cis Rhenum incolant, dēfēcisse.
- 2. dixit eīs licēre, quascumque in partēs velint, proficisci.
- 3. dixit consuesse deos immortales secundiores interdum res eis concedere quos ulcisci velint.
- 4. hīs dux respondit licēre, sī velint, in Ubiorum fīnibus consīdere, quorum sint lēgātī apud se et ā sē auxilium petant.
- 5. démonstrat Caesar verum (proper) non esse eos, •quī suos fīnes tuerī non potuerint, alienos occupăre.
- 6. speculātorēs Caesarī renuntiāvērunt pulverem, māiorem quam consuētūdo ferret, in ea partē viderī in quam legiö iter fēcisset.

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. reperiēbat Gallos, qui ea loca incol—, ā Belg expulsõs esse.
- 2. mos est Suevorum mercator— vendere ea quae bell— cēp—— (perf. indic.).
- 3. animum advertit dux magn- hostium copiinstructās esse.

- 4. hōc proeliō Nerviōrum gens prope ad interneci—redact— est $(red-ig\bar{o}. \ 3. -\bar{e}g\bar{\imath}, -actum).$
- ab eō loc— circiter mīlia pass— septem progress sumus.
- Caesar quorum oper— legatum interfect— esse sciebat eos comprehend— iussit (rel. before its antecedent).

Verbō reddite:

- 1. omnēs sanctissimō iūreiūrandō adactī sunt (adigō. 3).
- 2. consilia de bello in-cantur!
- 3. omnia in virtūte posita existimārent!
- 4. Rhodanus nonnullīs locīs vadō trans-ītur.
- 5. circum-itīs hostium castrīs.

Note in sent. 2, 4, 5, that $e\bar{o}^1$ and its compounds can be used in the passive voice.

LESSON 37.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES IN oratio obliqua—(continued).

After Secondary tenses of the Indic. the pluperf. Subj. in $\ddot{v}r\bar{a}ti\bar{v}$ obliqua regularly represents the fut. perf. Indic. of $\ddot{v}r\bar{a}tio$ recta.

e.g. pollicitī sunt quae imperasset factūros esse.

they promised to do what he ordered.

(recta, faciemus quae imperāveris.)

barbaròrum ducès dixèrunt illis reservatum īrī quaecumque Rōmāni relīquissent.

the leaders of the natives said that whatever the Romans left would be reserved for them.

(recla, vōbīs reservābuntur quaecumque . . . relīquerint.)

dicit i sē eðs hostium numerð habitūrum, nisi iussa fēcissent.

he says he will treat them as enemies if they do not obey his orders.

(recta, egō vos . . . habēbo, nisi fēcerītis.)

After Primary tenses of the Indic. the perf. Subj. is used.

e.g. nisi obsidēs dederint, sēsē cīvitātem bellō persecūtūrum dēmonstrat.

he points out that unless they give hostages, he will make war on their state.

(recta, nisi obsides dederitis . . . persequar).

Latīnē reddite:

The Gallic race (genus, eris, n.) is (one) of great ingenuity, and very-ready (aptus, a, um) at-imitating (ad with gerundive) and making anything (n. pl. of omnis, e) which is imparted by-anybody (ā quōque). Accordingly they undermined our outwork the more skilfully because (v. Less. 28) there are large iron-mines in-their-country (apral eos), and every kind of mine (pl.) is known and familiar (to them). Moreover they had furnished the entire wall with towers in all directions. and had covered them with hides. Then by frequent sorties day (adj.) and night (adj.) they were either setting-fire-to the outwork or attacking the soldiers engaged in (in. abl.) the work (opus, cris, n.). In-addition (praetereā) they delayed (the completion of) our mines by (thrusting in) stakes burnt and sharpened at the ends, and by melted pitch and by stones of great weight.

LESSON 38.

INDIRECT COMMAND AND PETITION.

General Rule:

Verbs of commanding, asking, beseeching advising, persuading and the like, are followed by ut(ī) (affirmative), nē (negative) with the subjunctive.

Such are:

ōrō. 1., I ask, beg.
imperō. 1., I command (dat.).
rogō. 1., I ask (a question).
petō. 3., I beseech.
postulō. 1., I demand.
impetrō. 1., I obtain (by asking).
persuādeō. 2., I persuade, advise (dat.).

The above are very common and should be learnt by heart. cogo often takes the acc. and infin., as iubeo always does,

e.g. iubeō tē hōc facere, but imperō tibi ut hōc faciās.

Note.—(1) The rules for Sequence of Tenses apply in all cases.

(2) ut(ī) is sometimes omitted, especially after $\tilde{o}r\tilde{o}$, $rog\tilde{o}$, $mone\tilde{o}$ (v. Less. 31, 34).

Anglice transferte :

- Caesar lēgātīs imperāvit ut quam plūrimās possent nāvēs aedificārent.
- 2. dux pronuntiari iussit ne quis ab loco discederet.
- 3. postulavit Ariovistus nē Caesar bellum Acduīs inferret.
- 4. lėgātum, ad eum mittit rogātum ut sibi mīlitibusque parcat.
- 5. Britannī ā Caesare ut sibi ignosceret petiērunt.
- 6. Crassus equitum praefectos cohortatur ut suos magnis praemiis excitent.
- 7. Ambiorix Sabīnum monet et ōrat ut suae āc mīlitum salūtī consulat.
- 8. Caesar Cassivellaunō, Britannōrum ducī, imperat nē sociīs noceat.
- 9. Nerviī fīnitimīs suīs persuāserant ut eandem bellī fortūnam experīrentur.
- hostium lēgātī ā Caesare impetrāvērunt ut sibi agrisque suīs parceret.
- 11. Caesar per litterās Treböniō mandāverat nē per vim oppidum expugnārī paterētur.
- 12. dux Nerviīs imperabit ut maiorēs nātū mulieresque ab iniūriā prohibeant.

Latīnē reddenda:

- 1. The enemy beseech Caesar to use clemency towards them.
- 2. The general ordered $(mand\bar{o}. 1.)$ the spies to findout Ariovistus' plans, and to report $(refer\bar{o})$ them to him.
- 3. They could not be persuaded (v. Less. 25) to delay (any) longer.
- 4. The Helvētiī thought (that) they would forcibly (per vim) compel the Allobrogēs to suffer them to go through their territory.
- 5. The general will encourage his soldiers to fight bravely.
- 6. The Aeduī ask $(pet\bar{o}\ \bar{a})$ Vercingetorix (-igis, m.) to impart (to them) the plans of campaign $(bellum\ gerendum)$.
- 7. Caesar saw that the Germans were with-difficulty persuaded (impello. 3.) not to come into Gaul.
- 8. They earnestly (magnopere) besought him not to advance (any) further.

LECTIO.

Orgetorix Helvētiīs, ut ē fīnibus suīs exeant, persuādet.

Apud Helvētios longē nobilissimus fuit et Uītissimus Orgetorix. • Is, M. Messallā et M. Pūpio Pīsone consulbus, regnī cupīditāte inductus cīvitātī persuāsit ut dē fīnibus suīs cum omnibus copiīs exīrent: (dixit) perfacile esse totīus Galliae imperio potīrī.

Id hōc facilius eīs persuāsit quod undique locī nātūrā Helvētiī continentur.

dītissimus, superl. of dīs (dīves), rich.

inductus, tempted (usually in a bad sense, as opp. to adductus).

ratio, onis, f., reason.

item, also, besides.

Dumnorigi, the nom. is Dumnorix.

What word shows that persuādet in l. 14 is historic present?

LESSON 39.

QUĪN AND QUŌMINUS followed by the Subjunctive.

The word quin has two uses:

(1) An interrogative and a negative=why not?

e.y. quin conscendimus equös?

why not mount our horses?

It then becomes a mere conjunction, as quin etiam, moreover, nay even.

- (2) A relative and a negative, used in the meaning of 'who not,' 'but,' 'that,' 'but that,' 'without,' etc., after
 - (a) negatives, e.g. nēmō, nihil, nullus; quasi-negatives, e.g. vix, scarcely; or questions equivalent to a negative.
 - (b) negative¹ clauses of doubt or hesitation (non dubito, nīl dubium est, dubitārī non potest); or hindrance (non retineo, non dēterreo); or refusal (non recuso); or waiting (non exspecto).
 - (c) such phrases as non longe abest, it is not far from (always impers.); facere non possum, I cannot help.
 - e.g. němô est quin hôc sciat.

 there is no one who does not know this (here quīn = quī nōn.²)

² quin=quae non, or quod non is less common e.g. nulla erat civitäs quin (=quae non) Caesarī pārēret.

quis vestrum est quin amico succurreret? who is there of you who would not help a friend? facere non potui quin ad te scriberem.

I could not help writing to you.

Anglicē vertite:

- dixit nīl esse dubium quīn tōtīus Galliac Helvētiī
 *plūrimum possent.
- 2. Orgetorix mortuus est; neque abest suspīciō quīn ipse sibi mortem conscīverit (consciscō. 3.)
- 3. nīl dubium erat quīn dē captīvīs hostēs gravissimum supplicium sūmerent.
- 4. Germānī retinērī non poterant quin in nostros tēla conicerent.
- dux dubitandum sibi non existimābat quīn ad hostēs proficiscerētur.
- 6. non longe aberat quin naves paratae essent.

quōminus, from (=ut eō minus, in order that by this the less., v. Less. 42) is used after verbs of refusing, or hindrance (recūsō, impediō, prohibeō etc.).

- e.g. non recūsāmus quōminus sub imperio populī Romānī sīmus.
 - we do not refuse to be (lit. 'by which the less we may be') under the sway of the Roman
 - people.
 - nāvēs ventō tenēbantur quōminus, in portum venīre possent.
 - the ships were kept by the wind from making harbour.

Latin \tilde{e} vertenda:

- 1. In this crisis no-one was so brave that-he-was-not $(qu\bar{\imath}n)$ frightened.
- The mere thought (exspectātiō, f.) of death cannot hinder men from (quōminus) rushing (irrumpō.
 bravely on (their) foes.
- 3. He said that it could not be doubted that (quīn), if they were conquered (what tense and mood?), they would lose (āmittō. 3) their liberty.
- 4. Who would-refuse (imperf. subj.) to (quōminus) die for his country?
- 5. The war-ships were nearly ready for launching (say 'it was not fur (multum) distant but-that the war-ships could be launched').
- 6. We do not refuse to $(qu\bar{\imath}n)$ fight $(arm\bar{\imath}s\ contend\bar{o}.\ 3)$ if we are attacked $(pres.\ subj.)$.
- 7. When news of this battle arrived (say 'this battle having been heard') the greater part of Aquītānia voluntarily (ultrō) sent hostages to the conqueror.
- 8. He could not prevent (dēterr-cō. 2. -vī) his friend from (quīn) facing (sub-cō, -īre, -iī) the danger along with him.

Quod dē-est suppeditāte:

- 1. eōs hortātus est in eā sententiā perman—...
- 2. nilfil in agrīs frūment— erat quīn succ-(3rd sing. pluperf. subj. pass. of succīdō).
- 3. respondērunt mīlitēs sēsē non recūs— quominus summ— perīcul— occurr—.
- 4. quid t— impediit quōm—— ad mē venī——?
- 5. mīlit—— persuādē— (fut. indic. act.) utī arma capi— et in hostēs contend——.
- 6. pax exspect—— (gerundive) non est ab eis qu ultro bellum inferunt.

- 8. dīcēbant omnēs exspectā— diūtius non oportēre qu— ad castra īrē— (3rd sing. imperf. subj. pass. of eō).

Note.—The Infin. is often used (instead of the quōminus constr.) after verbs of refusing or hindrance.

e.g. Belgae Cimbrös intrā fīnēs suōs ingredī prohibuērunt. hostēs nostrōs nāvibus ēgredī prohibent. quid est quod hōc fierī impediat? quis pro patriā morī recūsāret? (cf. sent. 4, p. 168).

LESSON 40.

RECAPITULATORY.

- 1. Decline in Sing. and Pl. princeps, nobilis, homo.

- 13. Parse nollet, mallētis, potuerit, ferris, circumitīs.

LESSON 41.

FINAL CLAUSES.

Clauses expressing purpose or intention (Lat. finis, is, m., an aim) are expressed in various ways.

- (a) by the supine in -um after verbs of motion, v. Less. 8.
- (b) by the gerundive with ad, causā, v. Less. 18 and 19.
- (c) less frequently by the gerund with ad, causā, v. Less. 17.
- (d) by ut(ī), 'that, in order that (affirmative), nē, in order that not, lest (negative), and by relative pronouns and relative adverbs, all foll by the Subj.

It is of (d) that this Lesson and the next treat.

he sends forward engineers to (in order that they may) undermine the walls.

mulierēs eum implorābant nē sē in servitūtem trāderet.

the women implored him not to (in order that he might not) deliver them into slavery.

This Final Subj. is an extension of the use of the Jussive Subj. (Less. 31). Thus:

he sends forward engineers . . . let them undermine. the women implored him . . . let him not send.

Fill in the spaces in the following table, following the rules for the Sequence of Tenses:

fabrōs praemittit ut (quī) mūrōs subruant. fabrōs praemittet ut (quī) mūrōs ——. fabrōs praemīsit (pres. perf.) ut (quī) mūrōs ——. fabrōs praemīsit (aor. perf.) ut (quī) mūrōs ——. fabrōs praemīserat ut (quī) mūrōs ——.

Anglicē dīcenda:

- Caesar prope hostēs castra posuit cō consiliō ut frūmentō eōs interclūderet.
- 2. magnīs itineribus contendit nē quid spatī ad sē colligendos hostibus dētur.
- 3. barbarī ut turpitūdinem pristinae fugae dēlērent fortissimē pugnābant.
- 4. speculātōrēs dīmittit explōrātum quö commodissimē itinere vallem transīre possit.
- 5. lēgātum mīsit quī provinciae praeesset.
- 6. alium castrīs locum, nē diūtius commeātū prohibērētur, dēlēgit.
- 7. Ariovistus mīlia hominum xvi quī nostrōs mūnitiōne prohibērent mīsit.
- 8. castella dux constituit ibi-que tormenta collocat në hostës suös circumvenire possent.

Parse exploratum in sent. 4.

$Lat\bar{\imath}n\bar{e}\ reddenda$:

- 1. Labiēnus was left on the continent in order that he might guard the harbours.
- 2. Ambassadors came to him to $(qu\bar{\imath})$ promise to give $(fut.\ infin.)$ hostages.
- 3. Caesar commands (imperō) the enemy not-to (nē) injure his allies.
- 4. The ambassadors said they would return on the third day; meanwhile they begged (petō. 3) him not-to move his camp nearer (them).
- 5. There were no other ships in-which the army could be taken-back (reporto. 1).
- 6. The general sent (men) to the officers to $(qu\bar{t})$ announce that-they-should-not $(n\bar{e})$ attack-the-enemy (hostes proelio lucessere, 3).
- 7. He spoke in a louder (clārus, a, um) voice with this intention (consilium, ilī. n.) that most (maxima pars) of the soldiers might hear.
- 8. The Germans have no private land (say 'nothing of private land') lest they become-eager (studeō.
 2) to-amass (infin. of parō. 1) broad territories, (and) lest the more powerful expel from-their properties the more humble.
- 9. Caesar sent-forward the archers and slingers to dislodge the enemy from (their) position.
- 10. Labiēnus had been ordered by Caesar not-to engage-battle.

LECTIÕ.

Rōmānī cum Belgīs conflīgunt.

Palūs erat non magna inter nostrum atque hostium exercitum. Hanc $s\bar{\imath}$ nostrī transīrent hostēs exspectābant; nostrī autem, sī ab illīs initium transeundī fieret, ut impedītos aggrederentur parātī in armīs erant. Interim proelio equestrī inter duās acies contendēbātur. Ubi neutrī transeundī initium faciunt, Caesar pulsīs hostibus suos in castra reduxit.

Hostēs prōtinus ex eō locō ad flūmen Axonam contendērunt. Ibi vadīs repertīs partem suārum cōpiārum trādūcere cōnātī sunt eō consiliō ut, sī possent, castellum cui praeerat Q. Titūrius lēgātus, expugnārent pontem-que interscinderent; sī minus potuissent, agrōs Rēmōrum populārentur, quī magnō nōbīs ūsuī ad bellum gerendum erant.

sī, to see if (after exspectābant). contendēbātur, impers., v. Less. 25.

neutrī, neither side (nom. pl. masc. of neuter, tra, trum).

Axona, the modern Aisne, a tributary of the Seine (Sēquana).

minus, here=non.

Mention all the Final clauses in this passage.

What instances are there of (a) the gerund, (b) the gerundive, (c) the abl. absol.?

Explain the dat. magnō ūsuī.

Vīvā Vāce:

1. quid inter hostës äc Rōmānōs erat? 2. quae hostium pugnae ratiō erat? 3. quae nostrōrum? 4. quōmodo contendēbātur? 5. quō nōmine Axona flūmen hodiē appellātur? 6. quō consiliō hostēs Axonam transīre cōnantur? 7. quā dē causā Belgae Rēmōrum agrōs populārī voluērunt?

Quod dē-est suppeditāte:

- 1. Caesar ut hostes ulcisc proficisc constituerat.
- 2. cohort— quinque mittuntur qu— sociōs nostrōs obsidiōn— līberā——
- 3. dux su— imperāvit nē qu— tēlum in hostēs reic-

- 5. Ariovistus sēdecim mīlia hominum, quī nostrõs mūnitiōn— prohibērent, mī——.
- 6. Caesar tribūn— mīlitum monuit ut paulā—— sēsē legiōnēs coniung——.

LESSON 42.

FINAL CLAUSES (continued).

In clauses of purpose containing a comparative, $qu\bar{o}$ is used instead of ut.

- e.g. dux suos cohortatur quō māiōre animō contendant.
 - the leader exhorts his-men, so that they may fight with greater spirit.
 - magnīs itincribus contendēbat quō celerius ad oppidum pervenīret.
 - he was hastening by forced marches in order that he might reach the town quicker.

cf. quōminus, Less. 39.

The relative adverbs ubi, where; quō, whither; unde, whence; quemadmodum, how; are followed by the Subj. of purpose.

- e.g. locum idöneum dēlēgit ubi castra poneret.
 - he chose a suitable place to (where he might) encamp.
 - non habuërunt quo se reciperent.
 - they had not (a place) whither they might retreat.
 - in locum superiorem progressi sunt unde tela facilius mitterent.
 - they advanced to higher ground whence they might discharge their weapons more easily.

Anglicē vertite:

- 1. lēgātī ad Caesarem mittuntur quī doceant sēsē parātos esse dē iniūriīs satisfacere.
- 2. nonnullae cohortes longiore itinere circumductae erant ne ab hostibus conspicerentur.
- 3. īrātō duce nīl dubium est quīn captīvī gravissimō suppliciō adficiantur.
- 4. quam aequissimo loco potest castra ponit.
- non habuērunt barbarī quemadmodum sē dēfenderent.
- castella commūnit quo facilius hostes prohibere possit.
- 7. satis causae esse arbitrābātur quārē eum pūnīret.
- 8. Venetōrum nāvium carīnae aliquantō plāniōrēs quam nostrārum nāvium factae erant, quō facilius vada āc dēcessum aestūs excipere possent.

Latīnē reddenda:

By-this battle the war with (say 'of') the Veneti and the whole sea-board (gen.) was finished. For both (cum) all the young-men, and all of maturer-years (gravior actās, ātis, f.) in whom there was some(thing of) resource and rank had assembled there (cō), and (tum) they had collected into one spot all their ships. When-these-were-lost (abl. absol.) the remainder had no place to retreat-to (say 'neither whither they might retreat') nor means of defending (say 'how they might defend') their towns. Accordingly they surrendered to-Caesar. He decided that they ought to be more-severely punished in order that for-the-future the rights (sing.) of ambassadors might be observed more-carefully by natives. Having therefore killed all their senate (abl. absol.) he sold the rest as-slaves (sub $cor\bar{o}n\bar{a}^{\,1}$).

VOCABULARY.

I surrender, mē dē-dō. 3. -didī, -ditum.
severely, graviter.

- 7. is homo summ— audāci— (abl.) fuit.
- 8. ea, quae ad reficiend— nāv— ūsuī• erant, comportārīn ius—.

¹ corona, ae, f. lit. a chaplet of flowers, because captives for sale were so crowned.

LESSON 43.

CONSECUTIVE CLAUSES.

Clauses expressing result or consequence (Lat. consequer. 3. -secūtus) are, if affirmative, translated by ut(ī), so that; if negative, by ut . . . non, so that not.

In both cases the mood is the Subjunctive.

Consecutive clauses are introduced by such words as sīc, ita, tam, adeō; so.

is, ea, id, such; ēiusmodī, of this kind; tantus, so great, such;

and by such verbs as

- efficio. 3., I effect, bring about; accidit. 3., it happens or happened; fit, factum est, the result is, was; futurum est, the result will be.
- e.g. hostēs tantam virtūtem praestant ut vix fugentur.
 - the enemy show such bravery that they are with difficulty put to flight.
 - oppidum nātūrā locī sīc mūnītum est ut facile dēfendī posset.
 - the town was so fortified by its position that it could be easily defended.
 - ea praesentia animī mīlitum erat ut nēmo locum relinqueret.
 - such was the soldiers' presence of mind that no one left his place.

The relative qui, quae, quod, meaning 'such that,' often preceded by such words as complüres, several; unus, one, only; solus, alone, is used consecutively.

e.g. repertī sunt complūrēs quī scūta manibus revellerent.

there were found several to (so that they) tear the shields apart with their hands.

Belgae sölī erant quī nos prohibuerint.

the Belgae were the only people to check us.

v. also p. 210 Lectio, l. 5; p. 256, l. 3, 15, 19; p. 258, l. 5.

Anglicē dīcenda:

- 1. eā celeritāte atque eō impetū mīlitēs iērunt ut hostēs consistere nōn audērent.
- sed tam celeriter discēdunt ut fugae similis discessus videātur.
- secutae sunt tempestates quae nostros in castris continerent.
- 4. erant ēiusmodī sitūs oppidōrum ut in extrēmīs promunturis ponerentur.
- 5. Helvētiī dixērunt sē ita ā patribus suīs didicisse ut magis virtūte quam dolō contenderent.

¹ The pluperf. subj. is very rare in consecutive clauses; otherwise we might have expected prohibuissent.

- 6. 'ūnus sum' inquit 'quī addūcī non potuerim ut obsidēs darem.'
- 7. 'non sum is' inquit 'quī mortis perīculō terrear.'
- 8. tanta tempestās subitō coorta est ut nulla nāvis cursum tenēre posset.
- 9. collis tam silvestris erat ut non facile introrsus (to within) perspici posset.
- 10. Ariovistus dixit sē non tam barbarum esse ut ea ignorāret.
- 11. accidit ut ex tantō nāvium numerō nulla omnīnō nāvis dēsīderārētur.
- 12. dixit futurum esse ut legione prīmā pulsā reliquae consistere non audērent.
- 13. dixit non sine causă fieri ut Gallia omni nobilităte spoliăretur.
- 14. in tantō rērum discrīmine accidit, quod, fierī necesse erat, ut mīlitēs ab signīs discēderent.

Latīnē reddenda:

- 1. So frightened were the enemy that they did not cease from-flight until they reached (pluperf. subj.) their own camp.
- 2. The nature of the place was of such-a-kind $(\bar{e}iusmod\bar{i})$ that weapons could be hurled $(ad-ig\bar{o}. 3.^{\circ}-\bar{e}gi, -actum)$ from above.
- 3. They threw such a number $(multit\bar{u}d\bar{o}.\ inis.\ f.)$ of arms $(arma, \bar{o}rum.\ n.\ pl.)$ over $(d\bar{e})$ the wall that they reached $(adaequ\bar{o}.\ 1.)$ its summit.

- 4. So-great a calm suddenly ensued $(ex\text{-}sist\bar{o}.$ 3. $-stit\bar{\iota})$ that the ships could not move.
- 5. Such was the temper of the whole army that no one despaired of $(d\bar{e})$ victory.
- 6. So-great an appearance of fear did Sabīnus manifest, that the enemy dared to come-up-to (accēdō. 3.) the very stockade.
- 7. Storms of-such-a-kind supervened (sequor. 3.) that the work was necessarily suspended.
- 8. Our-men rushed at the enemy so fiercely and they (i.e. the enemy) fled (prō-currō. 3. -currī) so quickly, that time (spatium, tī, ħ.) was not given for (say 'of') throwing weapons.
- 9. It-happened on the same night that there was a full moon.
- The Suēvī by daily training bring-about that their beasts of burden are (capable) of great exertion (labor, ōris, m.).

LECTIO.

Prīmipīlus.

In legione Romānā, ut in prīmo nostro libro suprā diximus, circiter tria mīlia sescentī mīlitēs erant. Legio in cohortēs decem, cohors in manipulos trēs, manipulus in centuriās duās dīvīsus est. Itaque circiter sexāgintā mīlitēs in centuriā erant. Centuriīs praeerant centurionēs, quorum cohortī sex, legionī sexāgintā erant. Ad proelium committendum legiō Rōmāna saepissimē aciē triplicī instruēbātur. Prīma aciēs ex quattuor, altera ex tribus, tertia item ex tribus cohortibus consistēbat. Centuriōnum omnītum princeps 'prīmipīlus' appellābātur. Hōc nōmen ab antīquiōribus temporibus sumptum est, cum tertia aciēs, quam triāriōs tum vocābant Rōmānī et tōtius exercitūs maximō in honōre habēbant, in pīlōs prō manipulīs dīvīsa est. Decem legiōnis summī centuriōnēs, quōrum singulī in singulīs cohortibus erant, 'prīmī ordinēs' vel 'prīmōrum ordinum centuriōnēs' appellābantur.

The word prīmipīlus, ī, m., is formed from the words prīmus, first, and pīlus, a division of the triāriī. Hence prīmipīlus is short for prīmī pīlī centuriō, which is sometimes written in full.

e.g. P. Sextius Baculus, prīmī pīlī centuriō.

Such a person was sometimes said 'prīmum pīlum dūcere.'

Vīvā Vōce:

1. circiter quot mīlitēs in legione erant? 2. legionī quot manipulī erant? 3. quot centuriae? 4. quī centuriīs praeerant? 5. quōmodo plērumque aciēs Rōmāna instruēbātur? 6. quī erant triāriī? 7. quō nōmine centuriōnum princeps appellābātur?

LESSON 44.

INDIRECT QUESTION.

The verbs in indirect questions are always put in the Subj. mood, the rules for Sequence of Tenses being followed.

Direct Question.	Indirect Question.
quis es ? who are you?	rogō quis sīs. I ask who you are. rogāvi quis sīs. I have asked who you are. rogābō quis sīs. I shall ask who you are. rogāverō quis sīs. I shall have asked who you are.
quis hōc fēcit? who has done (did) this?	rogō quis hōc fēcerit. I ask who did (has done) this. similarly—rogābō, rogāvī, rogāverō quis hōc fēcerit. rogābam quis hōc faceret. I was asking who did (was doing) this. rogāvī quis hōc faceret. I asked who was doing (did) this. rōgāvī quis hōc fēcisset. I asked who had done this.

e.g. quid suum consilium sit ostendit.

he shows what his plan is.

ēius rēī quae causa esset quaesiit.

he asked what was the reason of that.

(direct—hūius rēī quae causa est?)

'whether' is expressed by num or -ne.

'or' is expressed by an.

'whether 1 . . . or 'is expressed by num utrum an (same as direct).

'or not' is expressed by nec-ne (direct, an non).

e.g. dubitābant num captīvum ignī necārent an in aliud reservārent (or dubitābant captīvum-ne ignī, etc.).

they were in doubt whether to kill the captive by fire or reserve him for some other fute. • pater fīlium interrogāvit utrum fēcisset nec-ne.

the father asked his son whether he had done it or not.

Anglicë dicenda vel scribenda:

- Caesar ex captīvīs quaerit quamobrem Ariovistus proeliö non decertet.
- 2. ab Rēmīs postulāvit quae quantae-que cīvitātēs in armīs essent.
- 3. dux exploratoribus mandavit ut quae facerent hostes cognoscerent.

¹ The 'whether' is sometimes omitted altogether, and an or -ne with the second clause expresses the whole of the double question.

- 4. propter arborum multitūdinem quid in quāque parte fieret perspicī non poterat.
- 5. flumen tantā lēnitāte fluit ut oculīs, in utram partem fluat, iudicārī non possit.
- · 6. praemittit (mīlitēs) quī videant (v. Less. 41) quās in partēs hostēs iter faciant.
 - 7. quanto in perículo et castra et legiones et imperator versarentur cognoverat.
 - 8. tum dēmum barbarī intellegēbant quantam calamitātem cīvitātī suae intulissent.

Put any four of the above into the form of Direct question, e.g. in No. 1 Caesar asks 'quamobrem . . • non decertat?'

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. Caesar places guards over-Dumnorix (dat.) in order that he may know what he does, (and) with whom he talks.
- 2. Our-men by their speedy attack do not give the enemy an opportunity of finding-out what is-happening $(f\bar{\imath}\bar{o})$.
- 3. The general did not know what plan of battle the enemy would adopt (insistō. 3).
- 4. He tells the messenger what he wishes (to be) done.
- 5. They could not see what (say 'what of a thing') was happening.
- 6. The Gauls compel travellers to say (prōnuntiō 1) from what districts they come and what is happening there.

- 7. He reached the enemy's camp before the Germans could (imperf. subj.) perceive what was happening.
- 8. The-latter $(h\bar{\imath})$ hesitated $(dubit\bar{\imath}.$ 1) whether it-were-better (praestat, v. Less. 24) to defend the camp, or to seek safety in flight.
- 9. Caesar having summoned (vocō. 1) merchants (abl. absol.) from-all-sides, yet could not discover how large Britain was (say 'how-great was the size of Britain') nor what tribes inhabited . (it), nor what system (ūsus, ūs, m.) of war they had, nor what customs (institūtum, ī, n.) they observed (say 'used').

LECTIŌ.

Quōmodo Venetōrum nāvēs factae sunt.

Venetörum nāvēs ad hunc modum factae armātaeque erant: prōrae admodum ērectae atque item puppēs ad magnitūdinem fluctuum accommodātae; nāvēs tōtae factae ex rōbore ad quamvīs vim perferendam; ancorae prō fūnibus ferreīs catēnīs revinctae; pellēs prō vēlis sīve propter līnī inopiam sīve eō, quod est magis vērī simile, quod magnās tempestātēs vēlis sustinērī nōn posse arbitrābantur.

Tanta autem nāvium firmitūdō erat ut eīs $rostr\bar{o}$ nocērī nōn posset. $Acc\bar{e}d\bar{e}bat$ ut et tempestātēs facilius quam nāvēs nostrae ferrent, et in vadīs tūtius consisterent, et ab aestū relictae nihil saxa et cautēs timērent; quārum rērum omnium nostrīs nāvibus cāsus erat extimescendus.

robur, oris, n., oak.

quamvīs, however great (lit. 'what you please'), acc. sing. fem. of quī-vis.

vērī simile, probable (lit. 'like the truth').

rostrum, i. n. ram (of a ship).

accēdēbat, impers., v. Less. 29.

nihil, not at all (adverbial use).

cāsus, ūs. m., chance, occurrence.

What kind of subj. is posset? What case is nostrīs nāvibus, and why? Would nāvēs nocērī nön possent be correct here? If not, why not?

Vīvā Vāce:

1. nonne Venctōrum nāvēs magnae firmitūdinis erant? 2. ex quō nāvēs factae sunt? 3. quā dē causā? 4. quamobrem Venetī pellibus prō vēlīs ūtēbantur? 5. num fūnibus ancorae revineīrī solēbant? 6. quae nostrīs nāvibus erant extimescenda?

Caution.—Do not think that Indirect Questions must necessarily be introduced by a verb of asking. The construction required by Indirect Question is found after many other verbs, e.g. doceō, dēmonstrō, ostendō, nuntiō; cognoscō, dubitō, intellegō, constituō (settle), iūdicō, videō, prōvideō, prōpōnō (show), praecipiō, etc.

v. also p. 255, l. 27; p. 256, ll. 1, 2, 3.

LESSON 45.

SOME USES OF THE GENITIVE CASE.

A. The genitive after Adjectives.

insuetus navigandi, unaccustomed to sailing. imperitus rērum, unskilled (in things). plēnus vīnī cadus, a cask full of wine. cupidus rērum novārum, eager for a revolution.

B. The genitive after Nouns.

'nomen insaniae, the name (of) folly (Definition). aeris lībra, a pound of bronze (Material). vir magnae virtūtis, a man of great bravery (Quality).

N.B.—The gen. of Quality always has an adjective in agreement (cf. the abl. of Quality, cīvitās magnā auctoritāte).

C. The genitive with est=it is a mark of, it comes under the heading of.

summī laboris est, it is a (matter of) great difficulty. dignitatis est, prestige demands (it comes under the heading of prestige).

D. The genitive after Verbs.

reminiscor. 3. I remember memoriam-retineō. 2 paenitet, it repents (v. Less. 24).

E. Partitive genitive.

The gen, is used of that of which a part is taken.

mīlitum pars, some of the soldiers.
 nonnullī nostrum, some of us.
 aliquid dētrīmentī, some (thing of a) loss.

F. Possessive genitive.

mīlitis arma, the soldier's armour.

But liber meus, my book; the nom. of the possessive adjectives being always used.

The phrase Romanorum timor may mean either

- (1) fear of somebody else felt by the Romans, where the Romans are subjects of fear (possessive gen.); or
- (2) fear of the Romans felt by somebody else, where the Romans are objects of fear (objective gen.).

The Possessive and Objective genitives are often united.

e.g. veterės Helvētiōrum iniūriae populī Rōmānī.

the ancient wrongs done by the Helvētiī (possessive) to the Roman people (objective).

G. The genitive of Value.1

Indefinițe value is expressed by the words parvī, magnī, tantī, plūris, minōris, etc.

e.g. magnī, parvī interest, it is of great, small importance.

magnī intererat manus hostium distinērī, it was of great importance that the hostile bands should be kept apart.

hunc equum plūris quam tū tuum ēmī.

I bought this horse for more than you bought yours.

Definite value is put in the ablative (cf. Less. 55).

villam trīgintā talentīs ēmī.

I bought an estate for thirty talents.

Anglicē dīcenda:

- 1. Venetī rērum nauticārum perītissimī erant.
- 2. omnium Germāniae flūminum maximus est Rhēnus.
- 3. sine ullo exercitus perīculo victoria potītī samus.
- 4. tantī apud mē grātia tua est ut tibi ignoscam.
- 5. is homō magnae auctōritātis habitus est.
- 6. magnī interesse arbitrābātur auctöritātem suam quam plūrimum valēre.
- barbarī dixērunt sē nostrae consuētūdinis imperītôs bellum fēcisse.
- 8. duo summae speī adulescentēs obsidēs missī sunt.
- 9. est hoc Gallicae consuētūdinis ut mercātōrēs in oppidīs vulgus circumsistat.

A talent was about £240.

- 45.
 - exspectare dum (until) hostium copiae augerentur summae dementiae esse iūdicabat.
- 11. (dixit) në veteris contumëliae obliviscerëtur, nëve recentium iniūriarum memoriam deponeret.
- 12. Labiēnus mīlitēs cohortātus est ut suae pristinaevirtūtis et secundissimōrum proeliōrum memoriam retinērent.

Quod $d\bar{e}$ -est suppeditāte:

- 1. summ— potenti— adulescens erat.
- 2. ēius auctoritās magn— habēbātur.
- 3. rēs erat mult— labor—.
- 4. docet quanto opere id reīpublic— communisque salūtis inter—.
- Rhēnum nāvibus transīre neque suae neque popul— Rōmān— dignitā— arbitrātus est.
- 6. sapient— est pauc— loqui.

LECTIO.

Qui primo irrident postremo macrebunt.

Ubi hostēs turrim procul ā Rōmānīs constituī vīdērunt, prīmum irrīdēre ex mūrō atque increpitūre vōcibus quod tanta māchinātiō ab tantō spatiō instrucrētur: quibusnam manibus aut quibus vīribus praesertim hominēs tantulae statūrae (nam plērumque hominibus Gallīs prae magnitūdine corporum suōrum brevitās nostra contemptuī est) tantī oneris turrim in mūrōs sēsē collocātūrōs confiderent?

Ubi vērō movērī et appropinquāre mūrīs vīdērunt, novā speciē commōtī lēgātōs ad Caesarem dē pāce mīsērunt, quī ad hunc modum locūtī sunt: nōn existimāre Rōmānōs sine ope dīvīnā bellum gerere, quī tentae altitūdinis māchinātiōnēs tantā celeritāte prōmovēre possent; itaque sē suaque omnia Caesarī dēditūrōs (esse).

turrim, acc. sing. of turris, is, f.

irrīdēre, increpitāre, are called 'Historic' Infinitives, and are often used in narrative instead of a finite verb in the imperfect tense. Translate 'began to scoff and jeer.'

ab, at (a distance of).

quibusnam (abl. pl. of qui-nam, quae-nam, quod-nam), by what, pray? used sarcastically.

collocaturos, verbs of hoping and trusting are usually followed by the fut. infin. (v. p. 198, l. 3, and p. 207, l. 5).

ope (abl. sing. of ops, opis, f.1), help, assistance.

¹ The nom. sing. is not found except as the name of a goddess.

LESSON 46.

CAUSAL CLAUSES.

Causal clauses are those that express cause or reason (Lat. causa, ae, f.).

General Rule.

If a real reason is stated, the verb is put in the Indic., if an imaginary reason or one given by some one else than the writer is stated, the verb is put in the Sübj.

e.g. magister discipulos pūnīvit quod ignāvī fuerant.

the master punished the pupils because (as a fact) they had been idle.

but magister discipulos pūnīvit quod ignāvī fuissent.

the master punished the pupils because (as he had been told) they had been idle.

N.B.—If a causal clause expressing real reason (and therefore in the Indic.) is put into $\bar{o}r\bar{a}ti\bar{o}$ obliqua, the Indic. is, by the rules given in Less. 36 and 37, changed to the Subj.

The Subj. is used in negative causal clauses when the reason is intaginary.

e.g. non quia līnum non habeant, sed quia satis forte non est.

not because they have no flux, but because it is not sufficiently strong.

Causal clauses are introduced by quod, quia, proptereā quod, quoniam, cum, all meaning since or because.

N.B.—cum, since, always takes the Subj.

Anglice vertenda:

- 1. oppidum eo facilius defendi poterat quod flumine paene cingebatur.
- 2. hõc proeliõ hostēs sublātī sunt quia quingentīs equitibus magnam multitūdinem propulerant.
- 3. Aeduī cum sē suaque dēfendere nōn possent, lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittunt rogātum auxilium.
- 4. frūmentō ūtī nōn poterat, proptereā quod hostēs eum illō prohibēbant.
- 5. hostēs repentīnē Rēmānērum adventū perterritī sunt, cum id, quod ipsī vix diēbus xx confēcerant, eēs ūnē die fēcisse intellegerent.
- 6. Caesar, bellum ut conficerētur, sibi mātūrandum statuit, praesertim cum hiems appropinquāret.
- quoniam lēgātum suum obsidione līberātum (esse) sciēbat, sēcūrus dum (until) reliquae copiae pervenīrent exspectābat.
- 8. hostēs, cum diútius nostrōrum impetum sustinēre nōn possent, terga vertērunt.
- Dumnorix Helvētiīs erat amīcus, quod ex eā cīvitāte Orgetorigis fīliam in mātrimonium duxerat.
- 10. Aeduī ad Caesarem vēnērunt questum quod Harūdēs fīnēs suōs populārentur.

From this Lesson onwards to the end of the Book the Lectiones are in the form of a continuous narrative dealing with certain events in Gaul at the end of the year 54 B.C.

After Caesar's return to Gaul from his second expedition to Britain in that year he found it necessary, owing to scarcity of corn, to distribute his legions among several states. One legion under Q. Cicerō was sent to winter among the Nervii (modern Hainault), and 15 cohorts under Sabīnus and Cotta were dispatched to a place called Aduātuca, in the country of the Eburōnēs (near modern Liège).

Here Sabīnus and Cotta with their army were cut to pieces by the Eburōnēs under Ambiorix, and the latter elated by his victory persuaded the Aduātuci and Nerviī to help him to attack Cicerō.

What happened is told in the next and following 'Lectiones.'

LECTIO.

Cicerō in Nerviīs obsidētur.

Barbarī quam maximās manūs possunt cōgunt et dē imprōvīsō ad Cicerōnis hīberna udvolant, nondum ad eum fāmā dē Sabīnī morte perlātā. Huic quoque accidit ut nonnullī mīlitēs, quī lignātiōnis mūnitiōnisque causā in silvās discessissent, repentīnō equitum adventū interciperentur.

Eīs circumventīs, magnā manū Eburōnēs, Nerviī, Aduātucī atque hōrum omnium sociī et clientēs legionem oppugnāre incipiunt. Nostrī celeriter ad arma concurrunt, vallum conscendunt. Aegrē is diēs advolō. 1., I run to (lit. 'fly to'): historic pres. perlātā, perf. part. pass. of per-ferō, -ferre, -tulī, -lātum. huic, i.e. Cicerōnī.

'sustentātur, proptereā quod omnem spem' hostēs in celeritāte pōnēbant, atque hanc adeptī victōriam in perpetuum sē fore victōrēs confīdēbant.

discessissent is in the Subj. because it refers to a word (mīlitēs) which is in a subordinate clause.

adeptī., perf. part. of adipiscor. 3. q.v.

Vīvā Yōce:

1. quae nātiōnēs Cicerōnis hīberna oppugnant?
2. ā quō ut haec facerent adductī sunt? 3. quōs Ambiorix nūper (recently) superāverat ūnā cum exercitū eōrum? 4. quārum rērum causā nonnullī mīlītēs Cicerōnis castra relīquerant? 6. cūr barbarī tam celeriter rem conficere studēbant (were eager)?

LESSON 47.

CAUSAL CLAUSES—(continued).

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. He hastened into Illyricum because (cum) he wished to find-out-about (cognoscö. 3) those districts.
- *2. The Aquītānī are very-skilful in mining, because there are mines (aerāria, ae, f.) in-their-country (apud eos).
 - 3. The Ubiī are more-civilised than the-rest (cēterī, ōrum, m. pl.) of the same race, because merchants come-frequently to them.
 - 4. Caesar ordered the ambassadors to return to him at the beginning of summer (abl. absol. v. p. 52) because he was hastening to Italy.
 - 5. As (cum) the fortifications were not completed, the soldiers worked with the greater zeal.
 - 6. As Crassus perceived that he had-to-wage-war (gerundive) on-uneven-terms (inīquō loco), he decided to use great caution (dīligentia, ae, f.)
 - 7. The chiefs of Britain perceiving (say 'since they perceived') that the Romans lacked (say 'there was-lacking to the Romans') cavalry, ships, (and) corn, thought it to be a good opportunity to (say 'of') resume-hostilities (rebellionem facere; gen. of gerundive).

- 8. It-was perceived that this kind of fight was dangerous to our cavalry, because the enemy for-the-most-part retreated designedly.
- 9. Themistocles used-to-walk (imperf.) at-night because (as he said) he could (indic. or subj.!) not sleep (somnum capiö. 3).
 - Socrates was accused (accūsō. 1) because (as was alleged) he corrupted (corrumpō. 3) youngmen.

A causal clause is often replaced by a participle.

e.g. longius prōsequī veritus.

because he feared to pursue further.

omnia frustrā expertī.

as they had tried everything in vain.

Quod de-est suppeditate:

- 1. nostrī hostēs circumvent— interfic— (imperf. indic. act.) vel perterr— in fug— cōniciēbant.
- 2. sentičbat quantum auctörit— (gen.) hostës höc ūn— proeliö consecūti ——
- 3. hostēs, signō datō dēcurr— (historic infin.), lapidēs in vallum cōnic—— (historic infin.).
- 4. quinque cohortes frument— (supine) missae erant.

LECTIÔ

Quōmodo sē dēfendit Cicerō.

Mittuntur ad Caesarem confestim ab Cicerone litterae, magnīs propositīs praemiīs, sī pertulissent; obsessīs omnibus viīs missī intercipiuntur. Noctū ex māteriā quam mūnitionis causā comportāverant turrēs admodum centum xx excitantur incredibilī celeritāte; quae dē-esse operī vidēbantur perficiuntur. Hostēs postero diē multo māioribus coactīs copiīs castra oppugnant, fossam complent.

Eādem ratione, quā prīdie, ab nostrīs resistitur. Nulla pars nocturnī temporis ad laborem intermittitur; non aegrīs, non vulnerātīs facultas quietis datur. Quaecumque ad proximī dieī oppugnātionem opus sunt noctū comparantur: multae pracustae sudes, magnus mūrālium pīlorum numerus instituitur; turrēs contabulantur, pinnae lorīcae-que ex crātibus attexuntur.

Ipse Cicerō, cum tenuissimā valētūdine esset, nē nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quiētem relinquēbat, ut $ultr\bar{o}$ mīlitum $concurs\bar{u}$ āc $v\bar{o}cibus$ sibi parcere cōgerētur.

pertulissent, sc. nuntil (understood from the context).

obsessis viis, as the roads were beset (causal).

resistitur, impers.

opus, a necessity.

praeustus, a, um, hardened (by fire) at the end.

pila mūrālia, javelins hurled at the enemy from the walls.

pinna, ae, f., a pinnacle.

lorica, ae, f., a parapet. What is its commoner meaning ?

cum, although.

ultrō, against his wish.

voices,' i.e. by the entreaties of the soldiers who assembled in a body.

Point out in this passage (1) an abl. absol., (2) a consecutive clause, (3) a historic pres., (4) an abl. of Quality.

Vīvā Vōce:

1. quam ob causam cum litterīs missī interceptī sunt? 2. quā valētūdine erat Cicerō? 3. num eō magis sibi parcēbat? 4. quid igitur fēcērunt mīlitēs?

LESSON 48.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

Temporal clauses show the time (Lat. tempus, oris, n.) of events described in the Principal sentence.

General Rule.

They are in the Indic. if they merely denote time, but in the Subj. if they imply an idea of purpose, doubt, cause or intention.

They are introduced by $$\begin{array}{l} \textbf{priusquam}^{\, 1} \\ \textbf{antequam}^{\, 1} \end{array} \right\} \, before \left\{ \begin{aligned} & \textbf{quoad}, \, as \, long \, as, \, until. \\ & \textbf{dum}, \, while, \, until. \end{aligned} \right.$$ cum, when, takes the imperf. and pluperf. Subj.; in other tenses the Indic.

e.g. haec cum fecisset, abiit.

when he had done this, he went away.
haec cum feceris, abi!

when you (shall) have done this, go away!

When the clauses are inverted, cum takes the Indic.

e.g. iam vēr appetēbat cum Caesar ex hībernīs discessit.

spring was already approaching when Cdesar left his winter-quarters.

vide also p. 42, Lectiō, l. 4; p. 63, Lectiō, l. 7; p. 108, l. 9.

fdum, while, takes the Indic. (usually the pres. tense even of past time).

e.g. dum haec geruntur.

• while this was happening. v. also p. 259, l. 1.

dum, until, takes the Subj.

e.g. exspectā dum redeam.

wait until I return!

Anglice reddenda:

- 1. Helvētiī, ubi iam sē parātōs esse arbitrātī sunt, proficiseī mātūrant.
- 2. Caesarī cum id nuntiātum esset, mātūrandum sibi statuit.
- 3. Helvētiī, ubi de eius adventū certiores factī sunt, lēgātos ad eum mittunt.
- 4. Caesar postquam in eum locum pervēnit, obsidēs poposcit; quī dum conquīruntur et conferuntur, nonnullī ex hostibus salūtem fugā petiērunt.
- 5. neque prius fugere destitērunt (dē-sistō. 3. -stitī) quam ad flūmen Rhēnum pervēnērunt.

- 6. Caesar, cum prīmum pābulī copia esse inciperet, ad exercitum vēnit.
- 7. dum haec in colloquiō geruntur, Caesarī nuntiātum est hostēs accēdere.
- 8. Ariovistus, cum lēgātōs apud sē conspexiss is conclāmāvit: quid ad sē venīrent? num speculandī causā?
- priusquam ¹ quicquid conaretur, Divitiacum ad se vocari iubet.
- 10. imperāvit tribūnīs sustinērent quoad ipse cum exercitū propius accessisset.
- postrīdiē Caesar, priusquam¹ sē hostēs ex terrore āc fugā reciperent, exercitum iterum in eos duxit.
- 12. dum reliquae nāvēs convenīrent, in ancorīs exspectābat.

Latīnē transferenda:

- When (ubi) Caesar perceived that Ariovistus kept himself in camp, he determined to challenge (ēvocō. 1) him to battle.
- 2. While this was happening amongst (in abl.) the Venetī, Sabīnus was in winter-quarters.
- 3. When (cum) Caesar was in Gaul, many (crēber, bra, brum) rumours reached (say 'were brought to') him (that) the Belgae were conspiring against the Roman people.

- 4. Therefore he thought he ought (use oportet) to divide (partior, 4. dep.) his army before more states should conspire (why subj.?).
- 5. Caesar determined to stay (moror. 1) in Gaul until (quoud) he knew (imperf. subj.) that the legions had been posted and the winter-quarters fortified.
- As-soon-as the time of year allowed him (see p. 117) he returned to Gaul.
- 7. He was informed that the Suēvī, after they had discovered (why subj.?) that a bridge was being built (say 'made'), had sent messengers in all directions.

LECTIO.

Colloquium inter Nerviōs et Cicerōnem.

Tunc duces principesque Nerviorum, qui aliquem sermonis aditum causamque amicitiae cum Cicerone habēbant, colloqui sēsē velle dīcunt. Factā potestāte eadem quae Ambiorix cum Sabīno ēgerat commemorant: omnem esse in armīs Galliam; Germānos Rhēnum transisse; Caesaris reliquorumque hīberna oppugnarī. Errāre eōs dīcunt, sī quicquam praesidī ab eīs spērent qui suīs rēbus diffīdant; sēsē tamen hōc esse in Ciceronem populumque Romānum animō ut nihil nisi hīberna recūsent; licēre illīs incolumibus per sē ex hībernīs discēdere et quascumque in partēs velint sine metū proficiscī.

Cicerō ad haec ūnum modo respondit: nōn esse' consuētūdinem populī Rōmānī accipere ab hoste armātō condiciōnem: sī ab armīs discēdere velint, sē adiūtōre ūtantur lēgātōsque ad Caesarem mittant; spērāre prō ēius iustitiā quae petierint impetrātūrōs.

sermonis aditum habere, lit. 'to have access of speech,' i.e. to be on friendly terms.

factā potestāte, when permission was granted (abl. absol.).

ēgerat, had related, discussed (agō. 3. ēgī, actum).

eōs, i.e. Cicerō and his soldiers.

hōc animō esse, lit. 'to be of this mind,' i.e. to be so (well) disposed.

illīs, i.e. Cicerō and his soldiers.

per sē, v. pp. 99 and 117.

Put from 'non esse consuētudinem' to the end into orātio recta.

For what two reasons is recūsent in the Subj.?

LESSON 49.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES—(continued).

Clauses expressing Indefinite Frequency (whenever) may be either Primary or Secondary.

In Primary time the verb in the Subordinate clause is in the perf. Indic., and the verb in the Principal clause is in the pres. Indic.

e.g. magistrātūs multitūdinī prödunt quaecumque ex ūsū iūdicāvērunt.

(vide also p. 101, ll. 3-6.)

In Secondary time the verb in the Subordinate clause is in the pluperf. Indic., and the verb in the Principal clause is in the imperf. Indic.

e.g. sī quī equō dēciderat, comitēs eum circumsistēbant.

if any one fell from his horse, his comrades would (used to) stand round him.

(vide also p. 112, top; p. 257, ll. 22, 23, 25, 27.)

Anglicē dicenda:

- ubi hostēs nostros ex nāvī ēgredientēs conspexerant, impedītos adoriēbantur.
- 2. Brîtannōrum aurīgae cum sē inter equitum turmās insinuāvērunt, ex essedīs dēsiliunt et pedibus, proeliantur.
- sī quandō Venetī fortūnīs suīs despērāre coeperant, sē in proxima oppida recipiēbant.
- 4. quotiens quaeque cohors prōcurrerat, ab eā parte magnus hostium numerus cadēbat.
- 5. Germānī cos, quī hospitēs ad sē vēnērunt, ab iniūriā prohibent.

Latīnē reddite:

This command (praeceptum, $\bar{\imath}$, n.) being carefully (superl.) obeyed (observ \bar{o} . 1.), as (cum) each cohort attacked, the enemy would speedily (superl.) flee. And whenever they began to return to that place whence they had started (\bar{e} -gredior. 3., -gressus), they would be surrounded both by those who had retired and by those who stood (pluperf.) nearest.

Nevertheless they stood-their-ground, and though the-battle-lasted (say 'it was fought') from dawn to the eighth hour, they did nothing unworthy of themselves. T. Balventius, a brave man and (one) of great influence, had both thighs pierced by a javelin; Q. Lūcānius fighting bravely (superl.) is killed while (clum) assisting his son who-had-been-surrounded; L. Cotta, the brigadier, is wounded full in the face by a (shot from a) sling while-exhorting (pres. part.) the cohorts.

VOCABULARY.

though, cum (subj.).

I do (l. 10), com-mittō. 3, -mīsī, -missum.

unworthy, indignus, a, um (abl.).

T. Balventius . . . javelin, say 'both thighs (sing.) to T. Balventius are pierced' (trā-iciō. 3. -iēcī, -iectum).

I assist, sub-veniō. 4. -rēnī, -ventum (dat.). full in the face, in adversum ōs.

LECTIO.

Quae ab hostibus parantur.

Ab hāc spē repulsī Nerviī vallō pedum ix et fossā pedum xv hīberna cingunt. Haec et superiōrum annōrum consuētūdine ab nōbīs cognōverant et quōs clam dē exercitū habēbant captīvōs ab eīs docēbantur; sed nullā ferrāmentōrum cōpiā quae esset ad hunc ūsum idōnea, gladiīs caespitēs circumeīdere, manibus sagulisque terram exhaurīre vidēbantur. Quā quidem ex rē hominum multitūdō cognoscī potuit: nam minus hōrīs tribus mīlium in circuitū iii mūnitiōnem perfēcērunt; reliquisque diēbus turrēs ad altitūdinem vallī, falcēs testūdinesque, quās īdem captīvī docuerant, parāre āc facere coepērunt.

quōs . . . ab eīs, relative before its antecedent.
nullā cōpiā, tbl. absol.

mīlium, sc. passuum.

falx, cis, f. a hook (used for pulling down walls). idem, nom. pl. masc. (contracted for eidem).

What kind of abl. is hōrīs tribus? reliquīs diēbus? Why is esset in the Subj.?

Vīvā Vōce:

- 1. quōmodo Nervii mūniendī ūsum cognōverant?
- 2. quae ad vallum fossamque efficiendam de-erant?
- 3. quomodo hostes caespites circumcidebant?
- 4. quae res docet hostium multitudinem magnam fuisse?
- 5. quot hōrīs mūnitionem perfecerunt?
 - 6. ā quibus falcium testūdinumque ūsum didicerant?

LESSON 50.

RECAPITULATORY.

- 1. Give the Acc. and Abl. Sing., Gender and Meaning of flumen, adventus, spēs, vēr, terror, fīnis, vulgus, lēnitās, nomen, condicio.
- 2. Give the other degrees of comparison of facilis, diūtīssimē, prae, minus, celerrimē, longior, plānus, magnopere, similior.
- 3. What word is used instead of ut in final clauses containing a comparative? Give an example.

 Does ut nēmō mean 'in order that no one'?
- 4. Decline together in Sing. and Pl.:

proelium equestre.

- 5. Give the 3rd pers. sing. and 1st pers. pl. of the imperf. subj. of volō, fiō, praesum, orior; and the 1st pers. sing., and 3rd pers. pl. of the pres. subj. of cōnor, sequor, ūtor.
- 6. Explain Possessive and Objective genitive. Give an instance of the two combined in one phrase.
- Give the Principal Parts of propello, adipiscor, accēdo, fleo, do, video, loquor, resisto, proelior, pareo.
- 8. Mention some verbs and adjectives that are followed by the genitive case.
- 9. Anglice vertite:
 - non longe aberat quin calones nostri interciperentur.

- brēve spatium intēricitur vix ut rēbus administrandīs tempus darētur.
- quoniam cīvitātī consulere non posset, sē Caesarī dēdere māluit.
- 4. haec cum flens ă Caesare peteret, Caesar čius dextram prendit.
- 10. Give examples illustrating the difference in use between dum, while, and dum, until.
- 11. Verbō reddite:

mõre suõ. magnī interest.
aliquid spatī. ā nostrīs resistitur.
carīnae aliquantō plāniōres.

- 12. Explain rostrum, prīmipīlus, acies triplex.
- 13. Latīnē vertenda:
 - 1. The next day he sent (men) to follow-up those who had fled.
 - 2. He returned to Italy early in order that he might not be prevented (exclūdō. 3.) from sailing (noun) by (per) the time of year.
 - 3. He points-out that it is very-easy to carry out his attempts (conata, n. pl.).
 - 4. The general waited until the reserves should arrive.
 - 5. This will be very-useful (predic. dat.) to you (pl.).
 - 6. As-soon-as he heard of Caesar's arrival, he went to-meet (supine) him.
- 14. Parse paene, factū, rogātum (2 ways), fore, ope, poposceritis (2 ways).

LESSON 51.

CONDITIONAL CLAUSES.

Conditional clauses are usually introduced by $s\bar{i}$, if; nisi, $s\bar{i}$ non, if not, unless.

They are followed by either the Indic. or the Subj. mood.

The 'if' clause is known as the Protasis, the principal clause as the Apodosis.

e.g. If I have anything (protasis), I give it (apodosis).

Regular condit. clauses are always consistent, i.e. if the Indic. is used in the protasis, the Indic. must be used in the apodosis also; and if the Subj. is used in the protasis, the Subj. must be used in the apodosis also.¹

It is convenient to class condit. clauses according as they take

- (1) the Indic.
- (2) primary tenses of the Subj.
- (3) secondary tenses of the Subj.
- (1) When the Indic is used, it implies that the statements made are regarded as facts, but leaves it uncertain whether they actually occur or not.

- e.g. sī quid habeō, dō, if I have anything, I give it.
 - ${\bf s\bar{i}}~{\bf quid}~{\bf habe\bar{o}}, {\bf dab\bar{o}}, if~I~have~anything, I~shall~give~it.$
 - sī quid habēbō, dabō, if I shall have anything, I shall give it.
 - sī vīs, dabō tibi testēs, if you like, I shall call you witnesses.
 - sī poterō, sextā hōrā redībō, if I am (shall be) able,
 I shall return at the sixth hour.
 - (2) Where Primary tenses of the Subj. are used, we treat not of facts but of imaginary suppositions, which, as they refer to future time, may be realised.
- e.g. sī quid habeam, dem.
 - if I should have anything (in the future), I should give it.
 - id sī facere coneris, non proficias.
- if you were to try to do that, you would not succeed.

 When the 2nd pers. is used indefinitely, the protasis is often understood.
- e.g. maestī (crēderēs victōs) in castra redeunt.
 - downcast (one would have supposed them conquered) they return to camp.
 - id fierī non posse crēdas.
 - you (i.e. one) would not believe it possible.
 - (3) Where Secondary tenses of the Subj. are used, we treat of imaginary suppositions which refer to present or past time, but cannot in either case be realised.

- (1. if I had anything now, I would give it (implies non habeo, I have nothing).
- e.g. sī quid habērem, darem.

 2. if I had been having anything, I would have been giving it (implies non habēbam, I was not having).

sī quid habuissem, dedissem.

if I had anything, I would have given it (implies either non habui, I have not had (pres. perf.) or non habui, I had not (nor. perf.).

Thus the four types of regular condit. sentences are:

- (11) sī quid habeō, do (possible condition in pres. time).
- (b) sī quid habeam, dem (imaginary and possible supposition in fut. time).
- (c) sī quid habērem, darem (imaginary and impossible supposition in pres. (or past) time).
- (d) sī quid habuissem, dedissem (imaginary and impossible supposition in past time).

Anglicē dīcenda:

- sī hostēs proeliō contendere velint, eīs potestās non dē-sit.
- 2. sī quid tē volam, ubi eris?
- 3. noctū, puer, sī in silvam eās, nonne ferās vereāris?
- 4. sī barbarī flūmen transīre cōnatī essent, ā nostrīs repulsī essent.

¹ non habeo is more often implied than non habebam.

- 5. nisi ex fīnibus meīs discēdēs, tē pro hoste habēbo.
- 6. nisi quid in tē auxilī erit, hīc manēre non poterimus.
- 7. sī quid mihi accidat, domum redeam.
- 8. Ariovistus Caesarī respondet: 'sī quid mihi ā tē opus esset, ad tē venīrem; sī quid igitur tū mē vīs, ad mē venī.'
- 9. sī quid gravius acciderit, mīlitēs ā duce rationem reposcent.
- 10. sī valēs bene est; ego quidem valeō.1

A. Connected.—On-that day both-sides kept their positions (say 'keep themselves in-their place'), the Gauls because they were waiting for reinforcements which had not-yet arrived, Caesar to-see-if $(s\bar{\imath})$ he could (imperf. subj.) by a pretence of fear entice the enemy to his position, in-order-that he might fight in-front-of the camp on-this-side of the valley, (but) if he could not manage (efficiō. 3.) that, in-order-that (why not ut?) he might cross the valley with less danger. At dawn the enemy's horse approached the camp and engaged-battle with our cavalry. Caesar orders (imperō. 1.) his cavalry to retire to the camp, and at the same time orders (iubeō. 2.) the camp to be fortified with a taller stockade and the gates to be blocked, and that this should be done (say 'this to be done') with a great pretence of fear.

LESSON 53.

SOME USES OF THE DATIFE CASE

- A. The Dative is the case of the person interested in an action.
- e.g. frümentum mīlitibus comparātur. corn is collected for the soldiers. legionibus nāvēs instituit. he prepares ships for the legions.

According as the action is for the good or harm of a person, this dative is known as the dat. of Advantage $(dat\bar{\imath}vus\ commod\bar{\imath})$, or as the dat. of Disadvantage $(dat\bar{\imath}vus\ incommod\bar{\imath})$.

e.g. hōc rēīpublicae commodē contigit. (dat. of advantage).

is dies gravissimus nostrīs fuit. (dat. of disadvantage).

that day was most critical to our-men.

- B. The Dative is the case of the Indirect object.
- e.g. quis tibi pulchrum illum librum dedit?

Verbs governing the dative.

- (a) All compounds of sum, except possum, e.g.; ad-. sum, dē-sum, in-sum, prae-sum, etc.
- (b) Verbs compounded with the prepositions.

ab, ante, ad, in, inter, de, sub, super, ob, con, post, prae.

- e.g. ad-propinquō, I approach; sub-veniō, I come to assist; ob-temperō, I obey; i(n)-gnoscō,¹ I pardon; in-videō, I envy.
 - (c) Verbs compounded with re, bene, male, satis.
- e.g. re-sistō, I hold out against; male-dīcō, I revile; satis-faciō, I satisfy.

Many of these verbs take also an acc. of the Direct object.

e.g. Caesar barbaris bellum infert, Caesar wages war on the natives.

tibi dīvitiās non invideo, I do not envy you your wealth.

The verbs impero, praeficio, and praepono are commonly used with the acc. and dat.

Labiënum castrīs praefēcit or praeposuit, he put Labienus in command of the camp.

In the passive of such verbs the dat. is kept.

 $e.g.\ barbar\bar{\imath}s$ ā Caesare bellum infertur. obsidēs hostibus imperantur.

Labiēnus castrīs praepositus est.

(d) Also the following 1:

dō. 1., I give.

mandō. 1.
imperō. 1.

parco. 3., I spare.

noceō. 2., I injure.

pāreō. 2., I obey.

crēdō. 3., I believe, trust.
confidō. 3., I trust (also takes abl., v. p. 119, sent. 3.).
persuādeō. 2., I persuade.
consulō. 3., I look-to, consult the interest of.

C. The dative after Adjectives and Adverbs.

The dat. is used after adjectives and adverbs implying nearness, fitness, likeness, help, kindness, trust, obedience.

e.g. Atrebatēs Nerviīs finitimī sunt, the Atrebatēs are neighbours of the Nerviī.

castrīs idōneus locus, a place suitable for the camp. convenienter nātūrae vīvāmus! let us live conformably with nature!

Similarly amīcus, friendly; propinquus, near; fidēlis, faithful; congruenter, agreeably.

- D. The dative of Possessor (usually with esse).
- e.g. mihi amīcī multī sunt, I have many friends.
 - E. The dative of Agent.

with gerund and gerundive (v. Less. 17, 18, and 19).

e.g. mihi pugnandum erat, I had to fight.

ea res omnibus providenda est, all must attend to that matter.

N.B.—Remember that the Passive of intransitive verbs that govern the dat. can be used impersonally only (v. Less. 25, p. 103).

Anglice dicenda vel scribenda:

- 1. Caesar legioni decimae maxime confidebat.
- 2. legātī ōrābant ut sibi propter imprūdentiam ignoscerētur.
- in tantō rērum discrīmine dux salūtī coinmūnī nön dē-erat.
- 4. tum dēmum tribūnī ut sibi quisque consuleret prōnuntiāvērunt.
- 5. Caesar hībernīs Labiēnum, classī Decimum Brūtum praefēcit.
- ducem cautum rēbus mīlitāribus non solum interesse sed etiam prae-esse oportet.
- 7. nostrīs persuādērī ut diūtius morārentur non poterat.
- 8. mīlitibus imperat ut quam maximum hostibus terrorem inferant.
- 9. id cum animadvertisset Crassus, qui equitatui

- prae-erat, tertiam aciem labōrantibus nostrīs subsidiō mīsit.
- 10. amīcorum alter alterī auxilio salūtīque fuit, ut iūdicārī non posset uter utrī virtūte anteferendus viderētur.

Latīnē reddite:

- 1. The enemy trusted much in the nature of the place.
- . 2. That he might not encounter (occurro. 3.) a more serious (gravis, e) war, Caesar set-out earlier than he was accustomed.
 - 3. He sends a brigadier to see-to ($c\bar{u}r\bar{o}$, 1. v. p. 75) the dispersal of the native troops (manus, $\bar{u}s$, f.).
 - 4. The enemy look-to their belongings (fortūnae, ārum, f. pl.) that they may not be plundered by the Romans.
 - 5. Crassus did not place much reliance on (say 'trust') the auxiliaries.
 - 6. Caesar promised that he would attend-to that business (v. p. 96, sent. 4).
 - 7. The Romans often used-to-spare (imperf.) the-conquered (victus, a, um).
 - 8. He sent an ambassador whom he believed to be very-faithful to him.
 - 9. There-were among the enemy some who were veryfriendly to the Romans.
- 10. All night the soldiers worked strenuously, in order that nothing might be-lacking for the siege.

LESSON 54.

CONCESSIVE CLAUSES—VERBS OF FEARING.

Concessive clauses are introduced in English by the word although, and in Latin by the following conjunctions, all meaning although:—

quamquam, followed by the Indic.
quamvīs'
ut followed by the Subj.
cum etsī followed by the Indic. of fact, tametsī
by the Subj. of imagination.

Note.—quamvīs (lit. 'as you please') is also used to qualify adjectives:

e.g. quamvīs paucī, however few.
malī lēgibus, quamvīs iustīs, non pārent.
the wicked do not obey laws however just.
v. also p. 82, l. 3.

Anglicē dīcenda:

- 1. Caesar, etsī sine ullō perīculō legiōnis proelium fore vidēbat, tamen committendum nōn putābat.
- hostium acies, cum ā sinistro cornu pulsa esset, ā dextro (cornu) vehementer nostros premebat.

- 3. nostrī, tametsī ab duce et ā fortūnā dēserēbantur; tamen omnem spem salūtis in virtūte pōnēbant.
- 4. hostēs intellegēbant, ut omnia contrā opīniönem acciderent, tamen sē plūs quam Rōmānōs nāvibus posse.
- 5. dux, etsī hostium consilia nondum cognēverat, tamen id quod accidit fore suspicābātur.
- 6. quamquam non venit ad finem tam audax inceptum (plun), tamen haud omnino vanum fuit.
- 7. Caesar, etsī prope exacta iam aestās erat, tamen exercitum in Morinōs duxit.
- 8. nostrī, quamvīs ab hostibus gravissimē premerentur, inceptō (v. sent. 6) non dēsistēbant.

VERBS OF FEARING.

The verbs timeō. 2., metùō. 3., vereor. 2. (dep.), I fear, are followed by nē or nē nōn (ut) with the Subj.:

e.g. vereor në veniat, I am afraid he will come. vereor në-non (ut) veniat, I am afraid he will not come.

These verbs when not followed by a clause take the acc. of the Direct object.

e.g. inopiam frumentī veritus, fearing a deficiency of corn.

Anglice dicenda:

- 1. Caesar në hīs rēbus socios offenderet verēbātur.
- 2. hostēs nē armīs trāditīs (abl. absol.) supplicio adficerentur timuērunt.

- . 3. rem frumentariam timēbat ut supportāri posset.
 - 4. veritus nē ab omnibus dēsererētur Indutiomarus lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittit.
 - 5. dīcit Ariovistus verērī nē per insidiās ā 'Caesare circumveniātur.

Latīnē reddenda ·

- 1. He feared not the enemy, but an ambush.
- 2. Although Caesar perceived this, yet he addressed (appellō. 1.) the ambassadors very-mildly (mītissimē).
- 3. The enemy fearing they would be surrounded (circum-cō, -īre) fled.
- 4. He feared a rising in (say 'of') Gaul, if-he-himself-were-absent (abl. absol. v. p. 25).
- 5. Though the column (agmen, inis, n.) was very far off, the smoke (pl.) of its fires could be plainly seen.
- 6. The Belgae were afraid that when all Gaul was pacified (abl. absol.) our army would be led against them.
- 7. Although this plan (say 'which plan although') was not to-be-blamed (gerundive) in an occurrence of-this-kind, yet it turned-out (accidō. 3.) disastrously.
- 8. Caesar said he was not afraid of the deceit of the enemy, but (feared) that reinforcements would not arrive in-time (ad tempus).
- 9. Were you (sing.) afraid that I would not keep-my-promise? (fidem servō. 1.).

LECTIO.

. $\it Caesar, litter \bar{\it is}~comm\bar{\it o}tus, auxilia~undique~arcessit.$

2. quid facit ille? 3. quot milia passuum Crassī castra aberant? 4. quae eī mandat? 5. nonne statim Caesarī pāret? 6. ad quem et quibus cum mandātīs (orders) Caesar alterum nuntium mittit? 7. cūr reliquās cōpiās nōn exspectandās putat? 8. unde equitātum colligit?

LESSON 55.

SOME USES OF THE ABLATIVE CASE.

A. The ablative of Separation is used with or without a preposition after verbs and adjectives of removing, depriving, wanting, especially when such verbs are compounded with the prepositions ab, dē, ex.

e.g. conātū desistere coactī sunt.

they were compelled to desist from the attempt.
hostēs (cx) fīnibus suīs excesserant.
the enemy had left their territories.
Gallia omnī nōbilitāte spoliātur.
Gaul is bereft of all her nobles.
pāne egeō.¹
I want bread.
urbs nūda praesidiō.
a city naked of defence.

B. The ablative of Attendant Circumstances.²

plūribus praesentibus eās rēs iactārī nōluit.

he did not wish those matters to be discussed when several people were present.

multō diē cōpiās reduxit.

² This use of the abl. is closely connected with the abl. of Manner, and the abl. absolute (v. Less. 13 and 14).

- C. The ablative of Instrument.
- (1) barbarī saxīs iaculisque sēsē dēfendunt.

 the natives defend themselves with stones and javelins.

cīvitātēs donīs pollicitātionibusque sollicitat. he inveigles the states by gifts and promises.

- (2) opus and ūsus, signifying need or want, are used either
 - (a) with the Instrumental abl.
- e.g. opus est mihi pecūniā.

I want money (lit. 'there is work for me with money').

or (b) opus is used as a predicate to the thing needed.

e.g. opus est mihi pecūnia.

(lit. 'money is a work for me.') quaecumque opus sunt comparantur.
whatever is needed is got-ready.

Compare sī quid mihi opus esset $\}$ if I should want with si quō mihi opus esset $\}$ anything.

(3) The five Deponent verbs fungor. 3. I perform.

fruor. 3. I enjoy.

• ūtor. 3. I use.

vescor. 3. I feed-on.

potior. 4. I get possession of.?

*e.g. Suēvī lacte atque carne vescuntur.

the Suēvī feed on (lit. 'feed themselves with') milk and flesh.

omnibus in vītā commodīs fruimur.

we enjoy all the advantages of life.

- (4) The abl. of Accompaniment without cum, used in military phrases, may be regarded as an Instrumental ablative.
- e.g. Britannī equitātū atque essedīs progressī sunt.

 the Britons advanced with cavalry and chariots.

Graecis litteris, probably in the Greek language, not in Greek characters, because Caesar tells us elsewhere that the Gauls were acquainted with the latter.

Explain why gerantur, deferat, and abiciat are in the Subj. mood.

Point out a negative Final clause, and an Indirect Question.

Vīvā Vōce:

quā in rē Caesar omnem spem salūtis ponēbat?
 cui persuādet ut epistulam ad Ciceronem dēferat?
 ad quid epistulam dēligāre Gallum iussit?
 quae in litterīs scrībit?

LESSON 57.

THE IMPERATIVE MOOD—Passive and Deponent Verbs.

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

The Imperative pass. of amor is as follows:

Sing. 2nd pers. amā-re, amā-tor, be thou loved!

3rd ,, amā-tor, let him be loved!

·Pl. 2nd " amā-mini, be ye loved!

3rd ,, ama-ntor, let them be loved!

Note:

- (1) the 3rd pers. is antiquated or poetic.
- (2) the Imperative pass, is rare, its place being taken by the Subjunctive.

'e.g. sīs amātus, mayest thou be loved! amētur, let him be loved!

Similarly:

	2nd conj.	3rd conj.	4th conj.
	doc e-ō, teach.	dūc- ō , lead.	audi-ō, hear.
Sing. 2nd • ,, 3rd Pl. 2nd ,, 3rd	docē-re docē-tor, docē-tor docē-minī doce-ntor	düc-e-re düc-i-tor düc-i-tor düc-i-mini düc-u-ntor	audi-re audi-tor audi-tor audi-tor audi-mini audi-u-ntor

The Imperative mood of Deponent verbs is similar to that of Passive verbs of their respective conjugations.

e.g. Imperative mood of hortor. 1.

Sing. hortā-re (exhort!) or hortā-tor, hortā-tor. Pl. hortā-minī (exhort!), horta-ntor.

Imperative mood of patior. 3.

Sing. pate-re or pati-tor, pati-tor.

Pl., pati-minī, pati-u-ntor.

Give orally with the meanings of each person the Imperative mood of the verbs:

moror. 1., stop; tueor. 2., protect; sequor. 3., follow; experior. 4., try.

Verbō reddite:

- 1. mīlitēs, signa sequiminī!
- 2. miserēre (miscreor. 2.) pauperum amīcōrum!
- 3. bonī discipulī laudantor!
- 4. castra mūniuntor!
- 5. ducem coram adesse arbitrămini!
- 6. semper, puer, recté facere conare!
- 7. ē nāvī ēgrediminī!
- 8. semper officio tuo fungere!
- 9. hoc me a te impetrare patere!
- 10. aequīs, captīvī, pācis condicionibus ūtiminī! (accept!)

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

Defective verbs lack some tenses or parts of tenses. Amongst the commonest are the following:

āiō, I say.

Pres. Indic. āiō, ais, ait, āiunt.

Imperf. Indic. āiē-bam, -bās, etc.

Pres. Subj. āiat.

Pres. Part. āiens.

inquam, I say.

Pres. Indic. inquam, inquis, inquit, inquimus, inquint.

Fut. Indic. inquies, inquiet.

Imperf. Indic. inquiēbat.

Perf. Indic. inquit, inquistī, inquit.

Imperative. inque (siny.), inquite (pl.).

meminī, I remember,² and $\bar{o}d\bar{i}$, I hate,² are perfect in form but have a present meaning (cf. cognōvī, I know); consuēvī, (I am accustomed).

Of them the following forms are found:

meminī, I remember.

Perf. Indic. memin-ī, -istī, etc., I remember.

Fut. Perf. Indic. memin-erō, -eris, etc., I shall remember. Pluperf. Indic. memin-eram, -erās, etc., I remembered.

Perf. Subj. memin-erim, -eris, etc.

Pluperf. Subj. memin-issem, issēs, etc. Perf. Infin. memin-isse, to remember.

Imperative. mementō (sing.) mementōte (pl.), re-

¹ Also used as a perfect, 'he said.'

² Not, of course, defective in the same sense as $\bar{a}i\bar{v}$ and inquam, but in that they lack tenses of the Present Stem.

ōdī, I hate.

Perf. Indic. ōd-i, -istī, etc., I hate.

Fut. Perf. Indic. $\bar{\text{o}}\text{d-er}\bar{\text{o}}$, -eris, etc., I shall hates Pluperf. Indie. od-eram, -eras, etc., I hated.

Perf. Subj. od-erim, -eris, etc.
Pluperf. Subj. od-issem, -issēs, etc.

Perf. Infin. od-isse, to hate. Perf. Part. osus, hating.

Fut. Part. ōsūrus, about to hate.

Verbō reddite:

- 1. mementote malos (hominos) extimescendos esse!
- 2. petō ut meae ergā tē amīcitiae memineris!
- 3. nonne hominės nātūrā servitūtis condicionem oderunt?
- 4. Dumnorix Caesarem et Rōmānōs ōderat quod eōrum adventū ipsīus potentia dēminūta sit.
- 5. dux alio se in hiberna consilio venisse meminerat.

LATIN PASSAGES

The following extracts from Caesar (B. G. v. chaps. 24-37, omitting certain portions) recount a disaster which in the year 54 B.C. befell Q. Titūrius Sabīnus, and L. Aurunculēius Cotta, two of Caesar's lēgātī, and the fifteen cohorts under their command.

They had been sent to keep order in the country of the Eburōnēs (in modern Belgium), whose chiefs were Ambiorix and Catuvolcus.

These passages are meant to be read rapidly in Latin, with no conscious attempt at translation into English. The main object should be to get the general drift of the events narrated, with a view to sustaining interest in the story as a whole. The meanings of unfamiliar words are given in the footnotes.

The reading should be done in class, pupils successively reading short passages. It is most important that they should show by their manner and tone of voice that they have a general notion of what they are reading about. This may be tested by oral questions.

Attention should be paid to correct pronunciation. Passages to be learnt by heart and said in class may be set for homework.
